Deletion of Some Terms Could Dress Earlier Idea, He Says

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—A three-way split over civil rights—instead of the usual north-south division—developed among Democratic platform drafters today.

The 19 delegates assigned to rough out the party's presidential campaign principles began a marathon session to finish their task by Wednesday.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, who usually votes with the northern wing of the party, told this reporter he could not support a Senate anti-filibuster plank.

"I think it's dishonest to say we are going to do something that we know we cannot do," he said.

Adoption Predicted

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, also on the drafting group, and Senators William Benton of Connecticut and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, have predicted adoption not only of a stronger racial relations section but also a plank calling for a change in Senate rules on filibusters.

They contend that until the Senate rewrites its rules there will be no chance of getting Congress to enact civil rights legislation.

At five days of public hearings before the platform group southern Democrats, who bolted the convention four years ago on this issue, remained strangely silent.

Sparkman Agrees

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, who did not bolt then and now is supporting Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia for the presidential nomination, said he agreed with Magnuson.

Sparkman also said he believes that Lehman and other northern senators may be pushing the anti-filibuster issue in an effort to promote the presidential bid for Averell Harriman, who has backed their stand vigorously and publicly.

Would Avoid Battle

Sparkman, Magnuson and several other members of the platform drafting group told this reporter they believe a bitter convention floor battle could be

Barkley Drops His Candidacy, Gets Sore at Unions About Age

Steam Is Up Over Action On Loyality

Dixie Groups Caucus This Morning, Resent Adoption Without Roll Call Vote

Ambiguity Is Hit

Rule Can Be Given Any Interpretation; Affects Five States

Convention Hall, Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Angry southern rumblings over a "loyalty pledge" adopted by the Democratic national convention shook the party conclave today. Momentarily, contention over the presidential nomination dropped into the background.

Sentiment apparently was sweeping increasingly toward reluctant, Bible-quoting Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. This growing draft movement was reported to be one of the reasons why Vice President Alben W. Barkley pulled out of the presidential race late last night.

However, Barkley didn't mention Stevenson. The 74-year-old Kentuckian's withdrawal announcement hit particularly at a pronouncement by some union labor people that he is too old for the job.

But the question of the moment was what kind of shape the party would be in when Stevenson, or whoever winds up with the grand prize, goes out to scrap with GOP nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency.

Caucuses Are Held

Southern delegations were holding caucuses this morning in downtown hotels and other points.

Although some southern states supported the "loyalty pledge," delegates from others were steamed up over it.

They didn't like the pledge in the first place and were hot under the collar besides over the way it was brought up after midnight and slammed through at two o'clock in the morning without a roll call vote.

During the heated debate, Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia suggested to the convention that Stevenson might refuse a nomination if the party was split. He said he didn't believe Stevenson would take it "on a gold platter, much less a silver one."

Ambigious in language and subject to almost any kind of interpretation, the rule said in effect that delegates must give assurance they will exert every "honorable means" to see that the convention's presidential and vice presidential nominees get on their state's ballot.

It was shoved down the throats of protesting Dixie delegations by Sen. Blair Moody of Michigan, newspaperman turned politician. Moody may be eying the vice presidential nomination.

Gaveled By Dever

The rule was gaveled into existence by Gov. Paul Dever of Massachusetts, the temporary chairman, after piercing complaints by southern leaders that it would put them in the position of violating their state laws or party organization instructions.

Five states with 110 votes toward the 615½ needed for the preisdential nomination would be affected directly. They are Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

All of these five have laid out machinery with which they could bolt the national ticket if they don't like the nominee or the platform.

Texas, with 52 votes, seemed likely to go along with Moody rule. Gov. Allan Shivers said it doesn't conflict with state laws there, which he said require that the people get a chance to vote on the National Party's nominees.

But the five other delegations called strategy caucuses. There were indications they might decide individually or collectively to defy the rule's requirement that the chairmen of the delegations certify the loyalty "assurance."

Steelworkers Renew Bids For Compulsory Union Shop

Negotiations Are Halted and Government Has Not Indicated Any Action

Pittsburgh, July 22 (AP) — The CIO United Steelworkers' renewed demands for a no-compromise union shop — compulsory union membership—cast gloom today on the 51-day-old economy gouging steel strike. Negotiations were at a standstill and the government gave no indication of further intervention.

The stiffened union shop demand came yesterday at the session of the union's 170-man wage policy wage committee summoned into session by President Philip Murray.

Before Committee

Before the session ended, industrial representatives — in an unprecedented action — went before the union committee to present industry's side of the dispute. But the plea left the committee's collective mind unchanged.

Union negotiators headed by Murray had discussed modified terms of the union shop as a a basis for possible agreement. The committee voted unanimously to wipe out such a possibility.

The steel companies' side of the dispute was presented to the Wage Policy Committee by Vice-President Joseph M. Larkin of Bethlehem Steel; John Morse, general counsel for Bethlehem; Vice President John A. Stephens of U. S. Steel and Board Chairman Ben Moreell of Jones and Laughlin Steel.

No Changes Made

After the four men spoke, Murray turned to the committee members who already had voted, and asked: Do you want to change your minds?"

Loud yells of "no" and "Hell, no," echoed from the floor.

Neither union nor management would comment on just where the latest cleavage left the hopes for settling the strike. Industry repeatedly has refused to incorporate the compulsory union shop into any new major contract.

Government sources said the White House has no plans for further action at this time.

Parliament Names Mossadegh Again

Riots Force Qavam to Quit His Post—20 Persons Killed in Tehran

Tehran, Iran, July 22 (AP) — Iran's Parliament overwhelmingly renominated Mohammed Mossadegh premier today after two days of bloody Nationalist rioting and disorder had forced the more moderate Ahmed Qavam from the office.

Qavam's announced determination to seek a settlement of Iran's oil dispute with Britain set off Communist-strengthened Nationalist mobs who screamed through the streets for his death and battled with police and troops.

Twenty persons reportedly were killed in the fighting which raged through the capital yesterday. Disorders erupted in other parts of the country. Qavam resigned yesterday afternoon.

Quits Premiership

Mossadegh, the aged Nationalist hero who pushed nationalization of Iran's British-operated oil industry to completion last year, quit the premiership last week after Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi refused to let him be war minister as well as premier. As war minister, he would have controlled the army and police.

Announcement of Qavam's resignation yesterday afternoon produced immediate scenes of wild delirium as thousands of Nationalists sang and danced in the streets and shouted for Mossadegh's return to office.

Scene Is Staged

Word of his election by Parliament touched off another scene of wild jubilation today.

A crowd of about 5,000 Nationalist supporters, gathered outside the Majlis (Parliament) building went into frenzy when the vote of approval was announced. People began dancing, crying, hugging and kissing each other.

Parliamentary officials announced that 61 of the 76 deputies now seated in the Majlis voted for Mossadegh. There were two abstentions and the speaker did not vote.

Constitution Approved

Warsaw, Poland, July 22 (AP)—Poland's Parliament unanimously approved a new national constitution today. Th Polish president, Boleslaw Beirut, made a speech to a rally of 100,000 youths staged to celebrate the event. The speech began with words of gratitude to Prime Minister Stalin and the Soviet Union for "liberating" Poland. Beirut urged Polish youth to fight for "peace and Poland's six-year plan" and condemned what he called "American aggressive policy and crimes agaisnt humanity in Korea."

Treasury Receipts

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The position of the treasury July 18: Net budget receipts $200,437,505.06. Budget expenditures $409,608,512.11. Cash balance $8,485,988,532.26. Customs receipts for month $28,319,860.25. Budget receipts fiscal year July 1 $2,069,402,978.14. Budget expenditures fiscal year $4,487,680,153.60. Budget deficit $2,418,277,175.46. Total debt $262,954,730,836.56. Increase over previous day $5,558,317.53. Gold assets $23,348,797,415.49.

Charge Withdrawn

A charge of driving with inadequate brakes lodged against Nelson Broadhead, Jr., 20, of Lomontville, following a three-car accident on North Front street Sunday, has been withdrawn, it was announced today. Broadhead was paroled for appearance in city court Monday when he was arrested after the mishap, and the case was postponed until today. The other two cars involved were driven by Bertha Cameron, of 85 Franklin street, and John R. Ames, of Jackson Heights.

Hear Two Witnesses

Hudson, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Two witnesses appeared today before the special grand jury delving into crime and possible corruption in Columbia county. They were identified as Sherwood Howard and Joseph Paone, both of Hudson. Paone was described as an associate of Benjamin Goldstein in the taxi business in Hudson. Goldstein was convicted in July, 1950, of operating a numbers game. His arrest came during a state police crackdown on prostitution and gambling here. Both Howard and Paone appeared twice before the grand jury this morning. At one point, all members of the staff of Special Prosecutor Paul Williams left the grand jury room. Thomas Mason, special assistant chief counsel, was asked by a newsman if it meant the grand jury was voting on an indictment. "You can draw your own inferences," he replied.

Saugerties Man Hurt

Richard McConekey, 17, of Saugerties, an employe of the F. L. Russell Corp., in that village, was admitted to Kingston Hospital at 11:30 a. m., today for treatment of crushed fingers suffered in a mishap while working on a punch press. Early available information indicated that the ends of at least three fingers on the left hand were crushed.

False Alarm Reported

A seven-year-old boy pulled a false alarm from Box 1531 at Lucas and Lafayette avenues at 4:18 p. m., yesterday. Firemen were called by still alarm at 11:33 a. m., today to 120-22 Linderman avenue, where the burning of papers in a furnace had caused a fire scare, because of excessive smoke.

11 Die in Quake That Rocks South California Region

Falling Walls Kill Nine Children; 25 Persons Hurt, All Buildings Are Damaged

Tehachapi, Calif., July 22 (AP)—With 11 persons dead and more than 25 injured, southern California today began counting the cost of the second strongest earthquake in the state's recorded history.

Focal point of the death and ruin was this farming community of 2,000 on the edge of the Mojave desert, which caught the full fury of the bucking, rumbling upheaval that struck before dawn yesterday.

But here, as in other stricken areas, officials said it was too early to put a dollar sign on damage which appears certain to mount into millions.

Scientists calculated that the quake, felt from San Francisco to the Mexican border, centered in the rugged Tehachapi Mountains, 10 miles south of here.

Ten persons, nine of them children, died in this town as walls came tumbling down. The eleventh was crushed in the collapse of a guest house roof at a nearby ranch. Twenty-five persons required hospitalization.

Virtually every large business building here was damaged. The main street, deep in rubble, looked like a scene from a bombed out city.

Major Damages

The Red Cross reported 31 business houses suffered major damage, with 25 per cent a total loss. Fifteen homes were destroyed, 53 severely damaged and nearly 100 incurred minor damage.

Gov. Earl Warren declared after an inspection of the scene late yesterday that it would not be necessary to declare a state of emergency.

At the nearby women's state prison 417 inmates spent the night in tents on the grounds after officials declared the six major buildings unsafe.

At Arvin, a community of 8,000 18 miles west, damage in the business section was almost as severe. But despite the destruction, no serious injuries were reported.

Eisenhower-Nixon Conference Slated At Western Ranch

General Will Give Speech Before VFW Session At Los Angeles August 3

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH

Denver, July 22 (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower and his GOP vice presidential running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, will discuss campaign plans Sunday at the general's vacation haven in the Colorado Rockies.

It will be their first get-together since they conferred briefly in Chicago after the Republican national convention.

Sen. Fred A. Seaton, an adviser to Eisenhower at the general's headquarters here, announced today that Nixon will fly from Washington Saturday, arriving in Denver at 7:40 p. m., EST.

On Sunday Nixon will motor 72 miles west to the secluded cattle ranch near Fraser, Colo., where Eisenhower has been vacationing since last Thursday. Nixon will fly Monday afternoon from Denver to Los Angeles for a brief rest in his home state before

'My Goodness, No,' Dirksen Declares

Has No Regrets for Attack Upon Dewey at GOP Convention

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today he has no regrets—"my goodness, no"—for his hotly disputed Republican national convention speech assailing Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Republicans are still discussing Dirksen's speech, in which he shook a finger at Dewey from the speaker's platform and set off a demonstration by admonishing the convention that Dewey twice had led the GOP to defeat and should not be permitted to do it again.

Dirksen spoke as a key figure in the unsuccessful drive to win the presidential nomination for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, while Dewey was backing the

Polio Fight Goes On

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A leading authority says dramatic new discoveries indicate that means of preventing polio's crippling effects may be developed within the next three years.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said there is an outside chance a vaccine may be developed for use next year.

But, he added in a copyrighted interview in U. S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine, that it is extremely unlikely to come in time to halt what he said may be a record onslaught of the disease this year.

FDR, Jr., Wows Convention; Gets Boisterous Roar

Famous Grin Reappears at Chicago and His Party Shows It Remembers

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—A few days ago, the political writers covering the Democratic convention here asked Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. whether he, himself, might turn out to be a candidate for the vice-presidency.

"That's an iffy question," he snapped (quoting his famous father), "and a silly one."

It may have sounded iffy-silly last week, but it doesn't today.

Roosevelt hit the convention like a ton of bricks in a five-minute appearance. What he said was of less importance than the obvious impression it made on the Democrats. He looks like a man who is going places in politics—and in the not-distant future.

Early this morning, in the midst of a typical Democratic hassle, Roosevelt was announced as a speaker.

Mood Not Amiable

He came to the platform wearing a blue summer suit, a televisible blue-and-white tie, and a Harriman button. (He is Harriman's campaign manager). A cowlick of hair, curving down past his right eyebrow gave him an engagingly boyish look.

The delegates, at just that moment, were in no very amiable mood. It was getting on toward 2 a. m., and they were hot and tired. There had been a long and restive recess. The delegates wanted to go home, and get their shoes off.

Instead, they had fallen into a fine, old-fashioned Democratic argument.

Vice President Issues Angry Statement; His Delegation Is Grieved

By A. P. BRYAN

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Vice President Alben W. Barkley said he is out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination today because he was opposed by labor union leaders striving for greater party control.

In an angry withdrawal statement, the 74-year-old "Veep" blasted union officials who had declined to support him because they said he was too old to win election.

Barkley called them "self-annointed" and said they wanted "greater control of the machinery and policies of the Democratic party." He also blamed convention delegation leaders who he said encouraged his candidacy but "now find it expedient to withdraw their proffered support of me."

His withdrawal from the contest last night was a dramatic gesture which left members of the Kentucky delegation, with its 26 votes pledged to him, "shocked and grieved."

Votes for Stevenson

But a member of the Kentucky group predicted the state's votes may go to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois on the first ballot.

Reds Recapture Old Baldy's Crest

UN Troops Still in Charge of Southeast Slope of Vital Hill

Seoul, Korea, July 22 (AP)—Chinese infantrymen today recaptured the crest of Old Baldy in the fifth day of a seesaw battle that has cost the Reds more than 1,000 casualties.

United Nations infantrymen still held the southeast slope of the bitterly contested hill west of Chorwon on the Korean western front. Baldy overlooks both the UN and Communist main lines of defense.

Associated Press Correspondent George McArthur at the front said about 200 Chinese pushed through heavy UN tank and artillery fire and retook the shell scarred height.

UN troops reached the top at 2:30 a. m. (12:30 p. m. Monday EST) but were forced to pull back down at 9:30 a. m. in the face of counter-attacking Chinese and heavy Red artillery fire.

Washington Saucers Story Brings Air Force Probe

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The air force today investigated reports that several "flying saucers" had been spotted by radar virtually in its own back yard on the outskirts of the nation's capital.

Not only were unidentified objects seen on radar—indicating actual substance instead of mere light—but two airline pilots and newsman saw eerie lights fitting the general description of flying saucers the same night.

Officials could not immediately agree on whether this was the first time radar has picked up flying saucers. But all agreed it was unusual.

The objects also were different from the average reported saucer in that they traveled at a relatively slow speed, as well as later disclosing the customary bursts that far outspeeds normal airplanes.

One thing was certain: A thorough investigation is being made by the Air Technical Intelligence Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, which has been set up to look into flying saucer reports.

Such reports, officials had said earlier yesterday, are coming in faster than at any time since the initial flood in 1947. The current average is about 100 sightings a month.

The flying saucers over the capital were reported late yesterday, about 36 hours after the incident actually occurred.

This is the story as pieced together from air force reports, persons involved, and other sources:

An operator at the Air Traffic Control Center at Washington National Airport, across the Potomac from the capital, spotted eight unidentified images on one of his radars—the area surveillance scope, with a range of possibly 70 miles.

The images were slow-moving,

11 Die in Quake That Rocks South California Region

Falling Walls Kill Nine Children; 25 Persons Hurt, All Buildings Are Damaged

Tehachapi, Calif., July 22 (AP)—With 11 persons dead and more than 25 injured, southern California today began counting the cost of the second strongest earthquake in the state's recorded history.

Focal point of the death and ruin was this farming community of 2,000 on the edge of the Mojave desert, which caught the full fury of the bucking, rumbling upheaval that struck before dawn yesterday.

But here, as in other stricken areas, officials said it was too early to put a dollar sign on damage which appears certain to mount into millions.

Scientists calculated that the quake, felt from San Francisco to the Mexican border, centered in the rugged Tehachapi Mountains, 10 miles south of here.

Ten persons, nine of them children, died in this town as walls came tumbling down. The eleventh was crushed in the collapse of a guest house roof at a nearby ranch. Twenty-five persons required hospitalization.

Virtually every large business building here was damaged. The main street, deep in rubble, looked like a scene from a bombed out city.

Major Damages

The Red Cross reported 31 business houses suffered major damage, with 25 per cent a total loss. Fifteen homes were destroyed, 53 severely damaged and nearly 100 incurred minor damage.

Gov. Earl Warren declared after an inspection of the scene late yesterday that it would not be necessary to declare a state of emergency.

At the nearby women's state prison 417 inmates spent the night in tents on the grounds after officials declared the six major buildings unsafe.

At Arvin, a community of 8,000 18 miles west, damage in the business section was almost as severe. But despite the destruction, no serious injuries were reported.

Roads Blocked

Roads leading into and around the Tehachapi area were buckled

Hear Two Witnesses

Hudson, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Two witnesses appeared today before the special grand jury delving into crime and possible corruption in Columbia county. They were identified as Sherwood Howard and Joseph Paone, both of Hudson. Paone was described as an associate of Benjamin Goldstein in the taxi business in Hudson. Goldstein was convicted in July, 1950, of operating a numbers game. His arrest came during a state police crackdown on prostitution and gambling here. Both Howard and Paone appeared twice before the grand jury this morning. At one point, all members of the staff of Special Prosecutor Paul Williams left the grand jury room. Thomas Mason, special assistant chief counsel, was asked by a newsman if it meant the grand jury was voting on an indictment. "You can draw your own inferences," he replied.

Saugerties Man Hurt

Richard McConekey, 17, of Saugerties, an employe of the F. L. Russell Corp., in that village, was admitted to Kingston Hospital at 11:30 a. m., today for treatment of crushed fingers suffered in a mishap while working on a punch press. Early available information indicated that the ends of at least three fingers on the left hand were crushed.

False Alarm Reported

A seven-year-old boy pulled a false alarm from Box 1531 at Lucas and Lafayette avenues at 4:18 p. m., yesterday. Firemen were called by still alarm at 11:33 a. m., today to 120-22 Linderman avenue, where the burning of papers in a furnace had caused a fire scare, because of excessive smoke.

Eisenhower-Nixon Conference Slated At Western Ranch

General Will Give Speech Before VFW Session At Los Angeles August 3

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH

Denver, July 22 (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower and his GOP vice presidential running mate, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, will discuss campaign plans Sunday at the general's vacation haven in the Colorado Rockies.

It will be their first get-together since they conferred briefly in Chicago after the Republican national convention.

Sen. Fred A. Seaton, an adviser to Eisenhower at the general's headquarters here, announced today that Nixon will fly from Washington Saturday, arriving in Denver at 7:40 p. m., EST.

On Sunday Nixon will motor 72 miles west to the secluded cattle ranch near Fraser, Colo., where Eisenhower has been vacationing since last Thursday. Nixon will fly Monday afternoon from Denver to Los Angeles for a brief rest in his home state before

Has No Regrets for Attack Upon Dewey at GOP Convention

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today he has no regrets—"my goodness, no"—for his hotly disputed Republican national convention speech assailing Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Republicans are still discussing Dirksen's speech, in which he shook a finger at Dewey from the speaker's platform and set off a demonstration by admonishing the convention that Dewey twice had led the GOP to defeat and should not be permitted to do it again.

Dirksen spoke as a key figure in the unsuccessful drive to win the presidential nomination for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, while Dewey was backing the

Polio Fight Goes On

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A leading authority says dramatic new discoveries indicate that means of preventing polio's crippling effects may be developed within the next three years.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said there is an outside chance a vaccine may be developed for use next year.

But, he added in a copyrighted interview in U. S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine, that it is extremely unlikely to come in time to halt what he said may be a record onslaught of the disease this year.

FDR, Jr., Wows Convention; Gets Boisterous Roar

Famous Grin Reappears at Chicago and His Party Shows It Remembers

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—A few days ago, the political writers covering the Democratic convention here asked Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. whether he, himself, might turn out to be a candidate for the vice-presidency.

"That's an iffy question," he snapped (quoting his famous father), "and a silly one."

It may have sounded iffy-silly last week, but it doesn't today.

Roosevelt hit the convention like a ton of bricks in a five-minute appearance. What he said was of less importance than the obvious impression it made on the Democrats. He looks like a man who is going places in politics—and in the not-distant future.

Early this morning, in the midst of a typical Democratic hassle, Roosevelt was announced as a speaker.

Mood Not Amiable

He came to the platform wearing a blue summer suit, a televisible blue-and-white tie, and a Harriman button. (He is Harriman's campaign manager). A cowlick of hair, curving down past his right eyebrow gave him an engagingly boyish look.

The delegates, at just that moment, were in no very amiable mood. It was getting on toward 2 a. m., and they were hot and tired. There had been a long and restive recess. The delegates wanted to go home, and get their shoes off.

Instead, they had fallen into a fine, old-fashioned Democratic argument.

Southerners Howl, Kick

Briefly, it derived from a proposal to exact from the delegates a

Reds Recapture Old Baldy's Crest

UN Troops Still in Charge of Southeast Slope of Vital Hill

Seoul, Korea, July 22 (AP)—Chinese infantrymen today recaptured the crest of Old Baldy in the fifth day of a seesaw battle that has cost the Reds more than 1,000 casualties.

United Nations infantrymen still held the southeast slope of the bitterly contested hill west of Chorwon on the Korean western front. Baldy overlooks both the UN and Communist main lines of defense.

Associated Press Correspondent George McArthur at the front said about 200 Chinese pushed through heavy UN tank and artillery fire and retook the shell scarred height.

UN troops reached the top at 2:30 a. m. (12:30 p. m. Monday EST) but were forced to pull back down at 9:30 a. m. in the face of counter-attacking Chinese and heavy Red artillery fire.

Area Is Plastered

Police restrain unidentified fighters at a caucus of Kefauver pledged delegates from California in Chicago's Palmer House hotel. The delegation chairman summoned the police when a group of persons supporting Brig. Gen. Herbert C. Holdridge, a self-styled presidential candidate, invaded the caucus and fighting broke out. The Holdridge supporters said they came to protest the seating of the Kefauver delegation at the Democratic convention. (NEA Telephoto)

Washington Saucers Story Brings Air Force Probe

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The air force today investigated reports that several "flying saucers" had been spotted by radar virtually in its own back yard on the outskirts of the nation's capital.

Not only were unidentified objects seen on radar—indicating actual substance instead of mere light—but two airline pilots and newsman saw eerie lights fitting the general description of flying saucers the same night.

Officials could not immediately agree on whether this was the first time radar has picked up flying saucers. But all agreed it was unusual.

The objects also were different from the average reported saucer in that they traveled at a relatively slow speed, as well as later disclosing the customary bursts that far outspeeds normal airplanes.

One thing was certain: A thorough investigation is being made by the Air Technical Intelligence Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, which has been set up to look into flying saucer reports.

Such reports, officials had said earlier yesterday, are coming in faster than at any time since the initial flood in 1947. The current average is about 100 sightings a month.

The flying saucers over the capital were reported late yesterday, about 36 hours after the incident actually occurred.

This is the story as pieced together from air force reports, persons involved, and other sources:

An operator at the Air Traffic Control Center at Washington National Airport, across the Potomac from the capital, spotted eight unidentified images on one of his radars—the area surveillance scope, with a range of possibly 70 miles.

The images were slow-moving,

John P. Brown Dies at Hospital

John P. Brown of this city, who was picked up Saturday night about 11:30 o'clock on Cornell street by police officers and taken to the Benedictine Hospital, died at the hospital Monday afternoon. Brown was found sitting on a car on Cornell street by two men who notified the police.

At the hospital Brown was found suffering from a slight injury to the elbow and a small abrasion on his head. His face was swollen but there was no evidence of foul play and his condition was not considered serious.

Following his death Coroner Ernest A. Kelly ordered an autopsy which was performed by Dr. Herbert Derman and Dr. C. P. Bight. As a result of the autopsy Coroner Kelly said it was determined the man had died from acute alcoholism. He stated the man was on the verge of delirium tremens at the hospital.

An investigation by the police, Coroner Kelly reported, indicated the man had left a tavern in the vicinity where he was found about 11 o'clock and that he had been drinking heavily for about a week.

The body was taken in charge by Jenson and Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, where funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. and from St. Joseph's Church at 10:30 a. m., Interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

A son of the late Paul and Hannah Allen Brown, deceased is survived by his wife, Mary O'Marra Brown; one son, John Brown, Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Joseph Mulligan; one brother, William Brown.

Shifted Lumber Pins Driver in Cab As Trucks Collide

Two motor trucks from Marlborough were involved in an accident on route 9-W a mile south of Milton, Monday afternoon about 2:40 o'clock and the operators of both vehicles were injured.

Charles Quinn, Sr., 63, of Marlborough, suffered contusions of the upper abdomen when he was pinned between the cab of one truck and the wheel, when a load of lumber shifted. He was treated by Dr. W. B. Harris of Marlborough.

The operator of the other truck, Fred Hinkley, 42, Marlborough, also suffered form abrasions but said he would seek medical aid from his own physician.

The accident was investigated by state police from the Highland station.

The truck owned by the Marlborough Manufacturing and Supply Company, traveling south and driven by Quinn, slowed to stop. Following was another platform truck owned by James J. Van Vliet of Marlborough and operated by Hinkley. The first truck was struck in the rear by the Van Vliet vehicle the report said and the lumber shifted and pinned Quinn in the cab of the leading vehicle.

Both trucks were considerably damaged and were towed from the scene.

Court Rules Self Out

The Hague, The Netherlands, July 22 (AP) — The International Court of Justice in a 9 to 5 decision today ruled that it is not competent to judge the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. Britain contended the court had power to settle the dispute between the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and the Iranian government which had nationalized the company's billion dollar Iranian holdings.

'Copters Turn Back

Goose Bay, Labrador, July 22 (AP)—Two Military Air Transport Service (MATS) helicopters were back here today after head winds thwarted a flight to Narsarssuak, Greenland, longest leg of a planned transatlantic flight. The Sikorsky H-19s were forced back after completing a third of the 770-mile hop to Narsarssuak. From Narsarssuak, they head for Keflavik, Iceland, then to Prestwick, Scotland, and eventually to Germany.

Adams Is Named

Denver, July 22 (AP) — Gen. Eisenhower named Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire today to his Republican presidential campaign staff as a sort of chief of staff. Shortly after the appointment was announced at Eisenhower headquarters here, Gov. Adams told newsmen in Concord, N. H., that he would leave soon for the new assignment.

'Miscast' as Alcoholic

Long Beach, Calif. (AP)—Judge Wilbur F. Downs, who recently celebrated his 25th year as a Long Beach municipal court jurist, says a lot of strange cases have appeared before his bench. For instance, says the judge, there was a former Broadway actress turned alcoholic. After appearing on drunk charges a dozen times she was treated at a sanitarium, and released as cured. Almost a year later, said the jurist, she appered again bedraggled and bleary-eyed. It seems she had been screen-tested for a skid-row drunk part in a movie but the director decided she was completely miscast.

Kill Parasite Mistletoe

St. Anthony, Idaho (AP)—Foresters are trying to give a kiss of death to a variety of mistletoe in some foersts of the Intermountain region. It isn't the decorative or kissing kind of mistletoe. It's a dwarf or false misletoe, a parasite which robs a host tree of plant food. The mistletoe slows the growth of trees, distorts their shape and sometimes kills them. Grant A. Morse, Targhee National Forest supervisor, said selective herbicides (weed killers) are used to destroy the parasite.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 22 (AP)—Steels and motors sagged today in a stock market that otherwise was well mixed along a fairly narrow price lane.

Trading was at a very quiet pace—less than a million shares for an entire day. That compares with yesterday's extremely low 780,000 shares.

The steel and motor divisions lost fractions. Railroads were highly mixed and had some wide movers. Other major segments of the market moved within a fractional range with few exceptions.

Northern Pacific lost a major fraction at the start on blocks of 2,000 and 5,500. It recovered somewhat but later fell away around 2 points.

Seaboard Air Line Railroad on a handful of sales rushed up nearly 4 points at one time.

Higher stocks included Standard Oil (NJ), Dow Chemical, International Paper, and Goodrich. Lower were Republican Steel, Chrysler, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, and Westinghouse Electric.

United Corp. sold one block of 10,000 shares ⅛ off at 5⅛.

The market yesterday was a little higher on average.

'Make It Right' Punishment Is Reliable and Corrective

BY MURIEL LAWRENCE

At 4 o'clock of an afternoon, the stationery store near my home is always crowded.

Yesterday I was looking over its magazine rack when a young mother came in with her little boy. While she was busy at the counter, he pushed past me, intent on an upper shelf of comic books. Before I could offer to reach him the one he wanted, he had clambered up on a lower shelf to get it himself. He lost his balance and brought down a pile of still-unassorted paperbound books.

It was a hot afternoon. You could feel the wave of general irritation at the mother of the disturbing little boy. You could also see her register it—and resist it. Quietly turning from the counter, she opened her bag and said, "All right, Rickie, take this tissue and pick them all up. Wipe each book off and give it to me. I will put them back on the shelf."

It took her five minutes to see that her child "made right" his carelessness. Almost at once the disapproving atmosphere changed. The young mother's refusal to be stampeded into irritaton with her child gave no encouragement to the irritation of the proprietor and his other customers. It dissipated. As she left the store, Rickie skipped happily along beside her, someone said, "She knows how to handle him, doesn't she?"

According to a new book, "Better Home Discipline," more than 6000 American families consider "making right" the most effective punishment we can give to children.

Authors Norma E. Cutts and Nicholas Moseley report that a survey of these parents shows that the youngster who is required to "make right" his offense seldom repeats it.

However, while these fathers and mothers agree almost unanimously on the usefulness of this dicipline tool, they use it most often in connction with broken windows, stealing, extravagant spending and charging purchases without permission.

Educators Cutts and Moseley think it's odd that we tend to limit this reliable punishment to offenses against property. They point out that it works just as effectively in situations such as Rickie presented, and corrects messy playing in inappropriate places, forgetfulness and many other kinds of careless behavior.

Its justice, they say, is readily apparent without a lot of talk, even to the little ones. As it enables us to correct without scolding or labeling, they suggest that it helps avoid resentments that make it almost impossible for Johnny to want to "make right" the wrong he has done.

If we think about it, we'll see that it is not so odd that we neglect this punishment except when we are faced with property offenses. Seeing that children "make right" of wrong takes self-control and time from us. Perhaps we begrudge self-control and time unless we are touched in that most sensitive place—the pocketbook.

It's poor economy to save the most effective punishment we have just for the occasions when we have to see that Johnny and Mary pay out cash or pay it out ourselves.

Mecca Fee Waived

Cairo (AP)—King Ibn Saud of Saudi-Arabia has decided to waive all fees on Moslem pilgrimages to Mecca, the Holy city of Islam, radio Jedda announced. The fees, amounting to $66 per head, were to be paid in advance by every Moslem going to Mecca.

Breitel Refuses To Halt Trial

New York, July 22 (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Charles D. Breitel refused today to halt the departmental trial of 12 policemen charged with protecting convicted bookmaker Harry Gross.

Denying "in all respects" their motion for a temporary injunction, Justice Breitel said there was no evidence that the 12 men would be "irreparably damaged" by standing trial since they could appeal an adverse decision to the courts.

Meanwhile, the departmental trial of the 12 and 22 other policemen accused of accepting graft from Gross was marked by defense demands for more time to prepare their cases.

Their Deputy Police Commissioner James A. Delehanty, hearing the case, denied various motions for severance of some of the defendants and other motions that he disqualify himself.

The city plans to call Gross as its star witness.

Small Bathhouse Burns in Rosendale

A small bathhouse on Zegel's Casino property in Rosendale was destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin early today.

Rosendale firemen were called out shortly after 4 a. m. and a mutual call was put through central fire station here at 4:20 a. m., with the High Falls department assigned to cover Rosendale.

The structure, about nine by 15 feet was about 30 feet from Zegel's bungalows, but none was threatened because of the still air. The blaze in the small structure had gained too much headway before arrival of firemen and they were unable to save any part of it.

Worker Injured

A construction worker from Newburgh employed on building a wall around Napanoch Institution for Male Defective Delinquents was injured about the head yesterday afternoon when he was reportedly struck by a gate weighing about five tons. James I. Decker, the injured man, was taken in the Humiston Ambulance to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where his condition today was listed as "poor."

Honeymoon Pair To See Pageant

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson Turnley of Richmond, Va., who will be married on a Columbia Broadcasting Company TV show tomorrow at 11:15, are expected to be in Kingston Wednesday evening and attend the opening of the Kingston Historical Pageant. They will be welcomed to Kingston by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and given a key to the city.

The bride and groom will spend five days of their honeymoon here during the 300th Anniversary pageant, stopping at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Immediately following their marriage on the TV show Mr. and Mrs. Turnley will leave for Kingston where a new 1952 Pontiac car will be placed at their disposal during their five-day honeymoon here.

Reservations for the couple have been made at the Governor Clinton Hotel through John F. Kinerk, executive secretary of the New York Hotel Association. A comprehensive program is being arranged for the honeymoon couple during their stay here after their TV marriage which is being broadcast over a 34-station coast-to-coast hook-up sponsored by General Mills.

During the couple's stay here a photographer from the Pennington studio will take pictures of the couple as they travel about the locality and at the end of their stay they will be presented with a honeymoon album by the studio.

John P. Brown Dies at Hospital

John P. Brown of this city, who was picked up Saturday night about 11:30 o'clock on Cornell street by police officers and taken to the Benedictine Hospital, died at the hospital Monday afternoon. Brown was found sitting on a car on Cornell street by two men who notified the police.

At the hospital Brown was found suffering from a slight injury to the elbow and a small abrasion on his head. His face was swollen but there was no evidence of foul play and his condition was not considered serious.

Following his death Coroner Ernest A. Kelly ordered an autopsy which was performed by Dr. Herbert Derman and Dr. C. P. Bight. As a result of the autopsy Coroner Kelly said it was determined the man had died from acute alcoholism. He stated the man was on the verge of delirium tremens at the hospital.

An investigation by the police, Coroner Kelly reported, indicated the man had left a tavern in the vicinity where he was found about 11 o'clock and that he had been drinking heavily for about a week.

The body was taken in charge by Jenson and Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, where funeral services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. and from St. Joseph's Church at 10:30 a. m., Interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

A son of the late Paul and Hannah Allen Brown, deceased is survived by his wife, Mary O'Marra Brown; one son, John Brown, Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Joseph Mulligan; one brother, William Brown.

Shifted Lumber Pins Driver in Cab As Trucks Collide

Two motor trucks from Marlborough were involved in an accident on route 9-W a mile south of Milton, Monday afternoon about 2:40 o'clock and the operators of both vehicles were injured.

Charles Quinn, Sr., 63, of Marlborough, suffered contusions of the upper abdomen when he was pinned between the cab of one truck and the wheel, when a load of lumber shifted. He was treated by Dr. W. B. Harris of Marlborough.

The operator of the other truck, Fred Hinkley, 42, Marlborough, also suffered form abrasions but said he would seek medical aid from his own physician.

The accident was investigated by state police from the Highland station.

The truck owned by the Marlborough Manufacturing and Supply Company, traveling south and driven by Quinn, slowed to stop. Following was another platform truck owned by James J. Van Vliet of Marlborough and operated by Hinkley. The first truck was struck in the rear by the Van Vliet vehicle the report said and the lumber shifted and pinned Quinn in the cab of the leading vehicle.

Both trucks were considerably damaged and were towed from the scene.

Court Rules Self Out

The Hague, The Netherlands, July 22 (AP) — The International Court of Justice in a 9 to 5 decision today ruled that it is not competent to judge the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. Britain contended the court had power to settle the dispute between the British - controlled Anglo - Iranian Oil Company and the Iranian government which had nationalized the company's billion dollar Iranian holdings.

'Copters Turn Back

Goose Bay, Labrador, July 22 (AP)—Two Military Air Transport Service (MATS) helicopters were back here today after head winds thwarted a flight to Narsarssuak, Greenland, longest leg of a planned transatlantic flight. The Sikorsky H-19s were forced back after completing a third of the 770-mile hop to Narsarssuak. From Narsarssuak, they head for Keflavik, Iceland, then to Prestwick, Scotland, and eventually to Germany.

Adams Is Named

Denver, July 22 (AP) — Gen. Eisenhower named Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire today to his Republican presidential campaign staff as a sort of chief of staff. Shortly after the appointment was announced at Eisenhower headquarters here, Gov. Adams told newsmen in Concord, N. H., that he would leave soon for the new assignment.

'Miscast' as Alcoholic

Long Beach, Calif. (AP)—Judge Wilbur F. Downs, who recently celebrated his 25th year as a Long Beach municipal court jurist, says a lot of strange cases have appeared before his bench. For instance, says the judge, there was a former Broadway actress turned alcoholic. After appearing on drunk charges a dozen times she was treated at a sanitarium, and released as cured. Almost a year later, said the jurist, she appered again bedraggled and bleary-eyed. It seems she had been screen-tested for a skid-row drunk part in a movie but the director decided she was completely miscast.

Kill Parasite Mistletoe

St. Anthony, Idaho (AP)—Foresters are trying to give a kiss of death to a variety of mistletoe in some foersts of the Intermountain region. It isn't the decorative or kissing kind of mistletoe. It's a dwarf or false misletoe, a parasite which robs a host tree of plant food. The mistletoe slows the growth of trees, distorts their shape and sometimes kills them. Grant A. Morse, Targhee National Forest supervisor, said selective herbicides (weed killers) are used to destroy the parasite.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 22 (AP)—Steels and motors sagged today in a stock market that otherwise was well mixed along a fairly narrow price lane.

Trading was at a very quiet pace—less than a million shares for an entire day. That compares with yesterday's extremely low 780,000 shares.

The steel and motor divisions lost fractions. Railroads were highly mixed and had some wide movers. Other major segments of the market moved within a fractional range with few exceptions.

Northern Pacific lost a major fraction at the start on blocks of 2,000 and 5,500. It recovered somewhat but later fell away around 2 points.

Seaboard Air Line Railroad on a handful of sales rushed up nearly 4 points at one time.

Higher stocks included Standard Oil (NJ), Dow Chemical, International Paper, and Goodrich. Lower were Republican Steel, Chrysler, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, and Westinghouse Electric.

United Corp. sold one block of 10,000 shares ⅛ off at 5⅛.

The market yesterday was a little higher on average.

'Make It Right' Punishment Is Reliable and Corrective

BY MURIEL LAWRENCE

At 4 o'clock of an afternoon, the stationery store near my home is always crowded.

Yesterday I was looking over its magazine rack when a young mother came in with her little boy. While she was busy at the counter, he pushed past me, intent on an upper shelf of comic books. Before I could offer to reach him the one he wanted, he had clambered up on a lower shelf to get it himself. He lost his balance and brought down a pile of still-unassorted paperbound books.

It was a hot afternoon. You could feel the wave of general irritation at the mother of the disturbing little boy. You could also see her register it—and resist it. Quietly turning from the counter, she opened her bag and said, "All right, Rickie, take this tissue and pick them all up. Wipe each book off and give it to me. I will put them back on the shelf."

It took her five minutes to see that her child "made right" his carelessness. Almost at once the disapproving atmosphere changed. The young mother's refusal to be stampeded into irritaton with her child gave no encouragement to the irritation of the proprietor and his other customers. It dissipated. As she left the store, Rickie skipped happily along beside her, someone said, "She knows how to handle him, doesn't she?"

According to a new book, "Better Home Discipline," more than 6000 American families consider "making right" the most effective punishment we can give to children.

Authors Norma E. Cutts and Nicholas Moseley report that a survey of these parents shows that the youngster who is required to "make right" his offense seldom repeats it.

However, while these fathers and mothers agree almost unanimously on the usefulness of this dicipline tool, they use it most often in connction with broken windows, stealing, extravagant spending and charging purchases without permission.

Educators Cutts and Moseley think it's odd that we tend to limit this reliable punishment to offenses against property. They point out that it works just as effectively in situations such as Rickie presented, and corrects messy playing in inappropriate places, forgetfulness and many other kinds of careless behavior.

Its justice, they say, is readily apparent without a lot of talk, even to the little ones. As it enables us to correct without scolding or labeling, they suggest that it helps avoid resentments that make it almost impossible for Johnny to want to "make right" the wrong he has done.

If we think about it, we'll see that it is not so odd that we neglect this punishment except when we are faced with property offenses. Seeing that children "make right" of wrong takes self-control and time from us. Perhaps we begrudge self-control and time unless we are touched in that most sensitive place—the pocketbook.

It's poor economy to save the most effective punishment we have just for the occasions when we have to see that Johnny and Mary pay out cash or pay it out ourselves.

Breitel Refuses To Halt Trial

New York, July 22 (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Charles D. Breitel refused today to halt the departmental trial of 12 policemen charged with protecting convicted bookmaker Harry Gross.

Denying "in all respects" their motion for a temporary injunction, Justice Breitel said there was no evidence that the 12 men would be "irreparably damaged" by standing trial since they could appeal an adverse decision to the courts.

Meanwhile, the departmental trial of the 12 and 22 other policemen accused of accepting graft from Gross was marked by defense demands for more time to prepare their cases.

Their Deputy Police Commissioner James A. Delehanty, hearing the case, denied various motions for severance of some of the defendants and other motions that he disqualify himself.

The city plans to call Gross as its star witness.

Small Bathhouse Burns in Rosendale

A small bathhouse on Zegel's Casino property in Rosendale was destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin early today.

Rosendale firemen were called out shortly after 4 a. m. and a mutual call was put through central fire station here at 4:20 a. m., with the High Falls department assigned to cover Rosendale.

The structure, about nine by 15 feet was about 30 feet from Zegel's bungalows, but none was threatened because of the still air. The blaze in the small structure had gained too much headway before arrival of firemen and they were unable to save any part of it.

Worker Injured

A construction worker from Newburgh employed on building a wall around Napanoch Institution for Male Defective Delinquents was injured about the head yesterday afternoon when he was reportedly struck by a gate weighing about five tons. James I. Decker, the injured man, was taken in the Humiston Ambulance to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where his condition today was listed as "poor."

Honeymoon Pair To See Pageant

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson Turnley of Richmond, Va., who will be married on a Columbia Broadcasting Company TV show tomorrow at 11:15, are expected to be in Kingston Wednesday evening and attend the opening of the Kingston Historical Pageant. They will be welcomed to Kingston by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and given a key to the city.

The bride and groom will spend five days of their honeymoon here during the 300th Anniversary pageant, stopping at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Immediately following their marriage on the TV show Mr. and Mrs. Turnley will leave for Kingston where a new 1952 Pontiac car will be placed at their disposal during their five-day honeymoon here.

Reservations for the couple have been made at the Governor Clinton Hotel through John F. Kinerk, executive secretary of the New York Hotel Association. A comprehensive program is being arranged for the honeymoon couple during their stay here after their TV marriage which is being broadcast over a 34-station coast-to-coast hook-up sponsored by General Mills.

During the couple's stay here a photographer from the Pennington studio will take pictures of the couple as they travel about the locality and at the end of their stay they will be presented with a honeymoon album by the studio.

Features Listed For Tercentenary; Visitors Are Due

The focal week of Kingston's 300th Anniversary starts today. Before another Monday rolls around many thousands of people will have visited Kingston for some part of the elaborate celebration.

A listing of the featured activities should excite and enthuse every Kingstonian, it is reported. Every person contacting strangers should be ready to answer questions they have about the celebration. Harry Rigby, Jr., director of public relations for the anniversary group, provided the following summary:

The art show in the new George Washington School on Wall street opened Wednesday and will continue daily 11 a. m. to 9 p. m., until August 17.

The special free railroad exhibit opened Saturday and will continue through next Sunday. The famous old engine 999, plus other equipment, both old and new, is on display on Greenkill avenue. The extensive Memory Lane exhibit will be found in the West Shore station. The railroad week will be topped by a special excursion trip through the Catskill Mountains over the U and D tracks to Stamford Sunday afternoon, July 27. Tickets should be purchased by Wednesday to allow time to complete necessary arrangements. The train will originate in New York city and leave Kingston at 1:30 p. m., returning at 7 p. m. Tickets are availabie locally at the West Shore ticket office and at the Chamber of Commerce office in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk will welcome the New York contingent at the Greenkill avenue exhibit at 11:50 a. m.

The historical pageant opens at 8:30 Wednesday and will continue nightly through Saturday, July 26, in the municipal stadium at the foot of North Front street. The stars of the national television show Bride and Groom, Wednesday will be entertained at the Governor Clinton Hotel and attend the opening night of the pageant. Between 400 and 500 local people will participate in the staging of the pageant.

On Friday and Saturday, July 25 and 26, there will be Open House at many of the pre-Revolutionary stone houses in Hurley. Those interested may get tickets at the Hurley Reformed Church before starting on the tour.

Interesting displays also may be seen in some store windows. One exhibit showing the history of lighting, may be seen in the Myers Electric window, 779 Broadway.

The Senate House, the Senate House Museum and the grave of George Clinton are still the major historical attractions. Rigby said, "We should never hesitate recommending a visit to the Senate House," even though we may not have been there ourselves."

Stanley J. Matthews, president of the 300th anniversary group, also suggested that everyone who has not already acquired one of the souvenir books, Historic Kingston and a sheet of poster stamps, should do so as a souvenir of the anniversary. They are still available, but there is no assurance how long the supply will last.

"Strangers form their opinion of any city by the impression created by people they contact. Let's all revive the slogan Courtesy Is Contagious" and really help establish even more firmly, the fact that Kingston is a Friendly Town, Rigby added.

Meanwhile, the local stations of the Shell Oil Company are cooperating extensively in the promotion of the focal week of Kingston's 300th Anniversary. This announcement was made today by Albert Kurdt, secretary of the anniversary group.

Will Write Article

The cooperation will consist of local advertising, both newspaper and radio, special decorations on all five gasoline stations starting Wednesday, and a special giveaway program at each station. In addition, the editor of the house organ of the Shell Oil Company will be in Kingston during the pageant and prepare a feature article on the Kingston activities.

Kurdt said that this type of cooperation is making the 300th anniversary program successful. "Everybody seems to be taking hold and helping in some way. Without such individual initiative on the part of many people, for the good of our city, we could not possibly get all the recognition and publicity with our very limited budget. It shows what real community spirit can accomplish."

It also was reported that through the cooperation of A. D. Woolsey and Donato Brothers, tourist information stations have been established at the top of the Port Ewen hill near the Rondout Creek Bridge, and near the intersection of Route 9W and Albany avenue extension. Large signs have been erected to inform tourists they can stop at those points to get 300th anniversary information. Three street banners also have been erected. "This is merely additional evidence of the fine cooperation the anniversary group is receiving," Kurt concluded.

GILBERT VAN VLACK

Gilbert Van Vlack, newly-elected president of the Mid-Hudson Chapter of National Association of Cost Accountants, presided at the recent organizational meeting of the group during which time plans were made for the year. The first event planned for the season will be the annual family picnic scheduled August 20 at Shadybrook Park. Eleven technical sessions are scheduled for the year, the first of which will be held September 15. The next director's meeting is slated August 11.

Fifth Week Opens With 125 Enrolled At YM Day Camp

The YMCA Day Camp has opened its fifth week at Pine Knoll with over 125 boys and girls attending, Camp Director Lou Schafer said today.

Schafer said that in past years the number of campers has usually fallen off during the last weeks but that this year was an exception.

He said that the swimming program this summer had been highly successful and that many campers had learned to swim. A number of the campers have swum the length of DeWitt Lake and back, a distance of almost a mile, he said, explaining that life guards accompanied the swimmers in boats. Swimmers use the side and crawl stroke on the long swim, turn over on their backs and scull in order to rest, or use the breast stroke.

Schafer said that during recent hot days campers had been taking long rest periods in the pine groves with reading and story telling.

During the first half of the camp the Children's Home has had 18 children enrolled, Schafer stated, pointing out that during the second half there would be 11 more from the Home.

New campers this week are as follows: Junior Camp, Charles and William Hill, William Brackett, Robert and Thomas Provenzano, Eileen Orkoff and Edmund Yeager; Senior Camp, Richard Matthews, Ronald Levy, Harry Mertine, Raymond Peterson, James and Richard Ploss, Carrie Barley, Rose Marie Hill, Gertrude Peterson, Jean Scott, Ronald Dietz and Patricia Rosinski.

Price Is Forecast

New York, July 22 (AP)—A uniform price of $4.28 per hundredweight (46.5 quarts) is forecast for dairy farmers for July milk deliveries to pool-approved plants in the six-state New York milkshed. The estimated producer butterfat differential for July is 6.8 cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the 3.5 per cent standard. The figures were announced last night by C. J. Blanford, market administrator of the New York Metropolitan milk marketing area.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Russia is usually credited with great skill at diplomatic manipulation. Yet in several instances in the last few years the Russians have displayed an amazing ineptness. The treaties with Japan, Italy and West Germany are instances when Russian efforts to accomplish particular ends went far astray. The North Atlantic Treaty, the formation of a European army, the growing unity among nations opposed to Communism are all examples of the failure of Russian diplomacy.

But because the Kremlin has blundered in the past there is no reason to believe that it will continue to do so. There are indications that the Russians intend to make a strong bid to break up anything like the NATO being formed in the Pacific. Russia still has no peace treaty with Japan. Perhaps such a treaty may be offered as bait to lure Japan away from the camp of the democracies.

The American handling of the situation in Japan since the end of World War II has been excellent. The occupation, instead of arousing bitterness and hate, has actually won friends for America. But continuation of an intelligent, dynamic policy in our dealings with Japan is necessary for Russia will not hesitate to make appealing offers. Nations recovering from war defeats are particularly susceptible to offers of trade concessions.

The Kremlin can be outmaneuvered diplomatically again. But if this is to be accomplished the full force of the Russian bid for Japan's friendship will have to be anticipated and turned aside.

A PERSONAL TOUCH

Individuals can do much to help or hinder good relations among nations. Communist demonstrators in London recently daubed "scram, yank" signs on the windshields of several American automobiles. American officials passed off the incidents with a shrug yet it cannot be denied that the smeared windshields caused annoyance and embarrassment to both English and American officials.

A day after the windshields had been daubed with paint an American officer discovered a man with a bucket, apparently out to repeat the incident. Investigation showed, however, that he was removing the paint that had been put there by the Reds. He was just an ordinary citizen, an Englishman who felt that it was his personal duty to wipe out an insult to his country's friends put there by traitors.

The man had spent an entire day cleaning American cars that had been painted by the demonstrators. His action was not of high importance in itself yet few Americans who saw it or heard of it are likely to forget it. Nor are they likely to doubt that the great majority of the British people are our firm friends.

It is our firm conviction that the auto is here to stay. It has stayed in the parking place we looked for long enough to prove it.

NO ROOM FOR NEUTRALS

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has done his best to convince the world that he is a patient man. His attempts to retain a neutral position between the two contesting forces of democracy and communism have on occasion earned him the displeasure of both sides. Now he is demonstrating that even the most patient man must some time reach the end of his patience with Communists.

Nehru, a calm, soft-spoken man ordinarily, lashed out recently at the Communists in his Parliament. He called them "undignified" and added that he felt he had a right to expect a "modicum of intelligence" from them. Nehru also hit out at opposition from the rightist elements in the Parliament.

It is difficult to maintain a neutral position between Communism and democracy today. As far as the Reds are concerned there is no such thing as neutrality. A nation which is not a Russian satellite, regardless of its actions, is subject to intense Communist pressures. Nehru is learning this to his sorrow. Communist machinations may drive his country completely into the camp of the democracies.

TOM DEWEY'S BOOK

Prior to becoming kingmaker at the Republican Convention, Thomas E. Dewey tok a hurried trip to Asia, thus becoming an authority on the subject and writing a book. Nearly every casual visitor to Asia writes a book. Tom Dewey's "Journey to the Far Pacific" has value because he brings to the subject the shrewdness of a politician who has managed very well for himself, except that he was twice defeated for President.

It must be recalled that before Tom Dewey became a gang-buster and politician, he was a musician, a baritone. Had he pursued a cultural career rather than one of raking over the muck of human depravity, he might have been a great artist and a lovable person. As it is, he remains everlastingly the prosecutor. Yet, when he was in Japan, he caught the essential fact of American propaganda in Asia as well as in Europe, which is that those peoples are more interested in human culture than in automobiles and washing machines. He says:

"The cultural bars between America and Asia are as nurmerous as the business bars. The Soviet Union not only suffers none of the handicaps under which we struggle in a business way, they have also outstripped us overwhelmingly in their cultural penetration into the free world. Traveling Soviet ballets, orchestras, singers, and artists, as well as every form of Soviet literature, are turning up all over the world in huge quantities. Much of the music and art is entirely unaccompanied by propaganda but it is plainly the most powerful propaganda of all. For us to compete with the Soviet in cultural propaganda would probably cost billions; but as I noted the total absence of any sign of American culture in the Pacific it seemed to me that our defeat in the struggle for the minds of people in this one area alone was so decisive as to require a complete overhauling of our attitude and approach.

"Of course an occasional baseball team or boxer makes a triumphant tour of Japan for profit and does some good; American movies and magazines circulate in the Pacific. But more often than not they deal with the ugliest aspect of American life, frequently exaggerating our defects for purposes of sensationalism or entertainment."

This is absolutely true and has been missed by the Voice of America and all the other propaganda agencies designed to make Asiatics and Europeans love America. Nations are not bought by money, as we are beginning to learn after spending close to $100,000,000,000 trying to prove that they can get cash and credit from the United States almost on request and never to be returned. We even gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 and bought ourselves an enemy.

On the other hand, nations can be won to ideas. This has been the program of Soviet propaganda and it has been extraordinarily effective, even when the ideas are demonstrably false.

Our weakness has been that while we have all the evidence to establish the errors of Marxism, in philosophy as in economics, we have avoided doing ourselves any good, first, because those to whom propaganda has been delegated do not understand the requirements of the task in this century; and secondly, because a theory of the separation of government from religion makes an intelligent discussion of opposition to Marxism officially impossible. As long as that is so, no matter how much we spend to convert nations to a love of us, we shall fail.

There is much in Tom Dewey's book that is interesting and even important. He has grasped the signficance of Formosa and his views on that subject may prove embarrassing to General Eisenhower, who has always deprecated the importance of Asia, particularly Formosa. Tom Dewey's thesis is not the same as General Eisenhower's.

To some phases of this book, I shall return because discussion is necessary, particularly his concept that officials should not be held responsible for the mistakes they make, even if American lives are lost as a result of their errors, because what they said, at the time, represented their best judgment. According to this idea, no one should have held Nero responsible for the burning of Rome, with its consequent human suffering and loss of life—because it represented Nero's best judgment. Must we die because idiots use their judgment? At what point does official responsibility for official acts begin?

That Body of Yours

MILD DEPRESSIONS

It was Chesterton who stated that "a sleepless night, an attack of indigestion and a rainy morning can make a coward of a man who might otherwise be a hero."

Physicians find that while the majority of their patients complain of fatigue as a prominent symptom, many of them admit that they feel depressed and cannot account for these depressions. Close questioning often reveals the fact that even when they were youngsters they became depressed and discouraged at times. It would seem that some of us get discouraged with the little conflicts of life yet meet the big issues or problems calmly and courageously.

In Medical Clinics of North America, Dr. John G. Dewan, associate professor of psychiatry, University of Toronto, states that "all people experience mood swings. There is no absolute demarcation between ordinary healthy people with more than ordinary mood swings, people with mild depressions and people with severe depressions."

What causes these mood swings? "The generally accepted view is that of multiple causation; that the depression is the result of an interplay of constitutional, physiologic, and social factors." Of course, some of these depressions seem to "come out of the blue," as the physician and patient cannot explain them. "Obviously the behavior and general feeling of the individual depends upon his mood at the time that conflicts and other emotional disturbances are present."

The way the patient lived as a child, his home life and the manner in which the parents treated him determine the way the adult will meet life's difficulties, including depressions. Always in the background and closely involved in the cause of the depression is the degree of resistance in the individual and the elasticity of personality.

"Depression is especially liable to occur at certain periods of life. It is rare in children, not uncommon in early adult life and increasing steadily in the later years when the resiliency or elasticity of youth becomes less due to tissue and vessel changes and to altered outlook on life."

In regard to treatment, it is suggested that the depressed individual should continue to do routine work. Social tensions in the home or elsewhere should be given attention.

The knowledge that the doctor understands his illness tends to dispel the fear and uncertainties of the patient. The medical treatment suggested is Benzedrine or Dexedrine, 5 mg. on arising and at noon, "the most important treatment being the emotional support derived from the doctor-patient relationship."

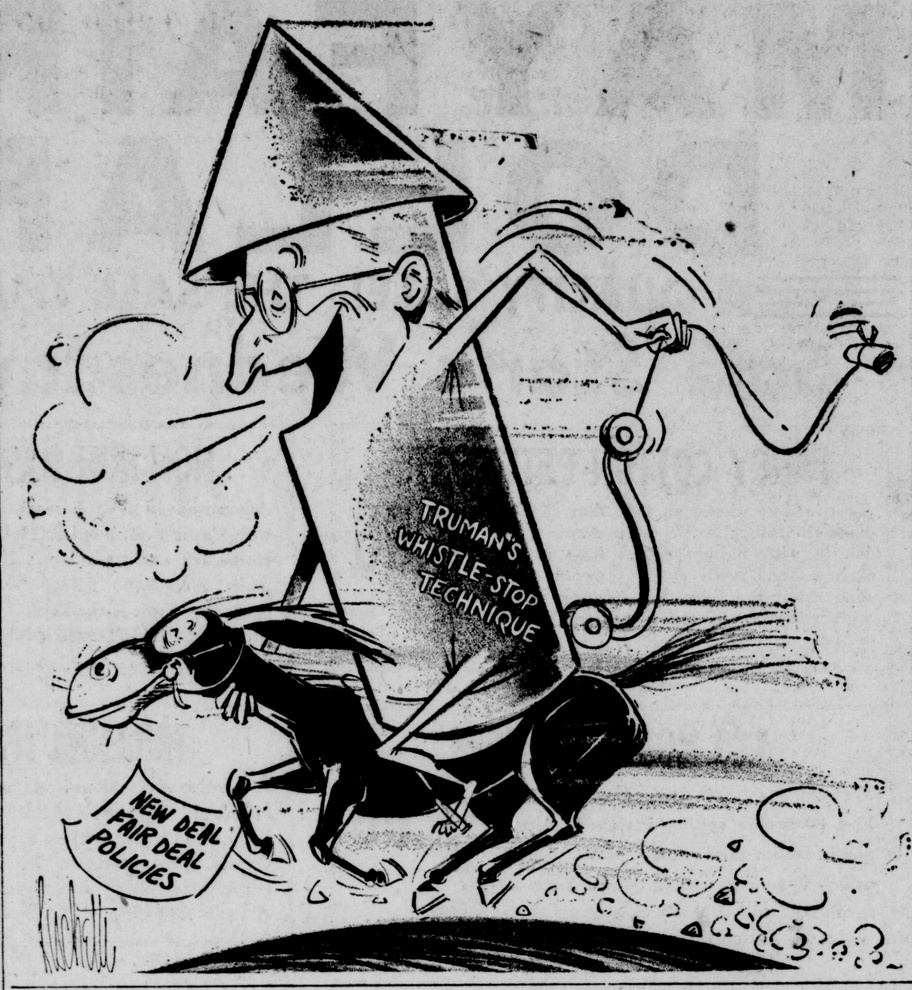
Tall in the Saddle



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Chicago—You don't have to go any farther than Chicago's 24th ward, sometimes called the west side "terror ward," to understand some of the paradoxes and problems of the Democratic Party.

Democratic committeeman for the 24th Ward is one Arthur X. Elrod, who is also commissioner for Cook county, over which the grimy, unkempt city of Chicago spreads in man-made disarray.

Commissioner Elrod is a congenial, likable politician who is sometimes known in Chicago as the friend of hoodlums. Since the 24th Ward is that where the hoodlums flourish, it is obvious that they have to have friends someplace. But he is also known in Chicago as the friend of some of the biggest Democrats in Washington, and when Vice President Barkley comes to Chicago for a Jackson Day dinner, Artie Elrod is perennially on the reception committee to welcome him. He also has pictures of himself with President Truman and Barkley to prove his friendship.

This is where the paradoxes and problems of the Democratic Party come in. In Chicago, part of the support for the Democrats comes from Artie Elrod. His support in turn comes from the hoodlums. He has been so successful politically and otherwise, that in a few short years he has pariayed his income up to $50,000 a year, though his visible means of support is chiefly from the modest salary paid him by Cook county.

Commissioner Elrod's reputation was such that during the Kefauver crime committee probe he was cross-examined by Kefauver agents. Now as a member of the Illinois delegation naturally he is pulling every possible wire among Democratic leaders to block the nomination of the man who investigated him.

Commissioner Elrod is not unlike some other Democratic stalwarts from the crime-ridden sections of Kansas City, New York, and Miami. They have no more in common with the Democratic leaders of the agricultural south than Estes Kefauver has with Artie Elrod. They disagree on everything from civil rights to oleomargarine to the St. Lawrence Seaway — Everything except the Democratic label.

Their situation is not unlike that which confronted the Republicans in Chicago two weeks ago, when the Old-Guard leaders of the Taft wing of the GOP had local control of the convention. The corruption issue was not involved. But they held sway over the passes, the tickets, the ushers, and the convention machinery. However, the Eisenhower-Deweyites in the end took over.

In Chicago today, it's the big-city wing of the Democratic party with its Commissioner Elrods and others which controls the local mechanics of the convention. And though Senator Kefauver swept the Illinois primary, the Elrods and others who were probed by Kefauver will stop at nothing to block him.

To get a closer look at this paradoxical picture, here is a cross-section of those who contributed to Artie Elrod's political campaign in 1950 to elect him commissioner of Cook county:

"Sugar Joe" Peskin, juke-box dealer and former gang member, $250; Harold Weinstein, Calumet scrap-iron dealer, $500; George Lurie, attorney for gamblers, $200; David Rockola, juke-box dealer, $100; Lon Kaven, bookie, $100; Dave "Dingie" Halpren, bookie, $200; Charles Baron, bookie, $200; Gibby Kaplan, whose Gibby's Cafe is a hangout for hoods, $250; Hi Ginnis, who runs the Tradewinds Cafe, frequented by hoods, $100; John Mack, financial adviser for hoods, $250.

Jake Arvey Helped

Back in 1940, just before Elrod began working for the city of Chicago, he got a salary of $7,840 a year on which he paid an income tax of $206.42. Today his official salary—$7,500—is just about what is was ten years ago but his income is now $50,000.

No wonder the city council of Chicago has just voted 40 to 7 not to send out the "mink coat" questionnaires which were sent to all policemen in New York and Washington, D. C., and which incidentally the new Attorney General James McGranery has refused to send to government officials in Washington.

When Kefauver investigators questioned Commissioner Elrod on how he was able to make so much money despite his modest official salary, his answer, according to their official report was as follows:

"Elrod states that his miscellaneous income picked up appreciably when Jake Arvey went into the army, because he then took over some of the influence that Arvey had previously had. He says he doesn't know what, if anything, Arvey received in exchange for favors."

Arvey, of course, is the efficient and influential Democratic boss of Chicago, who has worked overtime at getting Governor Adlai Stevenson into the race in an obvious effort to block Kefauver.

"Mr. Elrod says that he is the leader of the largest Democratic organization in the United States, Chicago's 24th ward," the Kefauver investigative report continues. "He is also county commissioner of Cook county. The county commissioner has charge of roads, court buildings, hospitals, relief, forests, recreation and other similar matters.

"From 1933 to 1942, he was secretary to Colonel Arvey, Chicago's ex-political boss. During part of this time, from 1935 to 1942, Arvey was chairman of the city finance committee. In 1941 to 1945, Elrod was chief deputy bailiff of the Chicago courts at $6,000 per year. Elrod took over the leadership of the 24th ward when Arvey went into the army during World War II . . .

"Elrod showed us pictures of himself and Harry Truman and Vice President Barkley, and telegrams from Truman and Barkley.

"Elrod explained the fact that his name had appeared on certain bail bonds which had been executed on behalf of a reputed brothel operator named Zuta."

"Elrod recently completed a home in Michigan. He says that the total cost of land and house was about $35,000. On the elevator, after the interview, he told Mr. Robinson and myself that he got various things done on this house at cost price and that some things were furnished free. He mentioned the fact that Henry Crown (who is a large real-estate holder in Chicago) gave him certain stones and that he did not ever expect to get a bill for this.

"Henry Crown, who gave $1,000, for the 1950 campaign fund is the money man behind the Hilton Hotels. (Some local investigation might be interested in seeing how Crown makes out on his tax assessments.)"

It might be added that Crown has also been one of the big supporters of the Democratic party in Chicago, secured a lucrative sand and gravel contract with the city when the PWA in Washington helped Chicago build its new subway; also helped finance the purchase of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The Hilton Hotel which he owns in part has been headquarters for leading candidates at both political conventions.

The Kefauver report also contains an interesting sidelight on how Commissioner Elrod used his own political campaign funds for stock speculation.

"Elrod admits borrowing about $12,000 from his campaign fund in order to buy stock and then putting the $12,000 back after he sold the stock," the report stated. "He hoped to make a short time gain but he lost on the stock. He felt that it was okay to use these campaign funds in this manner because the money came from people for whom he had done favors."

This is just one cross-section of how politics and corruption is intermingled in the city of Chicago and why there is such bitter opposition to any Democratic candidate who might clean it out.

Strategy in Stevenson's Speech Emphasizes Why Democrats Need Him as Candidate

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Chicago, July 21—Rarely ever has a national party convention such unanimity at the very outset about the candidate it wants to nominate as it did here on the first day of the convention. For it was apparent in the spontaneous demonstration — as it has been apparent outside the convention hall, in the lobbies and conference rooms of the delegates —that Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois is the man they all want for party leader.

Will he accept if nominated? It seems to be generally agreed that he will. The main reason is that, if he doesn't his political career is finished. He could never get the nomination again once he turned it down. No party likes to name a man only when it suits his convenience to run.

It has been known that Governor Stevenson didn't want to run this year because he was anxious to be reelected governor of Illinois. He has had an idea that it would be more opportune for him to be a candidate four years hence.

But this is the year the Democartic party needs Stevenson. For General Eisenhower is a popular candidate. And none of the men whose names have been actively sponsored — Kefauver, Russell, Harriman, Barkley—is considered strong enough to win against Eisenhower. With Stevenson, the feeling would be one of confidence—with Barkley or anybody else, it would be one of hope against hope, if not despair.

The Illinois governor showed in just a few minutes in the opening proceedings of the convention what a whale of a candidate he would make. His speech was well-thought-out. It was on a higher plane than most political speeches —a sort of throwback to the kind of political speeches President Wilson used to make. When Governor Stevenson urged his party to admit its mistakes and not to condone them by making excuses, he was showing the rank and file how he would steer ahead, when corruption is bound to be a major issue.

He pointed out that the achievements in world policy deserve greater emphasis and his idea apparently is that, if these are kept in mind, the mistakes will have less weight. His strategy for a national campaign oozed out of every paragraph of the speech.

It was easy to see that the delegates liked Stevenson. He is head and shoulders above all the other candidates in total elements of appeal—he has youth, vigor, intellectual capacity, and a successful record as governor of midwestern state. He is skillful enough to walk a tightrope in everything from civil rights to Taft-Hartley "repeal." Leaders in several of the big delegations told this correspondent today: "Stevenson is a natural."

Only, therefore, if Stevenson refuses to accept is there a chance for any of the others.

It seems odd that labor leaders have turned thumbs down on Barkley. It is a lesson to those in public life who go down the line, year after year and in vote after vote, for labor legislation only to find that, when a man of Barkley's fidelity needs the support of labor, the union leaders welch. If ever a man has been pro-labor in Congress, it is Alben Barkley.

But the argument against him is said to be not his labor record but his age. The answer to that point was to select a good vice-presidential nominee for Barkley is as active as any of the other candidates and has had far more experience than any of them not only in the House of Representatives but as majority leader of the Senate.

Barkley's sensational withdrawal with his parting shot against labor union domination of the convention will not soon be forgotten. In 1944 Franklin Roosevelt's advice to vice presidential candidates was "clear with Sydney." The reference was to the late Mr. Hillman who was then a CIO leader. Today the Truman advice is "clear with Phil" for Mr. Murray of the CIO is the real boss here and the ALF goes along as the obedient servant.

So far as speechmaking and external appearances are concerned, this convention has gotten off to a good start. It was smart to put Senator Douglas of Illinois on the program with a defense of the administration's record in Korea. It was a good argument he made as far as it went and it certainly does puncture many of the Republican arguments, but it still doesn't answer satisfactorily the question of why the Truman Administration, after entering the war in Korea, didn't use maximum force to end it. The contention that it would have risked a larger war is no more logical than it was the day the United States, in behalf of the United Nations, decided to intervene. That was the real risk and, once incurred, there is no reason why the conflict should not have been pressed promptly to a military conclusion, thus saving many lives. The Korean War is a difficult issue for both parties. It isn't likely to get primary attention.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, July 21—Senator Dick Nixon, of California, the Republican nominee for the vice presidency, played an important part himself. Robert Stripling, then director of the staff of the House Committee on Un-American Activities; Donald Appel, William A. Wheeler, and Lou Russell, the present chief investigator, were heads-up detectives all the time. The New York Herald Tribune, discredited by its strong partiality to fellow-travelers in the writing trade, the movies and the theatre and by the notorious associations of Joe Barnes, its directing editor for a long time, has been trying for a year to decontaminate itself. To this end, it has been publishing lately a series of puny revelations which only confirm the conspiracy revealed long ago in these dispatches and others of similar type written by reporters with no wraps on them.

There is at this writing an attempt to claim for Bert Andrews, the H-T's Washington man, and thus for the H-T itself, credit for cracking the Hiss case which neither of them deserves. Andrews got a Pulitzer award in reporting a few years ago for a series later put into book form. The title was "Washington Witch Hunt." It wheedled for sympathy for a hypothetical character who came under suspicion in the unorganized effort of the House committee and a few reporters working against odds to expose the Kremlin conspiracy. The Pulitzer award has declined in professional prestige and is now facetiously regarded as a rotating souvenir for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, The New York Times, The Herald Tribune and The World-Telegram and Sun.

Actually the Hiss case was not solved by detective work at all. Nevertheless, Nixon, Stripling and the others did use their heads and worked long hours against the strong opposition of Harry Truman, of hidden forces in the Department of Justice, and of a great deal of the eastern and midwestern New Deal press, The Washington Post, ostensibly Republican, actually said Hiss was a victim of a change in public sentiment, suggesting that in some conditions the treason so plainly implied by the evidence and his conviction would be excusable. The Herald Tribune repeatedly went out of its way to theorize in the direction of innocence of an unfortunate victim of circumstances.

Boy Hears Through His Mouth

David Shaw, deaf since his birth 10 years before, was born without the external auditory canal—it being completely enclosed by bone—can now hear sound and the human voice through his nose or mouth. Upon examination, Dr. Douglas J. Muncie, found David had a deformity of the eustachian tube which leads from behind the nose to the middle ear. He reconstructed the deformed tube under an anesthetic and restored hearing to the boy—leaving the external bony canal intact. Now sounds enter his nose or mouth, go into the reconstructed tube to the round window, and from there to the cochlea and the auditory nerve.

Nearly every casual visitor to Asia writes a book. Tom Dewey's "Journey to the Far Pacific" has value because he brings to the subject the shrewdness of a politician who has managed very well for himself, except that he was twice defeated for President.

It must be recalled that before Tom Dewey became a gang-buster and politician, he was a musician, a baritone. Had he pursued a cultural career rather than one of raking over the muck of human depravity, he might have been a great artist and a lovable person. As it is, he remains everlastingly the prosecutor. Yet, when he was in Japan, he caught the essential fact of American propaganda in Asia as well as in Europe, which is that those peoples are more interested in human culture than in automobiles and washing machines. He says:

"The cultural bars between America and Asia are as nurmerous as the business bars. The Soviet Union not only suffers none of the handicaps under which we struggle in a business way, they have also outstripped us overwhelmingly in their cultural penetration into the free world. Traveling Soviet ballets, orchestras, singers, and artists, as well as every form of Soviet literature, are turning up all over the world in huge quantities. Much of the music and art is entirely unaccompanied by propaganda but it is plainly the most powerful propaganda of all. For us to compete with the Soviet in cultural propaganda would probably cost billions; but as I noted the total absence of any sign of American culture in the Pacific it seemed to me that our defeat in the struggle for the minds of people in this one area alone was so decisive as to require a complete overhauling of our attitude and approach.

"Of course an occasional baseball team or boxer makes a triumphant tour of Japan for profit and does some good; American movies and magazines circulate in the Pacific. But more often than not they deal with the ugliest aspect of American life, frequently exaggerating our defects for purposes of sensationalism or entertainment."

This is absolutely true and has been missed by the Voice of America and all the other propaganda agencies designed to make Asiatics and Europeans love America. Nations are not bought by money, as we are beginning to learn after spending close to $100,000,000,000 trying to prove that they can get cash and credit from the United States almost on request and never to be returned. We even gave Soviet Russia $11,000,000,000 and bought ourselves an enemy.

On the other hand, nations can be won to ideas. This has been the program of Soviet propaganda and it has been extraordinarily effective, even when the ideas are demonstrably false.

Our weakness has been that while we have all the evidence to establish the errors of Marxism, in philosophy as in economics, we have avoided doing ourselves any good, first, because those to whom propaganda has been delegated do not understand the requirements of the task in this century; and secondly, because a theory of the separation of government from religion makes an intelligent discussion of opposition to Marxism officially impossible. As long as that is so, no matter how much we spend to convert nations to a love of us, we shall fail.

There is much in Tom Dewey's book that is interesting and even important. He has grasped the signficance of Formosa and his views on that subject may prove embarrassing to General Eisenhower, who has always deprecated the importance of Asia, particularly Formosa. Tom Dewey's thesis is not the same as General Eisenhower's.

To some phases of this book, I shall return because discussion is necessary, particularly his concept that officials should not be held responsible for the mistakes they make, even if American lives are lost as a result of their errors, because what they said, at the time, represented their best judgment. According to this idea, no one should have held Nero responsible for the burning of Rome, with its consequent human suffering and loss of life—because it represented Nero's best judgment. Must we die because idiots use their judgment? At what point does official responsibility for official acts begin?

MILD DEPRESSIONS

It was Chesterton who stated that "a sleepless night, an attack of indigestion and a rainy morning can make a coward of a man who might otherwise be a hero."

Physicians find that while the majority of their patients complain of fatigue as a prominent symptom, many of them admit that they feel depressed and cannot account for these depressions. Close questioning often reveals the fact that even when they were youngsters they became depressed and discouraged at times. It would seem that some of us get discouraged with the little conflicts of life yet meet the big issues or problems calmly and courageously.

In Medical Clinics of North America, Dr. John G. Dewan, associate professor of psychiatry, University of Toronto, states that "all people experience mood swings. There is no absolute demarcation between ordinary healthy people with more than ordinary mood swings, people with mild depressions and people with severe depressions."

What causes these mood swings? "The generally accepted view is that of multiple causation; that the depression is the result of an interplay of constitutional, physiologic, and social factors." Of course, some of these depressions seem to "come out of the blue," as the physician and patient cannot explain them. "Obviously the behavior and general feeling of the individual depends upon his mood at the time that conflicts and other emotional disturbances are present."

The way the patient lived as a child, his home life and the manner in which the parents treated him determine the way the adult will meet life's difficulties, including depressions. Always in the background and closely involved in the cause of the depression is the degree of resistance in the individual and the elasticity of personality.

"Depression is especially liable to occur at certain periods of life. It is rare in children, not uncommon in early adult life and increasing steadily in the later years when the resiliency or elasticity of youth becomes less due to tissue and vessel changes and to altered outlook on life."

In regard to treatment, it is suggested that the depressed individual should continue to do routine work. Social tensions in the home or elsewhere should be given attention.

The knowledge that the doctor understands his illness tends to dispel the fear and uncertainties of the patient. The medical treatment suggested is Benzedrine or Dexedrine, 5 mg. on arising and at noon, "the most important treatment being the emotional support derived from the doctor-patient relationship."

Tall in the Saddle

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Chicago—You don't have to go any farther than Chicago's 24th ward, sometimes called the west side "terror ward," to understand some of the paradoxes and problems of the Democratic Party.

Democratic committeeman for the 24th Ward is one Arthur X. Elrod, who is also commissioner for Cook county, over which the grimy, unkempt city of Chicago spreads in man-made disarray.

Commissioner Elrod is a congenial, likable politician who is sometimes known in Chicago as the friend of hoodlums. Since the 24th Ward is that where the hoodlums flourish, it is obvious that they have to have friends someplace. But he is also known in Chicago as the friend of some of the biggest Democrats in Washington, and when Vice President Barkley comes to Chicago for a Jackson Day dinner, Artie Elrod is perennially on the reception committee to welcome him. He also has pictures of himself with President Truman and Barkley to prove his friendship.

This is where the paradoxes and problems of the Democratic Party come in. In Chicago, part of the support for the Democrats comes from Artie Elrod. His support in turn comes from the hoodlums. He has been so successful politically and otherwise, that in a few short years he has pariayed his income up to $50,000 a year, though his visible means of support is chiefly from the modest salary paid him by Cook county.

Commissioner Elrod's reputation was such that during the Kefauver crime committee probe he was cross-examined by Kefauver agents. Now as a member of the Illinois delegation naturally he is pulling every possible wire among Democratic leaders to block the nomination of the man who investigated him.

Commissioner Elrod is not unlike some other Democratic stalwarts from the crime-ridden sections of Kansas City, New York, and Miami. They have no more in common with the Democratic leaders of the agricultural south than Estes Kefauver has with Artie Elrod. They disagree on everything from civil rights to oleomargarine to the St. Lawrence Seaway — Everything except the Democratic label.

Their situation is not unlike that which confronted the Republicans in Chicago two weeks ago, when the Old-Guard leaders of the Taft wing of the GOP had local control of the convention. The corruption issue was not involved. But they held sway over the passes, the tickets, the ushers, and the convention machinery. However, the Eisenhower-Deweyites in the end took over.

In Chicago today, it's the big-city wing of the Democratic party with its Commissioner Elrods and others which controls the local mechanics of the convention. And though Senator Kefauver swept the Illinois primary, the Elrods and others who were probed by Kefauver will stop at nothing to block him.

To get a closer look at this paradoxical picture, here is a cross-section of those who contributed to Artie Elrod's political campaign in 1950 to elect him commissioner of Cook county:

"Sugar Joe" Peskin, juke-box dealer and former gang member, $250; Harold Weinstein, Calumet scrap-iron dealer, $500; George Lurie, attorney for gamblers, $200; David Rockola, juke-box dealer, $100; Lon Kaven, bookie, $100; Dave "Dingie" Halpren, bookie, $200; Charles Baron, bookie, $200; Gibby Kaplan, whose Gibby's Cafe is a hangout for hoods, $250; Hi Ginnis, who runs the Tradewinds Cafe, frequented by hoods, $100; John Mack, financial adviser for hoods, $250.

Jake Arvey Helped

Back in 1940, just before Elrod began working for the city of Chicago, he got a salary of $7,840 a year on which he paid an income tax of $206.42. Today his official salary—$7,500—is just about what is was ten years ago but his income is now $50,000.

No wonder the city council of Chicago has just voted 40 to 7 not to send out the "mink coat" questionnaires which were sent to all policemen in New York and Washington, D. C., and which incidentally the new Attorney General James McGranery has refused to send to government officials in Washington.

When Kefauver investigators questioned Commissioner Elrod on how he was able to make so much money despite his modest official salary, his answer, according to their official report was as follows:

"Elrod states that his miscellaneous income picked up appreciably when Jake Arvey went into the army, because he then took over some of the influence that Arvey had previously had. He says he doesn't know what, if anything, Arvey received in exchange for favors."

Arvey, of course, is the efficient and influential Democratic boss of Chicago, who has worked overtime at getting Governor Adlai Stevenson into the race in an obvious effort to block Kefauver.

"Mr. Elrod says that he is the leader of the largest Democratic organization in the United States, Chicago's 24th ward," the Kefauver investigative report continues. "He is also county commissioner of Cook county. The county commissioner has charge of roads, court buildings, hospitals, relief, forests, recreation and other similar matters.

"From 1933 to 1942, he was secretary to Colonel Arvey, Chicago's ex-political boss. During part of this time, from 1935 to 1942, Arvey was chairman of the city finance committee. In 1941 to 1945, Elrod was chief deputy bailiff of the Chicago courts at $6,000 per year. Elrod took over the leadership of the 24th ward when Arvey went into the army during World War II . . .

"Elrod showed us pictures of himself and Harry Truman and Vice President Barkley, and telegrams from Truman and Barkley.

"Elrod explained the fact that his name had appeared on certain bail bonds which had been executed on behalf of a reputed brothel operator named Zuta."

"Elrod recently completed a home in Michigan. He says that the total cost of land and house was about $35,000. On the elevator, after the interview, he told Mr. Robinson and myself that he got various things done on this house at cost price and that some things were furnished free. He mentioned the fact that Henry Crown (who is a large real-estate holder in Chicago) gave him certain stones and that he did not ever expect to get a bill for this.

"Henry Crown, who gave $1,000, for the 1950 campaign fund is the money man behind the Hilton Hotels. (Some local investigation might be interested in seeing how Crown makes out on his tax assessments.)"

It might be added that Crown has also been one of the big supporters of the Democratic party in Chicago, secured a lucrative sand and gravel contract with the city when the PWA in Washington helped Chicago build its new subway; also helped finance the purchase of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The Hilton Hotel which he owns in part has been headquarters for leading candidates at both political conventions.

The Kefauver report also contains an interesting sidelight on how Commissioner Elrod used his own political campaign funds for stock speculation.

"Elrod admits borrowing about $12,000 from his campaign fund in order to buy stock and then putting the $12,000 back after he sold the stock," the report stated. "He hoped to make a short time gain but he lost on the stock. He felt that it was okay to use these campaign funds in this manner because the money came from people for whom he had done favors."

This is just one cross-section of how politics and corruption is intermingled in the city of Chicago and why there is such bitter opposition to any Democratic candidate who might clean it out.

Ripley's—Believe It or Not!

Boy Hears Through His Mouth

David Shaw, deaf since his birth 10 years before, was born without the external auditory canal—it being completely enclosed by bone—can now hear sound and the human voice through his nose or mouth. Upon examination, Dr. Douglas J. Muncie, found David had a deformity of the eustachian tube which leads from behind the nose to the middle ear. He reconstructed the deformed tube under an anesthetic and restored hearing to the boy—leaving the external bony canal intact. Now sounds enter his nose or mouth, go into the reconstructed tube to the round window, and from there to the cochlea and the auditory nerve.

Strategy in Stevenson's Speech Emphasizes Why Democrats Need Him as Candidate

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Chicago, July 21—Rarely ever has a national party convention such unanimity at the very outset about the candidate it wants to nominate as it did here on the first day of the convention. For it was apparent in the spontaneous demonstration — as it has been apparent outside the convention hall, in the lobbies and conference rooms of the delegates —that Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois is the man they all want for party leader.

Will he accept if nominated? It seems to be generally agreed that he will. The main reason is that, if he doesn't his political career is finished. He could never get the nomination again once he turned it down. No party likes to name a man only when it suits his convenience to run.

It has been known that Governor Stevenson didn't want to run this year because he was anxious to be reelected governor of Illinois. He has had an idea that it would be more opportune for him to be a candidate four years hence.

But this is the year the Democartic party needs Stevenson. For General Eisenhower is a popular candidate. And none of the men whose names have been actively sponsored — Kefauver, Russell, Harriman, Barkley—is considered strong enough to win against Eisenhower. With Stevenson, the feeling would be one of confidence—with Barkley or anybody else, it would be one of hope against hope, if not despair.

The Illinois governor showed in just a few minutes in the opening proceedings of the convention what a whale of a candidate he would make. His speech was well-thought-out. It was on a higher plane than most political speeches —a sort of throwback to the kind of political speeches President Wilson used to make. When Governor Stevenson urged his party to admit its mistakes and not to condone them by making excuses, he was showing the rank and file how he would steer ahead, when corruption is bound to be a major issue.

He pointed out that the achievements in world policy deserve greater emphasis and his idea apparently is that, if these are kept in mind, the mistakes will have less weight. His strategy for a national campaign oozed out of every paragraph of the speech.

It was easy to see that the delegates liked Stevenson. He is head and shoulders above all the other candidates in total elements of appeal—he has youth, vigor, intellectual capacity, and a successful record as governor of midwestern state. He is skillful enough to walk a tightrope in everything from civil rights to Taft-Hartley "repeal." Leaders in several of the big delegations told this correspondent today: "Stevenson is a natural."

Only, therefore, if Stevenson refuses to accept is there a chance for any of the others.

It seems odd that labor leaders have turned thumbs down on Barkley. It is a lesson to those in public life who go down the line, year after year and in vote after vote, for labor legislation only to find that, when a man of Barkley's fidelity needs the support of labor, the union leaders welch. If ever a man has been pro-labor in Congress, it is Alben Barkley.

But the argument against him is said to be not his labor record but his age. The answer to that point was to select a good vice-presidential nominee for Barkley is as active as any of the other candidates and has had far more experience than any of them not only in the House of Representatives but as majority leader of the Senate.

Barkley's sensational withdrawal with his parting shot against labor union domination of the convention will not soon be forgotten. In 1944 Franklin Roosevelt's advice to vice presidential candidates was "clear with Sydney." The reference was to the late Mr. Hillman who was then a CIO leader. Today the Truman advice is "clear with Phil" for Mr. Murray of the CIO is the real boss here and the ALF goes along as the obedient servant.

So far as speechmaking and external appearances are concerned, this convention has gotten off to a good start. It was smart to put Senator Douglas of Illinois on the program with a defense of the administration's record in Korea. It was a good argument he made as far as it went and it certainly does puncture many of the Republican arguments, but it still doesn't answer satisfactorily the question of why the Truman Administration, after entering the war in Korea, didn't use maximum force to end it. The contention that it would have risked a larger war is no more logical than it was the day the United States, in behalf of the United Nations, decided to intervene. That was the real risk and, once incurred, there is no reason why the conflict should not have been pressed promptly to a military conclusion, thus saving many lives. The Korean War is a difficult issue for both parties. It isn't likely to get primary attention.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago, July 21—Senator Dick Nixon, of California, the Republican nominee for the vice presidency, played an important part himself, Robert Stripling, then director of the staff of the House Committee on Un-American Activities; Donald Appel, William A. Wheeler, and Lou Russell, the present chief investigator, were heads-up detectives all the time. The New York Herald Tribune, discredited by its strong partiality to fellow-travelers in the writing trade, the movies and the theatre and by the notorious associations of Joe Barnes, its directing editor for a long time, has been trying for a year to decontaminate itself. To this end, it has been publishing lately a series of puny revelations which only confirm the conspiracy revealed long ago in these dispatches and others of similar type written by reporters with no wraps on them.

There is at this writing an attempt to claim for Bert Andrews, the H-T's Washington man, and thus for the H-T itself, credit for cracking the Hiss case which neither of them deserves. Andrews got a Pulitzer award in reporting a few years ago for a series later put into book form. The title was "Washington Witch Hunt." It wheedled for sympathy for a hypothetical character who came under suspicion in the unorganized effort of the House committee and a few reporters working against odds to expose the Kremlin conspiracy. The Pulitzer award has declined in professional prestige and is now facetiously regarded as a rotating souvenir for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, The New York Times, The Herald Tribune and The World-Telegram and Sun.

Actually the Hiss case was not solved by detective work at all. Nevertheless, Nixon, Stripling and the others did use their heads and worked long hours against the strong opposition of Harry Truman, of hidden forces in the Department of Justice, and of a great deal of the eastern and midwestern New Deal press. The Washington Post, ostensibly Republican, actually said Hiss was a victim of a change in public sentiment, suggesting that in some conditions the treason so plainly implied by the evidence and his conviction would be excusable. The Herald Tribune repeatedly went out of its way to theorize in the direction of innocence of an unfortunate victim of circumstances.

Actually the Hiss case was broken by one of the attorneys for Hiss in a slander suit against Whittaker Chambers. During a preliminary examination of Mrs.

Myers Accepts Stevenson Job

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Pennsylvania was another step deeper today into the drive to draft Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois for the Democratic presidential nomination.

This came about when former Sen. Francis J. Myers, chairman of the 70-vote Pennsylvania group, agreed to accept the floor leadership of the Stevenson supporters.

Thus one of the two most powerful leaders of the Pennsylvanians plunged into the thick of the fight, and there was no question how Myers' colleague, National Committeeman David Lawrence, mayor of Pittsburgh, viewed the situation. Myers and Lawrence, working as a team, engineered the unexpected Sunday night roll call of delegate preferences that showed 33 leaning to Stevenson.

In joining the volunteer Stevenson group that has been operating despite the governor's frequent statements that he does not want the nomination, Myers disclosed he never had met Stevenson.

Doesn't Know Him

"I don't know the governor, but I admire him very much and believe sincerely that he is the best candidate for the party," Myers told a reporter.

But even while Myers was moving farther into the Stevenson camp, Pennsylvania supporters of Sen. Estes Kefauver met to study tactics and muster additional voting strength beyond the 14½ recorded for the Tennessean Sunday.

Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia banker, in whose hotel suite the meeting was held, said the Kefauver group had received pledges of support from four additional Pennsylvania delegates and planned to seek the support of 15 others.

Returns Here

MATHEW MORGAN

Mathew Morgan, former president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, has returned to this city after an absence of two and one-half years, and has been appointed manager of Ellis G.E. Appliances, 121 North Front street.

Morgan was manager of the Union-Fern store in Kingston for about five years. In 1949, he was transferred to Utica and became manager of the chain's retail store in that city.

At the time of his transfer, Morgan was president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, a director of the retail merchants' division of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, and secretary of the Shriners' Club.

In the two and one-half years since he left this city, Morgan reports, he and his family returned here each summer for vacation. They intend now to make Kingston their permanent home.

At present, Morgan's wife, Florence, and children, Peter, Paula and Morton, are living in Schenectady, but will move here as soon as living quarters are located.

In taking over the active management of the Ellis G.E. Appliance store, Morgan reported that the entire premises are being revamped. The store handles a complete line of appliances and furniture.

Keresman Among Group to Study Retirement Plan

Peter Keresman, secretary of the Police Conference of New York State, has accepted membership on a committee to explore the question of federal social security coverage for state and local employes, particularly for those who presently are not covered by any pension retirement plan.

In his communication requesting Secretary Keresman to serve, J. Raymond McGovern, state comptroller, declared that "one of the most perplexing problems confronting government today, especially the State of New York, is the question of pension retirement benefits. Some employes of local units of govermnent are entirely without benefit of any retirement program, and some employe groups have been advocating the adoption of federal social coverage.

"Governor Dewey recently requested me to undertake a study of the matter and, for the purpose of the study, I am creating a committee of prominent, representative citizens who are interested in or familiar with the problem.

"While some adjustment of the existing benefits may be considered, it is not intended that a general revision of the entire state's program will be undertaken. The committee, however, will definitely explore the question of federal social security coverage for state and local employes, particularly for those who are presently not covered by any plan."

The Hatch-Metcalf Bill

Editor, The Freeman:

I have read the letter of Henry Lambert Bibby, M.D. which was printed in the July 16 issue of your paper and I would like to make a few comments also.

If any of the doctor's statements help in the dissemination of knowledge, enlightment and understanding to any one, I, personally, still remain ignorant, prejudiced, etc.

I note the doctor's first impulse was to resign from the S.P.C.A. I was a subscribing member in 1950 and 1951 but have not joined this year as I feel the S.P.C.A. should have put up a fight and defeated this bill. I procured several new members last year and would be now selling some blocks for the shelter to be erected but I do not see much use in having a shelter for animals that can be requisitioned for research work.

So—"man's good friend is PRIVILEGED once again to serve in the cause of man's welfare" instead of being consigned to a gas chamber. Some privilege. Does any one think any one of these animals would not prefer a quick death in a gas chamber. I do wish the doctor would plainly state just what "scientific investigation" consists of. Can he state that none of the animals will be used for vivisection?

Sincerely yours,
MARY L. NEWMAN

Wallkill, July 22—Miss Jacqueline Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Campbell of Ossining, formerly of Wallkill, became the bride of Clyde Birch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Birch of Walden, at 2 p. m. July 4, in an informal ceremony performed at St. Benedict's Church in Wallkill.

The bride was attired in a white organdy street length dress and wore a lace picture hat. She carried a white satin prayer book with cascade of gladioli.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Fair View Dining Terrace in Walden.

The bride is a graduate of Walden High School. Her husband employed at the M and M. Photo service in Newburgh also attended Walden High School and has served three years in the United States Navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wadlin of Largo, Fla., were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Masten. Mrs. Masten and her sister, Mrs. Wadlin, have been visiting at the home of their mother, Mrs. Anna Ellis of Endicott.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Portuondo and family recently entertained relatives and friends from Havana, Cuba. The Portuondo family also made a trip to New York, visiting relatives.

Mrs. Peggy VanderEssen recently spent a weekend visiting in New Jersey. Peter and Ronnie VanderEssen were guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil VanderEssen, of Dwaarkill. Also guests of the VanderEssen home were Mr. and Mrs. Emil DeMeyer and Evelyn and Mrs. Betty Tantillo of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Harold Titus and children, Thomas, Lee, and Donna, have returned home after a two week vacation at Fairfield, Conn., with her family, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Humphrey and Mrs. Lillian Brogan and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Burmeister have returned from a trip to New York, Long Island and Montauk Point, where they visited friends and relatives.

Miss Alice Sloan is vacationing at Nova Scotia after several weeks of rest at her Wallkill home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Hill and daughter, Barbara, of Monroe, were Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Terwilliger.

Mrs. S. Ellis Masten and children, Katie and Jackie, were guests on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Morris and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Washburn are the parents of a daughter, Kathryn Grace. Mrs. Washburn is the former Margaret DeGroodt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira DeVoe are the parents of a son, Douglas Ira, born July 15. Mrs. DeVoe is the former Kathleen Wickes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wickes of Wallkill.

Myers Accepts Stevenson Job

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Pennsylvania was another step deeper today into the drive to draft Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois for the Democratic presidential nomination.

This came about when former Sen. Francis J. Myers, chairman of the 70-vote Pennsylvania group, agreed to accept the floor leadership of the Stevenson supporters.

Thus one of the two most powerful leaders of the Pennsylvanians plunged into the thick of the fight, and there was no question how Myers' colleague, National Committeeman David Lawrence, mayor of Pittsburgh, viewed the situation. Myers and Lawrence, working as a team, engineered the unexpected Sunday night roll call of delegate preferences that showed 33 leaning to Stevenson.

In joining the volunteer Stevenson group that has been operating despite the governor's frequent statements that he does not want the nomination, Myers disclosed he never had met Stevenson.

Doesn't Know Him

"I don't know the governor, but I admire him very much and believe sincerely that he is the best candidate for the party," Myers told a reporter.

But even while Myers was moving farther into the Stevenson camp, Pennsylvania supporters of Sen. Estes Kefauver met to study tactics and muster additional voting strength beyond the 14½ recorded for the Tennessean Sunday.

Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia banker, in whose hotel suite the meeting was held, said the Kefauver group had received pledges of support from four additional Pennsylvania delegates and planned to seek the support of 15 others.

Returns Here

MATHEW MORGAN

Mathew Morgan, former president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, has returned to this city after an absence of two and one-half years, and has been appointed manager of Ellis G.E. Appliances, 121 North Front street.

Morgan was manager of the Union-Fern store in Kingston for about five years. In 1949, he was transferred to Utica and became manager of the chain's retail store in that city.

At the time of his transfer, Morgan was president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, a director of the retail merchants' division of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, and secretary of the Shriners' Club.

In the two and one-half years since he left this city, Morgan reports, he and his family returned here each summer for vacation. They intend now to make Kingston their permanent home.

At present, Morgan's wife, Florence, and children, Peter, Paula and Morton, are living in Schenectady, but will move here as soon as living quarters are located.

In taking over the active management of the Ellis G.E. Appliance store, Morgan reported that the entire premises are being revamped. The store handles a complete line of appliances and furniture.

Keresman Among Group to Study Retirement Plan

Peter Keresman, secretary of the Police Conference of New York State, has accepted membership on a committee to explore the question of federal social security coverage for state and local employes, particularly for those who presently are not covered by any pension retirement plan.

In his communication requesting Secretary Keresman to serve, J. Raymond McGovern, state comptroller, declared that "one of the most perplexing problems confronting government today, especially the State of New York, is the question of pension retirement benefits. Some employes of local units of govermnent are entirely without benefit of any retirement program, and some employe groups have been advocating the adoption of federal social coverage.

"Governor Dewey recently requested me to undertake a study of the matter and, for the purpose of the study, I am creating a committee of prominent, representative citizens who are interested in or familiar with the problem.

"While some adjustment of the existing benefits may be considered, it is not intended that a general revision of the entire state's program will be undertaken. The committee, however, will definitely explore the question of federal social security coverage for state and local employes, particularly for those who are presently not covered by any plan."

The Hatch-Metcalf Bill

Editor, The Freeman:

I have read the letter of Henry Lambert Bibby, M.D. which was printed in the July 16 issue of your paper and I would like to make a few comments also.

If any of the doctor's statements help in the dissemination of knowledge, enlightment and understanding to any one, I, personally, still remain ignorant, prejudiced, etc.

I note the doctor's first impulse was to resign from the S.P.C.A. I was a subscribing member in 1950 and 1951 but have not joined this year as I feel the S.P.C.A. should have put up a fight and defeated this bill. I procured several new members last year and would be now selling some blocks for the shelter to be erected but I do not see much use in having a shelter for animals that can be requisitioned for research work.

So—"man's good friend is PRIVILEGED once again to serve in the cause of man's welfare" instead of being consigned to a gas chamber. Some privilege. New Yorkers Seen Ready to Ballot For Illinois Figure

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — Large numbers of New York delegates to the Democratic convention were itching today to leave Averell Harriman in the lurch and jump on a bandwagon for Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

Many members of the 98-member delegation said privately they believe Harriman's bid for the presidential nomination is as good as down the drain. And they said they were eager to get on the "right side" as soon as possible.

It appeared, therefore, only a matter of time before most of the delegation would desert the Harriman banner.

Meanwhile, the New York leaders, who also are leading the fight for Harriman on a national scale, predicted that an overwhelming majority of the Empire State delegation would vote for Harriman on the first and possibly the second ballot.

Lehman's Estimate

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, delegation chairman, estimated Harriman would get 80 to 85 votes from New York in the "early balloting."

What they would do when the chips are really down, Lehman did not care to forecast.

Even the convention's endorsement early today of the delegate "loyalty" pledge proposed by the Harriman forces was not expected to improve the chances of the mutual security director.

The New York delegation met twice in caucus yesterday but were not asked to stand and be counted on their preferences for the presidential nomination.

Roll Call Abandoned

At the first session, in the morning, a roll call was abandoned because, State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick said, the delegation wanted to attend the opening session of the convention.

At the second session, last evening, with Lehman presiding, there was no roll call either. The senator said a majority of the degates were not present. He said those in attendance numbered only 45 or 46.

The delegation is scheduled to caucus again tomorrow morning. Some observers believed that by that time the Stevenson bandwagon would be rolling fast and that the New York delegates would be hopping aboard.

Small Town Barber

I'm a small town barber, with just one chair.
But I can shave whiskers and trim up hair.
Shampoos and tonics, and straight parts give,
While listening to tales and narrative.

White, black, blond, or red of crown,
I can trim to look like their ears were let down.
My razor just glides over many a face,
The clippers I wield with a natural grace.

The towels I shake, the lather I flip,
And I can leave shapes on the upper lip.
But when shiny domes come, and bemoan their fate,
How can I grow hair on an old bald pate?

How to Choose Apricots

When you are buying fresh apricots, choose ones that are of a rich gold color; pale greenish apricots are hard and tasteless. A pound of apricots usually contains eight to ten. They may be served for dessert as is, used in combination with other fruits, or they may be sliced and served with sugar and cream.

Ulcers Force Bergman To Leave Ocean Liner

Panama, Panama, July 22 (AP)—Robert B. Bergman, of West Islip, N. Y., was improving at Gorgas Hospital today after an attack of peptic ulcers which forced him to leave the liner Santa Cecilia at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

Hospital attaches said the Long Islander's condition was good.

Bergman was flown here yesterday from Guayaquil by a plane of the U. S. Air Force's First Rescue Squadron.

The liner had landed him there to meet the plane.

Carpet Workers To Vote Contract

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—CIO workers of the Mohawk Carpet Co. local will cast ballots tomorrow and Thursday on a proposed contract that may end their strike, now in its eighth week.

Members of Local 789 of the CIO Textile Workers Union decided yesterday to cancel a scheduled voice vote on whether to ratify the new contract, and arranged the written balloting.

Company and union officials agreed last Friday on terms of a contract, including a provision for a 7-cent-an-hour wage increase and a compromise on other issues.

Details were not disclosed, but Mohawk and union officials said the contract covered wage rate provisions on certain jobs, overtime, and the wage-rate differential between the subsidiary plant at Hudson Falls and the large plant here.

The 4,000 Mohawk employes and 14,000 other carpet workers in the northeast struck June 2 in support of a demand for a 25-cent hourly wage increase. The average pay in the industry was $1.66.

On July 12 union members rejected a settlement proposal that included a 7-cent-an-hour increase.

At the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co. plant here the situation has not changed since July 2 when the company and union broke off negotiations.

There are three Norwegian and three Russian settlements on Vest Spitsbergen, largest island of the Spitsbergen archipelago.

Grange News

Farm Safety Week this year falls on July 21-26. This doesn't mean that everyone on farms is going to be safe for one week. It means we should all stop, look and listen to safety precautions that can help us live less dangerous lives than we do. Almost five per cent of all accidental deaths occur on the farm. Haying, repair and construction of buildings, and children playing around machinery account for the majority of cases. Since farming is the most hazardous occupation, those of us who work there should be alert to the dangerousness of carelessness. Routine chores are responsible for a third of farm accidents, and more than half occur in barn or barnyard. Accident insurance can give financial aid, but there is nothing that can bring back a loved one, or replace a lost limb. Make sure that you have taken all the safety precautions possible—every day of the year—then, be careful.

Better Gardens for Better Living, the Grange 1952 farm practice project, is getting a real boost on Rural Radio Network through a series of regular Saturday morning programs at 7:30. Grange members, and lecturers in particular, are invited to send their garden questions in to Prof. C. B. Raymond, at New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, and listen for his answers on the program. This is an all-Grange, whole-family project.

Lecturers' Conference for middle Atlantic states held at the University of Maryland earlier this month was apparently well represented by this state, and we have already talked with several lecturers who brought back enthusiastic results of their attending. As one of them told us, "we can best make our report in the manner in which we develop the ideas and plans we gained there, and that's the way our Granges will benefit." That's a sensible attitude and we hope you will hear from them, and make plans for our own lecturers's schools.

Tin plate is in very short supply, and if stocks are not forthcoming immediately, there will be a general shortage of cans by August 15. This means that we will be able to pack most of the crops available now, but about the time tomatoes and other fall canning crops hit the market they will just have to stay in the fields as a result of this steel stoppage. Without tossing around loose criticism, it's high time that Americans realize that our country just cannot afford this kind of a situation, and everybody should understand it.

New Yorkers Seen Ready to Ballot For Illinois Figure

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — Large numbers of New York delegates to the Democratic convention were itching today to leave Averell Harriman in the lurch and jump on a bandwagon for Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

Many members of the 98-member delegation said privately they believe Harriman's bid for the presidential nomination is as good as down the drain. And they said they were eager to get on the "right side" as soon as possible.

It appeared, therefore, only a matter of time before most of the delegation would desert the Harriman banner.

Meanwhile, the New York leaders, who also are leading the fight for Harriman on a national scale, predicted that an overwhelming majority of the Empire State delegation would vote for Harriman on the first and possibly the second ballot.

Lehman's Estimate

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, delegation chairman, estimated Harriman would get 80 to 85 votes from New York in the "early balloting."

What they would do when the chips are really down, Lehman did not care to forecast.

Even the convention's endorsement early today of the delegate "loyalty" pledge proposed by the Harriman forces was not expected to improve the chances of the mutual security director.

The New York delegation met twice in caucus yesterday but were not asked to stand and be counted on their preferences for the presidential nomination.

Roll Call Abandoned

At the first session, in the morning, a roll call was abandoned because, State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick said, the delegation wanted to attend the opening session of the convention.

At the second session, last evening, with Lehman presiding, there was no roll call either. The senator said a majority of the delegates were not present. He said those in attendance numbered only 45 or 46.

The delegation is scheduled to caucus again tomorrow morning. Some observers believed that by that time the Stevenson bandwagon would be rolling fast and that the New York delegates would be hopping aboard.

Small Town Barber

I'm a small town barber, with just one chair.
But I can shave whiskers and trim up hair.
Shampoos and tonics, and straight parts give,
While listening to tales and narrative.

White, black, blond, or red of crown,
I can trim to look like their ears were let down.
My razor just glides over many a face,
The clippers I wield with a natural grace.

The towels I shake, the lather I flip,
And I can leave shapes on the upper lip.
But when shiny domes come, and bemoan their fate,
How can I grow hair on an old bald pate?

How to Choose Apricots

When you are buying fresh apricots, choose ones that are of a rich gold color; pale greenish apricots are hard and tasteless. A pound of apricots usually contains eight to ten. They may be served for dessert as is, used in combination with other fruits, or they may be sliced and served with sugar and cream.

Ulcers Force Bergman To Leave Ocean Liner

Panama, Panama, July 22 (AP)—Robert B. Bergman, of West Islip, N. Y., was improving at Gorgas Hospital today after an attack of peptic ulcers which forced him to leave the liner Santa Cecilia at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

Hospital attaches said the Long Islander's condition was good.

Bergman was flown here yesterday from Guayaquil by a plane of the U. S. Air Force's First Rescue Squadron.

The liner had landed him there to meet the plane.

Carpet Workers To Vote Contract

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—CIO workers of the Mohawk Carpet Co. local will cast ballots tomorrow and Thursday on a proposed contract that may end their strike, now in its eighth week.

Members of Local 789 of the CIO Textile Workers Union decided yesterday to cancel a scheduled voice vote on whether to ratify the new contract, and arranged the written balloting.

Company and union officials agreed last Friday on terms of a contract, including a provision for a 7-cent-an-hour wage increase and a compromise on other issues.

Details were not disclosed, but Mohawk and union officials said the contract covered wage rate provisions on certain jobs, overtime, and the wage-rate differential between the subsidiary plant at Hudson Falls and the large plant here.

The 4,000 Mohawk employes and 14,000 other carpet workers in the northeast struck June 2 in support of a demand for a 25-cent hourly wage increase. The average pay in the industry was $1.66.

On July 12 union members rejected a settlement proposal that included a 7-cent-an-hour increase.

At the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co. plant here the situation has not changed since July 2 when the company and union broke off negotiations.

There are three Norwegian and three Russian settlements on Vest Spitsbergen, largest island of the Spitsbergen archipelago.

Grange News

Farm Safety Week this year falls on July 21-26. This doesn't mean that everyone on farms is going to be safe for one week. It means we should all stop, look and listen to safety precautions that can help us live less dangerous lives than we do. Almost five per cent of all accidental deaths occur on the farm. Haying, repair and construction of buildings, and children playing around machinery account for the majority of cases. Since farming is the most hazardous occupation, those of us who work there should be alert to the dangerousness of carelessness. Routine chores are responsible for a third of farm accidents, and more than half occur in barn or barnyard. Accident insurance can give financial aid, but there is nothing that can bring back a loved one, or replace a lost limb. Make sure that you have taken all the safety precautions possible—every day of the year—then, be careful.

Better Gardens for Better Living, the Grange 1952 farm practice project, is getting a real boost on Rural Radio Network through a series of regular Saturday morning programs at 7:30. Grange members, and lecturers in particular, are invited to send their garden questions in to Prof. C. B. Raymond, at New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, and listen for his answers on the program. This is an all-Grange, whole-family project.

Lecturers' Conference for middle Atlantic states held at the University of Maryland earlier this month was apparently well represented by this state, and we have already talked with several lecturers who brought back enthusiastic results of their attending. As one of them told us, "we can best make our report in the manner in which we develop the ideas and plans we gained there, and that's the way our Granges will benefit." That's a sensible attitude and we hope you will hear from them, and make plans for our own lecturers's schools.

Tin plate is in very short supply, and if stocks are not forthcoming immediately, there will be a general shortage of cans by August 15. This means that we will be able to pack most of the crops available now, but about the time tomatoes and other fall canning crops hit the market they will just have to stay in the fields as a result of this steel stoppage. Without tossing around loose criticism, it's high time that Americans realize that our country just cannot afford this kind of a situation, and everybody should understand it.

Dental Clinics Are Planned 3 Days

A series of dental clinics for preschool children, ages 3 to 5, will be conducted at the Clinic Rooms at 25 East O'Reilly street, Kingston, on July 30, 31, and Aug. 1, Dr. Robert H. Broad, commissioner of Health of Ulster county, announced today.

The July 30 clinic is only for children who have had previous applications of sodium fluoride. Parents of these children are urged to make an appointment on this day for re-examination and cleaning of the teeth. The clinics on July 31 and Aug. 1 are for children who have not had applications of sodium fluoride and have not attended a fluoride clinic.

In these clinics, the children will have their teeth examined and will also be able to see dental equipment.

Application of sodium fluoride to aid in the prevention of tooth decay will be started at this time.

Parents of preschool children who are interested and would like their children to attend the clinics are urged to call the Health Department at Kingston 5300 for an appointment.

July Has Recorded Its Hottest Weather

New York, July 22 (AP)—This July—as of yesterday—was about the hottest recorded here in Weather Bureau history.

The forecast for today — the 11th day in a sustained heat wave in the Metropolitan area—was a high temperature in the 90's.

A low in the 70's tonight and a high in the 90's again tomorrow were in store, the Weather Bureau said.

The weather was expected to continue muggy today, tonight and tomorrow with scattered thunder storms today and again tomorrow toward evening.

As for the heat—the highest mean maximum monthly temperature in New York city was 87 degrees in July, 1876. Including yesterday's top temperature of 89.8 at 1:50 p. m. (EST), the mean maximum temperature for this month so far was 86.9.

Thundershowers which hit part of New York city yesterday sent the mercury down to 74 degrees at 3 p. m. (EST). Then it started to climb again.

As the mercury dropped, the humidity soared.

During the rain there were numerous reports of flooded streets, loose wires and fallen trees, mostly in Queens.

The record high temperature for today—July 22—was 97.1 degrees in 1926. Lowest for the day was 55 degrees in 1873.

I'm sometimes astonished to see the amount of wasted motion that goes on in a game of bridge. Even a good player sometimes fiddles about with useless plays and gets himself into the wrong hand. Today's hand furnishes a horrible example of this type of misplay.

West opened the three of spades, East put up the king and South won with the ace. Declarer entered the dummy with the king of clubs in order to return a low trump, and the appearance of East's queen should have clarified the trump situation.

South covered with the king of trumps and West won with the ace. West returned a club, and South won in his own hand with the queen.

At this point declarer should have led a diamond towards dummy. This play would have to be made sooner or later, and there was no reason to postpone it.

Instead, however, South led a trump to dummy's jack. This told him nothing that he didn't already know and served only to put him in the dummy when he wanted to be in his own hand.

South now had to get back to his own hand with the queen of spades, in order to lead a diamond. West ducked and dummy won with the king.

South still had a chance to make his contract by cashing dummy's top club, but he muffed this play also. Instead he returned to his hand with the ten of hearts.

Now he couldn't afford to cash the jack of spades, since West would get in with the ace of diamonds and could then draw the last trump and take a spade trick. South therefore had to lead another diamond towards the dummy.

West stepped up with the ace of diamonds, cashed his high trump, and put dummy in with a club. This left dummy with a losing diamond, which was enough to defeat the contract, and South's good jack of spades went to sleep.

"Guess I need a new pair of glasses," South admitted sheepishly, after this pitiful exhibition.

"You need more than that," his partner grimly replied. "Why don't you try radar?"

Harmony Is Their Goal

Lake Placid, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—The New York State Sheriffs' Association hold that the key to efficient law enforcement is "working harmony" among police agencies and not "bureaucratic plans imposed on localities." That was the gist of a report submitted yesterday to the 18th annual sheriffs conference by Louis R. Yaguda, association counsel and executive director. The sheriffs adopted the report at their first business session. "What we need in this state above all is a better understanding and working harmony that will bind all police agencies into a sincere, voluntary, co-operative unit," the report affirmed. "For it is by such unity, without subordination of one group to the other, that the best results can be obtained."

"My heart leaps up when I behold ...my Bill!"

BILL and I went along like a breeze for ten beautiful years. Three kids, good luck . . . and the future stretching out like diamonds on a dewy morning.

Then, in a matter of months, we slipped. Bill was taken off the road and put inside. A promotion, so they said; but it didn't work that way. He'd come home, night after night, all frazzled, shot.

"Meetings," he'd say . . . "conferences, people, noise, confusion. I can't take it inside, Grace: I just don't seem to get the score."

That's when I put on my thinking cap. Bill's always been a little hard-of-hearing.

"Bill," I said, "if you're going to hold that inside job, you've simply got to hear . . . perfectly, clearly, every word and every inflection. What you need is a hearing aid."

"Who, me?" he answered. "Why, Grace, I'm only 33."

"So what!" I said. "There are thousands of men under 33, and women too, who need hearing-aids and who are smart enough to wear them. Would anybody think you were smart to go without glasses if you had a squint? Same with hearing-aids. They're in the same class . . . exactly. Think it over!"

Bill did! He bought a hearing-aid that weighs a few ounces. Size of a cigarette package, and fits in his shirt pocket.

Now Bill can hear... inside, outside, wherever he is. He's back on the team and going strong.

The poet Wordsworth said, "My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky." It's like that with me – but I don't need any rainbow. My heart leaps up when I behold . . . my Bill!

See Strong Support For Stevenson in Connecticut Vote

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey reported today there is strong support in Connecticut's delegation to the Democratic convention for the presidential nomination of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

The state's 16 votes are pledged to Connecticut Sen. Brien McMahon, ill in a Washington hospital. But none doubted that early word will come from his bedside freeing the delegation.

Bailey, who until today had refused to talk about second choice candidates, told newsmen:

"There is more than considerable favorable talk for Governor Stevenson. This was reflected by discussions in the caucus and discussions by the delegates after the caucus."

Bailey, acting delegation chairman in McMahon's absence, referred to a caucus held last night at which Stevenson's name, and his only, was brought up.

Asked by newsmen later what McMahon's reaction would be to Stevenson, Bailey said:

"I know that Senator McMahon has always been very friendly and a great admirer of Governor Stevenson."

Before quitting the caucus room for the convention hall, the delegates, acceding to McMahon's wish, chose John M. Golden of New Haven as the new national committeeman.

He was named by a 14 to 1 vote to succeed Paul R. Connery of Norwalk. Mrs. Dorothy Satti of New London was unanimously chosen national committeewoman to succeed Mrs. Mary Flyn of Southington.

McMahon was represented as delighted over Golden's election.

There had been some pre-caucus talk of opposition to Golden. But it virtually disappeared after McMahon sent a message that he was "100 per cent for Golden."

I'm sometimes astonished to see the amount of wasted motion that goes on in a game of bridge. Even a good player sometimes fiddles about with useless plays and gets himself into the wrong hand. Today's hand furnishes a horrible example of this type of misplay.

West opened the three of spades, East put up the king and South won with the ace. Declarer entered the dummy with the king of clubs in order to return a low trump, and the appearance of East's queen should have clarified the trump situation.

South covered with the king of trumps and West won with the ace. West returned a club, and South won in his own hand with the queen.

At this point declarer should have led a diamond towards dummy. This play would have to be made sooner or later, and there was no reason to postpone it.

Instead, however, South led a trump to dummy's jack. This told him nothing that he didn't already know and served only to put him in the dummy when he wanted to be in his own hand.

South now had to get back to his own hand with the queen of spades, in order to lead a diamond. West ducked and dummy won with the king.

South still had a chance to make his contract by cashing dummy's top club, but he muffed this play also. Instead he returned to his hand with the ten of hearts.

Now he couldn't afford to cash the jack of spades, since West would get in with the ace of diamonds and could then draw the last trump and take a spade trick. South therefore had to lead another diamond towards the dummy.

West stepped up with the ace of diamonds, cashed his high trump, and put dummy in with a club. This left dummy with a losing diamond, which was enough to defeat the contract, and South's good jack of spades went to sleep.

"Guess I need a new pair of glasses," South admitted sheepishly, after this pitiful exhibition.

"You need more than that," his partner grimly replied. "Why don't you try radar?"

Harmony Is Their Goal

Lake Placid, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—The New York State Sheriffs' Association hold that the key to efficient law enforcement is "working harmony" among police agencies and not "bureaucratic plans imposed on localities." That was the gist of a report submitted yesterday to the 18th annual sheriffs conference by Louis R. Yaguda, association counsel and executive director. The sheriffs adopted the report at their first business session. "What we need in this state above all is a better understanding and working harmony that will bind all police agencies into a sincere, voluntary, co-operative unit," the report affirmed. "For it is by such unity, without subordination of one group to the other, that the best results can be obtained."

"My heart leaps up when I behold ...my Bill!"

BILL and I went along like a breeze for ten beautiful years. Three kids, good luck . . . and the future stretching out like diamonds on a dewy morning.

Then, in a matter of months, we slipped. Bill was taken off the road and put inside. A promotion, so they said; but it didn't work that way. He'd come home, night after night, all frazzled, shot.

"Meetings," he'd say . . . "conferences, people, noise, confusion. I can't take it inside, Grace: I just don't seem to get the score."

That's when I put on my thinking cap. Bill's always been a little hard-of-hearing.

"Bill," I said, "if you're going to hold that inside job, you've simply got to hear . . . perfectly, clearly, every word and every inflection. What you need is a hearing aid."

"Who, me?" he answered. "Why, Grace, I'm only 33."

"So what!" I said. "There are thousands of men under 33, and women too, who need hearing-aids and who are smart enough to wear them. Would anybody think you were smart to go without glasses if you had a squint? Same with hearing-aids. They're in the same class . . . exactly. Think it over!"

Bill did! He bought a hearing-aid that weighs a few ounces. Size of a cigarette package, and fits in his shirt pocket.

Now Bill can hear... inside, outside, wherever he is. He's back on the team and going strong.

The poet Wordsworth said, "My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky." It's like that with me – but I don't need any rainbow. My heart leaps up when I behold . . . my Bill!

See Strong Support For Stevenson in Connecticut Vote

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey reported today there is strong support in Connecticut's delegation to the Democratic convention for the presidential nomination of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

The state's 16 votes are pledged to Connecticut Sen. Brien McMahon, ill in a Washington hospital. But none doubted that early word will come from his bedside freeing the delegation.

Bailey, who until today had refused to talk about second choice candidates, told newsmen:

"There is more than considerable favorable talk for Governor Stevenson. This was reflected by discussions in the caucus and discussions by the delegates after the caucus."

Bailey, acting delegation chairman in McMahon's absence, referred to a caucus held last night at which Stevenson's name, and his only, was brought up.

Asked by newsmen later what McMahon's reaction would be to Stevenson, Bailey said:

"I know that Senator McMahon has always been very friendly and a great admirer of Governor Stevenson."

Before quitting the caucus room for the convention hall, the delegates, acceding to McMahon's wish, chose John M. Golden of New Haven as the new national committeeman.

He was named by a 14 to 1 vote to succeed Paul R. Connery of Norwalk. Mrs. Dorothy Satti of New London was unanimously chosen national committeewoman to succeed Mrs. Mary Flyn of Southington.

McMahon was represented as delighted over Golden's election.

There had been some pre-caucus talk of opposition to Golden. But it virtually disappeared after McMahon sent a message that he was "100 per cent for Golden."

UCT Bake Sunday

Reports indicate a large attendance Sunday at the third annual clambake of Kingston Council 356, United Commercial Travelers. Chairman of the event to be held at Torino's in West Hurley is Robert Boyle, who reports a large advance sale of tickets. Those who haven't made arrangements to attend may still do so through Chairman Boyle or David Gruberg.

President Lincoln had not forgotten some of the gossip once heard from Thad Stevens. Stevens and Simon Cameron had come into the Republican party from opposite sides. In conversation the Representative (Stevens) had relieved himself of some unkind expressions.

"You don't mean he'd (Cameron) steal!" exclaimed Lincoln, who had formed an accurate estimate of his aide's probity and knew that common theft was not one of his failings.

"He wouldn't steal a red-hot stove," retorted old Thad bitterly.

It was the sort of joke that helped make Lincoln's task bearable. He thought the Secretary of War should have a little fun, too, but the gentle Simon was not amused. He raged, and in his rage sent off an impulsive demand for a retraction. Unfortunately he found Stevens only too ready to oblige.

"I said you would not steal a red-hot stove," the apology ran. "I now take that back."

Attics, Closets, Being Ransacked For Library Fair

Woodstock, July 22—Once the collection center for the Library Fair officially opens, as it did Monday at the Methodist Church Hall, the annual ransacking of attics, closets and cupboards begins in this village.

Although there will be a table at the 25th annual fair Thursday, July 31, labeled "junk," this yearly accumulation of clothing, china, glass, food, books, artists' supplies and almost any known portable object under the sun, is no ordinary aggregation.

Recently a villager of long standing was asked to go once more to her attic to hunt for likely contributions. "But I have no attic left!" she announced. "Successive library fairs over the years have cleaned me out! Now I confine my search to the top drawer—a really lovely necklace I'd been saving for some occasion, a choice lace handkerchief, even a book I hadn't really wanted to part with—but for our fair, well, here it is."

Although for a time it appeared that this might be the first horseless fair in several years, Dr. Paul Perlman has just announced that the ponies will be at their ring to the rear of the fair grounds and the young cowboy and girl set may take to the saddle for as long as the dimes hold out. If the live steeds are too formidable for the tot set, the small merry-go-round will offer just as much action but more comfortably close to the ground.

For the afternoon one of the township's busiest citizens, Civilian Defense Director Joseph Forno, will take time out from Operations Sky Watch to direct Operations Hot Dog.

This year the fair is bursting with expectations—Great Expectations for all.

Maverick Concert Proves Pleasing

Woodstock, July 22—On Sunday, July 20, the Maverick gave the third in its summer series of Sunday concerts. Featured on the program in the Brahms Horn Trio, Opus 40, was Joseph Golden a Marine stationed at Mitchel Field, making his debut in Woodstock. Cynthia Eddy Britt, William Kroll and Joseph Wolman were the other performing artists.

The first work played was Beethoven's trio in E-flat, Opus 1, No. 1. As this work was written in Beethoven's earliest period, where his compositions are almost indistinguishable from those of Mozart and Haydn, it should have been played with the delicacy of the old Classical school. Although it was ably played, it seemed to lack this crispness.

Second on the program was Faure's violin and piano sonata in A major, Opus 13. Expressing French nationalism in music of the nineteenth century, this composition is characteristically lyrical in style. One felt that Kroll was very much at home in the work, and both he and Wolman gave a superb performance.

The last work, the Brahms Horn Trio, was awaited with great interest. It seemed particularly fitting that a composition written with the hunting horn (the Waldhorn) in mind should be performed in this rustic setting. Sergeant Golden's tone left nothing to be desired—indeed it was golden—and the combination of horn, violin and piano is very pleasant in loud or heavy passages, but is incapable of subtlety, for in the more delicate passages, the horn stands out far above the other instruments.

The personal atmosphere of the concert was, as usual, enhanced by an announcement and humorous anecdote by Pierre Henrotte.

The performers on next week's program will be Inez Carroll, pianist, Frank Mele, violist, who will be heard at the Maverick again this summer after an absence of a year, Cynthia Eddy Britt and William Kroll. The works to be played will include Shostakovitch's 'cello sonata, Opus 40, a contemporary work never before played at the Maverick, and the Schumann E-flat piano quartet, Opus 47.

Metropolitan Museum Contest Announced

Woodstock, July 22—Artists of the nation have until Friday, August 15, to file entry blanks for the national competitive exhibition of water colors, drawings and prints to open at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York on December 5, 1952.

Offering $9,000 in prizes, the exhibition is open to all artists who are permanent residents of this country. A prospectus with entry blank was mailed in June to more than 14,000 artists, announcing details of the competition.

To be eligible for the competition, an artist must send his entry blank—postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, August 15—to Roland McKinney, Department of American Art, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York 28, N. Y. Any artist who has not received the competition prospectus and entry blank may obtain them by writing to McKinney.

Having filed an entry blank, the artist's next step is to send his entries prepaid to the regional jury for his area at the time and place specified. For Eastern States and District of Columbia, Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, entries must be delivered not earlier than September 2, and not later than September 12, to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, 83rd street entrance at Fifth avenue, New York 28, N. Y.

Former Operatic Star Will Sing July 26

Woodstock, July 22—In the first of the series of three Concerts Dardenne, Saturday at 4 p. m. at the Wittenberg studio of Victor Dardenne, Agnete B. Mundt, dramatic soprano, will be featured soloist.

Mrs. Mundt, formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, will sing Ha! Faithless One by Beethoven, Grieg's A Dream, Richard Hoffman's Do Not Go My Love, and Mon Coeur S'Ouvre a ta Voix, from Saint-Saens opera Samson and Delilah.

The concert will begin with a Loeillet Sonata a Trois, played by Victor Dardenne, violinist, John D. Janni, first violist of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra, and Mrs. Zelinda V. Dardenne, pianist. The program will close with a Mozart Trio. Also included will be several solos by Dardenne, Romance in F by Beethoven, Chopin's Nocturne in E flat, and Dream of the Twilight by Richard Strauss.

Wittenberg Fair

Woodstock, July 22—The annual fair and supper of the Wittenberg Methodist Church will be held Wednesday, beginning at 2 p. m., with fancy articles and home baked foods on sale. A ham summer will be served in the upstairs hall at 5:30 p. m. with other servings later.

Village Notes

Woodstock, July 22—Mr. and Mrs. Philip Guston left last week for Ann Arbor, Mich., where Guston will lecture on painting for about 10 days. He was one of last year's winners of the Woodstock Foundation Awards.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Froot and their daughter Rochelle, of Brooklyn, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Froot for 10 days.

Mrs. Walter Schneider and children, of Pearl River, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bud Blazy for two weeks.

William Weisman and A. L. Sainer, co-owners of the Woodstock Playhouse, were in town for the weekend.

Mrs. Helen Gerardia served as chairman of the hostess committee for the party Saturday afternoon at the Woodstock Art Gallery in honor of the opening of the Graphic Print Shop under the direction of Margaret Lowengrund. Mrs. Gerardia was assisted by Mrs. Martin Avan and Mrs. Martin Friedman.

In Woodstock Exhibition

The above painting, entitled St. Thomas Harbor, Virgin Islands, by Phoebe Towbin, is now on exhibition in the Woodstock Artists Association juries painting show at the Woodstock Art Gallery. The show opened July 12 and will run until Thursday, July 24.

New Jersey Helps ToPushResolution

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—New Jersey jumped into the first Democratic convention floor fight early today and helped push to victory a resolution to require delegate party loyalty pledges.

Archibald S. Alexander, delegate-at-large of Bernardsville, spoke from the convention platform in support of the resolution which he said would not jeopardize the chances of any candidate.

In other developments during the long convention day:

1. Sentiment in the delegation snowballed into sizeable proportion for support of Gov. Stevenson of Illinois for presidential nomination.

2. Alexander was reported under consideration to make one of the seconding speeches for nomination of the governor.

3. Delegates stood firm on 31 uncommitted votes and one for Sen. Kefauver.

Resolution Explained

Alexander, in the first of two night appearances before the convention, explained that the resolution offered by Sen. Moody said one thing:

"That everyone do the best he can for the party in his state."

He said a delegate, under the resolution, is not required to break the laws of his state, but to see that Democratic candidates appear on the ballot.

Ninth District Delegate Harry W. Vanderbach of Guttenberg commented on the floor: "A delegate who comes to the national convention and refuses to agree to abide by party loyalty should have stayed home."

The delegation voted "aye" on the Moody resolution and "nay" on a proposed Florida amendment.

Alexander's second platform trip was to offer a resolution confirming nominations of state delegations for persons to serve on various committees of the convention.

The resolution was adopted by a tired chorus of "ayes" as weary delegates trudged into the steamy early morning air.

Brief Meeting Is Sign No Progress At Panmunjom

Musan, Korea, July 22 (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators met for only five minutes today in the shortest session at Panmunjom since secret talks on the prisoner exchange deadlock began July 4.

Another executive session was scheduled for tomorrow.

Brevity of the session underscored speculation that no progress had been made.

Before leaving today for Tokyo, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, former chief spokesman for the UN command negotiators, told newsmen:

"The enemy's techniques are the same either at the conference table or elsewhere * * *.

"Their basic stock in trade is deceit, deception and distortion. All Communists are liars, intentionally and flagrantly when it suits their purpose.

"* * * they interpret as a sign of weakness any UN command willingness to reach a reasonable compromise. * * * every time we yielded on a point in hopes of reaching an armistice, the Reds made additional demands."

Nuckols is returning to his old job as Far East Air Forces public relations officer. The new spokesman for the UN delegation is Lt. Col. Joseph J. Borchert.

In Seoul, South Korean President Syngman Rhee said in an interview he understands the Chinese Communists are ready to compromise for a truce but that the North Korean allies are unwilling.

Rhee said there is "more evidence now of a split as the Chinese appear ready to yield on points of the prisoner exchange question."

Rhee said a truce would benefit only Russia and not the United Nations.

New York, July 22 (AP)—Two city fireboats early today battled a four-day fire aboard the gutted Norwegian freighter Black Gull, now at an anchorage in lower New York Bay.

The naphthalene-fed blaze started late Friday night when the 5,000-ton freighter was at a point off the eastern tip of Long Island and 140 miles from New York. All but four of the 49 persons aboard were rescued by the Swedish American liner Gripsholm.

A big-ocean-going salvage tug pulled the vessel into shallow water between Coney Island and Sandy Hook, N. J., late last night.

Serce celery as a hot vegetable, sometimes, with meat or fish. Dice the celery and cook it in a covered saucepan in one inch of boiling salted water until tender—about 15 to 20 minutes. Season with more salt, if necessary, pepper, and butter or margarine.

"Successive library fairs over the years have cleaned me out! Now I confine my search to the top drawer—a really lovely necklace I'd been saving for some occasion, a choice lace handkerchief, even a book I hadn't really wanted to part with—but for our fair, well, here it is."

Although for a time it appeared that this might be the first horseless fair in several years, Dr. Paul Perlman has just announced that the ponies will be at their ring to the rear of the fair grounds and the young cowboy and girl set may take to the saddle for as long as the dimes hold out. If the live steeds are too formidable for the tot set, the small merry-go-round will offer just as much action but more comfortably close to the ground.

For the afternoon one of the township's busiest citizens, Civilian Defense Director Joseph Forno, will take time out from Operations Sky Watch to direct Operations Hot Dots.

This year the fur is bursting with expectations—Great Expectations for all.

Maverick Concert Proves Pleasing

Woodstock, July 22—On Sunday, July 20, the Maverick gave the third in its summer series of Sunday concerts. Featured on the program in the Brahms Horn Trio, Opus 40, was Joseph Golden a Marine stationed at Mitchel Field, making his debut in Woodstock. Cynthia Eddy Britt, William Kroll and Joseph Wolman were the other performing artists.

The first work played was Beethoven's trio in E-flat, Opus 1, No. 1. As this work was written in Beethoven's earliest period, where his compositions are almost indistinguishable from those of Mozart and Haydn, it should have been played with the delicacy of the old Classical school. Although it was ably played, it seemed to lack this crispness.

Second on the program was Faure's violin and piano sonata in A major, Opus 13. Expressing French nationalism in music of the nineteenth century, this composition is characteristically lyrical in style. One felt that Kroll was very much at home in the work, and both he and Wolman gave a superb performance.

The last work, the Brahms Horn Trio, was awaited with great interest. It seemed particularly fitting that a composition written with the hunting horn (the Waldhorn) in mind should be performed in this rustic setting. Sergeant Golden's tone left nothing to be desired—indeed it was golden—and the combination of horn, violin and piano is very pleasant in loud or heavy passages, but is incapable of subtlety, for in the more delicate passages, the horn stands out far above the other instruments.

The personal atmosphere of the concert was, as usual, enhanced by an announcement and humorous anecdote by Pierre Henrotte.

The performers on next week's program will be Inez Carroll, pianist, Frank Mele, violist, who will be heard at the Maverick again this summer after an absence of a year, Cynthia Eddy Britt and William Kroll. The works to be played will include Shostakovitch's 'cello sonata, Opus 40, a contemporary work never before played at the Maverick, and the Schumann E-flat piano quartet, Opus 47.

Metropolitan Museum Contest Announced

Woodstock, July 22—Artists of the nation have until Friday, August 15, to file entry blanks for the national competitive exhibition of water colors, drawings and prints to open at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York on December 5, 1952.

Offering $9,000 in prizes, the exhibition is open to all artists who are permanent residents of this country. A prospectus with entry blank was mailed in June to more than 14,000 artists, announcing details of the competition.

To be eligible for the competition, an artist must send his entry blank—postmarked not later than midnight, Friday, August 15—to Roland McKinney, Department of American Art, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York 28, N. Y. Any artist who has not received the competition prospectus and entry blank may obtain them by writing to McKinney.

Having filed an entry blank, the artist's next step is to send his entries prepaid to the regional jury for his area at the time and place specified. For Eastern States and District of Columbia, Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, entries must be delivered not earlier than September 2, and not later than September 12, to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, 83rd street entrance at Fifth avenue, New York 28, N. Y.

Former Operatic Star Will Sing July 26

Woodstock, July 22—In the first of the series of three Concerts Dardenne, Saturday at 4 p. m. at the Wittenberg studio of Victor Dardenne, Agnete B. Mundt, dramatic soprano, will be featured soloist.

Mrs. Mundt, formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, will sing Ha! Faithless One by Beethoven, Grieg's A Dream, Richard Hoffman's Do Not Go My Love, and Mon Coeur S'Ouvre a ta Voix, from Saint-Saens opera Samson and Delilah.

The concert will begin with a Loeillet Sonata a Trois, played by Victor Dardenne, violinist, John D. Janni, first violist of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra, and Mrs. Zelinda V. Dardenne, pianist. The program will close with a Mozart Trio. Also included will be several solos by Dardenne, Romance in F by Beethoven, Chopin's Nocturne in E flat, and Dream of the Twilight by Richard Strauss.

Wittenberg Fair

Woodstock, July 22—The annual fair and supper of the Wittenberg Methodist Church will be held Wednesday, beginning at 2 p. m., with fancy articles and home baked foods on sale. A ham summer will be served in the upstairs hall at 5:30 p. m. with other servings later.

Village Notes

Woodstock, July 22—Mr. and Mrs. Philip Guston left last week for Ann Arbor, Mich., where Guston will lecture on painting for about 10 days. He was one of last year's winners of the Woodstock Foundation Awards.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Froot and their daughter Rochelle, of Brooklyn, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Froot for 10 days.

Mrs. Walter Schneider and children, of Pearl River, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bud Blazy for two weeks.

William Weisman and A. L. Sainer, co-owners of the Woodstock Playhouse, were in town for the weekend.

Mrs. Helen Gerardia served as chairman of the hostess committee for the party Saturday afternoon at the Woodstock Art Gallery in honor of the opening of the Graphic Print Shop under the direction of Margaret Lowengrund. Mrs. Gerardia was assisted by Mrs. Martin Avan and Mrs. Martin Friedman.

In Woodstock Exhibition

The above painting, entitled St. Thomas Harbor, Virgin Islands, by Phoebe Towbin, is now on exhibition in the Woodstock Artists Association juries painting show at the Woodstock Art Gallery. The show opened July 12 and will run until Thursday, July 24.

New Jersey Helps ToPushResolution

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—New Jersey jumped into the first Democratic convention floor fight early today and helped push to victory a resolution to require delegate party loyalty pledges.

Archibald S. Alexander, delegate-at-large of Bernardsville, spoke from the convention platform in support of the resolution which he said would not jeopardize the chances of any candidate.

In other developments during the long convention day:

1. Sentiment in the delegation snowballed into sizeable proportion for support of Gov. Stevenson of Illinois for presidential nomination.

2. Alexander was reported under consideration to make one of the seconding speeches for nomination of the governor.

3. Delegates stood firm on 31 uncommitted votes and one for Sen. Kefauver.

Resolution Explained

Alexander, in the first of two night appearances before the convention, explained that the resolution offered by Sen. Moody said one thing:

"That everyone do the best he can for the party in his state."

He said a delegate, under the resolution, is not required to break the laws of his state, but to see that Democratic candidates appear on the ballot.

Ninth District Delegate Harry W. Vanderbach of Guttenberg commented on the floor: "A delegate who comes to the national convention and refuses to agree to abide by party loyalty should have stayed home."

The delegation voted "aye" on the Moody resolution and "nay" on a proposed Florida amendment.

Alexander's second platform trip was to offer a resolution confirming nominations of state delegations for persons to serve on various committees of the convention.

The resolution was adopted by a tired chorus of "ayes" as weary delegates trudged into the steamy early morning air.

Brief Meeting Is Sign No Progress At Panmunjom

Musan, Korea, July 22 (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators met for only five minutes today in the shortest session at Panmunjom since secret talks on the prisoner exchange deadlock began July 4.

Another executive session was scheduled for tomorrow.

Brevity of the session underscored speculation that no progress had been made.

Before leaving today for Tokyo, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, former chief spokesman for the UN command negotiators, told newsmen:

"The enemy's techniques are the same either at the conference table or elsewhere * * *.

"Their basic stock in trade is deceit, deception and distortion. All Communists are liars, intentionally and flagrantly when it suits their purpose.

"* * * they interpret as a sign of weakness any UN command willingness to reach a reasonable compromise. * * * every time we yielded on a point in hopes of reaching an armistice, the Reds made additional demands."

Nuckols is returning to his old job as Far East Air Forces public relations officer. The new spokesman for the UN delegation is Lt. Col. Joseph J. Borchert.

In Seoul, South Korean President Syngman Rhee said in an interview he understands the Chinese Communists are ready to compromise for a truce but that the North Korean allies are unwilling.

Rhee said there is "more evidence now of a split as the Chinese appear ready to yield on points of the prisoner exchange question."

Rhee said a truce would benefit only Russia and not the United Nations.

Canapes take to attractive garnishes. For fish or meat spreads use hard-cooked egg yolks mashed through a sieve, circles or stars cut from pimiento, slivers of cooked beets, finely diced green pepper, slices of pimiento-stuffed olives, tiny pickled onions, or finely chopped parsley.

New York, July 22 (AP)—Two city fireboats early today battled a four-day fire aboard the gutted Norwegian freighter Black Gull, now at an anchorage in lower New York Bay.

The naphthalene-fed blaze started late Friday night when the 5,000-ton freighter was at a point off the eastern tip of Long Island and 140 miles from New York. All but four of the 49 persons aboard were rescued by the Swedish American liner Gripsholm.

A big-ocean-going salvage tug pulled the vessel into shallow water between Coney Island and Sandy Hook, N. J., late last night.

Serce celery as a hot vegetable, sometimes, with meat or fish. Dice the celery and cook it in a covered saucepan in one inch of boiling salted water until tender—about 15 to 20 minutes. Season with more salt, if necessary, pepper, and butter or margarine.

SHARING TAXI WITH STRANGER

A letter this morning says: "The other evening, during one of those sudden summer showers, I waited a half hour before I could get a taxi. When I finally did get one, another woman, who was standing beside me, asked if she might share the taxi with me. As she was going in my same direction, I said 'yes.' I was the first to get out and, never having shared a taxi with a stranger before, I did not quite know how to pay the fare, and as a result paid more than my share. Will you please tell me how this is taken care of?"

You should have paid whatever the meter read when you got out because that is what you would have paid anyway—whatever the other one pays is of no concern of yours.

"Mr." Means Civilian

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiance holds the rank of sergeant in the army. I am going to be married soon and I would like to know if his name should be engraved Mr. William Brown or Sergeant William Brown on the wedding invitations:

Answer: Sergeant William Brown.

Never at Someone

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you settle an argument my boy friend and I are having about pointing? I said it was very bad manners to point a finger at any time. He thinks that as long as you are showing direction, it is all right. Who is right?

Answer: It is rude to point at a person, but not at a thing.

Take Knitting Along

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it permissible for a woman to take some handwork, such as knitting or crocheting, with her when going to visit another couple for an evening of conversation?

Answer: Yes, if she can work (as many can) without giving it any attention.

Is your question about a wedding anniversary party or gift? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-7 gives a list of gifts for anniversaries, and details for parties. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

SHARING TAXI WITH STRANGER

A letter this morning says: "The other evening, during one of those sudden summer showers, I waited a half hour before I could get a taxi. When I finally did get one, another woman, who was standing beside me, asked if she might share the taxi with me. As she was going in my same direction, I said 'yes.' I was the first to get out and, never having shared a taxi with a stranger before, I did not quite know how to pay the fare, and as a result paid more than my share. Will you please tell me how this is taken care of?"

You should have paid whatever the meter read when you got out because that is what you would have paid anyway—whatever the other one pays is of no concern of yours.

"Mr." Means Civilian

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiance holds the rank of sergeant in the army. I am going to be married soon and I would like to know if his name should be engraved Mr. William Brown or Sergeant William Brown on the wedding invitations:

Answer: Sergeant William Brown.

Never at Someone

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you settle an argument my boy friend and I are having about pointing? I said it was very bad manners to point a finger at any time. He thinks that as long as you are showing direction, it is all right. Who is right?

Answer: It is rude to point at a person, but not at a thing.

Take Knitting Along

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it permissible for a woman to take some handwork, such as knitting or crocheting, with her when going to visit another couple for an evening of conversation?

Answer: Yes, if she can work (as many can) without giving it any attention.

Is your question about a wedding anniversary party or gift? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-7 gives a list of gifts for anniversaries, and details for parties. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

EAT WELL for Less

Jams Contain Energy Galore

FOR THAT afternoon snack you will like bread, blackberry or cherry jam and a tall glass of ice-cold milk.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

With blackberries and cherries splashing their color over our roadside stands and local markets, now is the time to make jams.

And remember—a slab of good bread, buttered, with homemade jam spread on it, plus a glass of milk makes a wonderful energy snack for active youngsters.

Blackberry and Cherry Jam
(Using sour cherries)

(Yield: about 11 medium glasses)

Four cups prepared fruit, 7½ cups sugar, ½ bottle liquid fruit pectin.

To prepare the fruit: crush thoroughly about 1 quart fully ripe blackberries. Stem and pit about 1½ pounds fully ripe sour cherries. Chop fine. Combine fruits and measure 4 cups into a very large saucepan.

To make the jam: Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin.

Blackberry Jam

(Yield: about 10 medium glasses)

Four cups prepared fruit, 7 cups sugar, ½ bottle liquid fruit pectin.

To prepare the fruit: crush completely, one layer at a time about 2 quarts fully ripe blackberries. (If desired, sieve half of pulp to remove some of the seeds). Measure 4 cups pulp into a very large saucepan.

To make the jam: Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Canned grapefruit juice, ready-to-eat cereal, bacon roll, blackberry-cherry jam, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tuna and celery salad in lettuce cups, crisp rolls, butter or margarine, raw cucumber sticks, chocolate brownies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Cold sliced ham, spaghetti with butter and grated cheese, broiled tomato halves, enriched bread, butter or margarine, watercress, apple pie, coffee, milk.

Cragsmoor Playhouse Opens Season Tonight

Delayed by reconstruction and the installation of comfortable theatre seats, the famous old Cragsmoor Playhouse will open its season tonight at 8:40 when producing-manager Lee K. Holland will present Barbara Glenn, Ken Duncan of the movies and TV, and Helene Santley in F. Hugh Herbert's Broadway comedy success, For Love Or Money.

The first production will be under the direction of Jay Strong, organizer of the Metropolitan Players of New York and noted TV producer, and will be designed and lighted by Jean LeSeyeux, who for many years produced, directed and designed the famous Folies Bergere in both Paris and New York.

Improvements in the famous Old Cragsmoor Playhouse include a completely new floor installed on the ramp principle so that each row of seats is higher than the row ahead and the installation of theatre seats with comfortable box spring seats and padded backs. A new box office has been constructed adjacent to the front of the theatre with a new walkway leading to it and with some ground lighting on the surrounding area.

IN RARE FORM—Mae West busted right into a demonstration of a new-type "Mae West" life jacket at the Navy submarine base at Groton, Conn., and declared herself very much pleased with the improved version. The inflatable jacket has a new color, which gives visibility of 16 miles at sea. "That's one thing we both have in common," quipped Mae. "We both can be seen from great distance." She described the new color as "Desirable Scarlet" but the prosaic Navy says it's "orange, just off red." Above, Molder First Class Cater B. East, helps Mae adjust the new jacket.

Hoover Mentioned To Replace Nixon

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A move is underway to persuade Gov. Earl Warren of California to appoint former President Herbert Hoover to the Senate if Sen. Nixon (R.-Calif.) is elected vice president in November.

Rep. Kilburn (R.-N. Y.) wrote to Warren today, asserting that appointment of Hoover "would meet with genuine enthusiasm from the whole country."

Kilburn told a reporter he had discussed his suggestion with a number of House Republicans and said it had been received with unanimous approval.

Nixon, the GOP vice presidential nominee, would be compelled to resign his Senate seat in the event of victory. Warren has the authority to name a successor to serve until the next general election.

Nixon, 39, was elected to the Senate in 1950.

RECOMMENDED BY THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Seven-year-old Karen Blecha enacts 1952 polio precautions recommended by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. When polio is around, the National Foundation cautions parents to watch for these signs: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, tenderness and stiffness of neck and back. A person showing such symptoms should be put to bed at once, away from others. Then, call your doctor and follow his advice. If polio is diagnosed, call your local chapter of the March of Dimes for advice and assistance, including needed financial help.

Boys Return Home After Trek 'West'

The three local boys who started out on a camping trip last Thursday are back home today and apparently glad about it.

One of them, Gunther Ilgner, 14, said he and his two friends, got as far as the extreme western end of the state, before they notified police and were returned home Saturday night.

Ilgner's brother made the trip to return them home, the youngster said.

The boys left their homes Thursday morning supposedly to return by 9 p. m., that day. Local police were notified late Thursday night after they failed to return. The other two with Ilgner were Robert Vertetis, 12, of 199 Greenkill avenue, and Connie Venditti, 14, of Washington avenue.

Information obtained Friday indicated that two of the boys had sold their bicycles for $8 to finance the trip, and young Ilgner said today the money held out to the point where they decided to return. They had 72 cents left when they arrived home. The two boys, incidentally, regained possession of the bicycles.

Ilgner said he could not remember the name of the town where they notified the police after apparently deciding that life on the road was catching up with them. They had camped one night, he said, at a place he estimated was about 60 miles west of Port Jervis.

Queried as to their motive for the adventure, young Ilgner said: "We just wanted to see the country."

RECOMMENDED BY THE NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Seven-year-old Karen Blecha enacts 1952 polio precautions recommended by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. When polio is around, the National Foundation cautions parents to watch for these signs: headache, fever, sore throat, upset stomach, tenderness and stiffness of neck and back. A person showing such symptoms should be put to bed at once, away from others. Then, call your doctor and follow his advice. If polio is diagnosed, call your local chapter of the March of Dimes for advice and assistance, including needed financial help.

Boys Return Home After Trek 'West'

The three local boys who started out on a camping trip last Thursday are back home today and apparently glad about it.

One of them, Gunther Ilgner, 14, said he and his two friends, got as far as the extreme western end of the state, before they notified police and were returned home Saturday night.

Ilgner's brother made the trip to return them home, the youngster said.

The boys left their homes Thursday morning supposedly to return by 9 p. m., that day. Local police were notified late Thursday night after they failed to return. The other two with Ilgner were Robert Vertetis, 12, of 199 Greenkill avenue, and Connie Venditti, 14, of Washington avenue.

Information obtained Friday indicated that two of the boys had sold their bicycles for $8 to finance the trip, and young Ilgner said today the money held out to the point where they decided to return. They had 72 cents left when they arrived home. The two boys, incidentally, regained possession of the bicycles.

Ilgner said he could not remember the name of the town where they notified the police after apparently deciding that life on the road was catching up with them. They had camped one night, he said, at a place he estimated was about 60 miles west of Port Jervis.

Queried as to their motive for the adventure, young Ilgner said: "We just wanted to see the country."

Pasha Names Cabinet

Alexandria, Egypt, July 22 (AP)—Premier Naguib Hilaly Pasha named his new government—Egypt's fifth in six months—today and promptly proclaimed a state of emergency throughout the nation. Most of his new cabinet had served in Hilaly's government which resigned July 2 after four troubled months in office. Dynamic, young Ahmed Mortada El Maraghi Bey was back in the key post of minister of interior.

Danny Steltz Pitches First KAA No-Hitter to Win for Yankees, 7-1

Four Walks Yield One Run to Giants; Fans 11 Batters

Yankees Tighten Lead With Third Straight

Big Danny Steltz, the rocket-throwing Yankee pitching and batting star, yesterday pitched the first no-hit game in the two-year history of the KAA Little League.

Just as everyone suspected he could and would some day, Steltz turned back the opposition without a safety. The one run he allowed the Giants was the result of four successive walks in the third inning.

At bat, Steltz dipped slightly below his torrid 600-plus pace with a single in three trips. His battery mate, Gene Nagele, slashed a homer as the Yankees tripped the Giants, 7 to 1, and reeled off their third straight victory to put themselves in a commanding position in the second half pennant chase.

With the second half only five games old, the Yankees are unbeaten, while the Red Sox have been tagged with one loss and the Giants and Dodgers have succumed twice each.

Fans 11 Batters

Steltz struck out 11 batters and walked seven to gain the decision over little Tommy Fisher, who held the Yankee sluggers to just five hits but had some trouble locating the plate and walked eleven.

The Yankees led 5-0 after three turns and nobody was thinking about even a shutout, let alone a no-hitter when Steltz developed a wild streak. He walked Bob Strong, George Norton, Pete Esposito and Lee Kias, the last two in succession to force in the lone Giant marker.

Fisher scattered the five Yankee safeties among five different players. Nagele's homer was the only extra base blow of the contest.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The Irvington's Bill Dixon, who rates as Woodstock's foremost boxing authority, wagered 10 bucks worth of hamburgers on Harry Matthews against Rocky Marciano so readily that we suspected he was either overstocked in the freezer or had unshakeable faith in "The Athlete."

"The Athlete" being Manager Jack Hurley's nickname for Matthews.

Dixon has enjoyed distinguished success as a boxing soothsayer. He achieved his lofty stature with simple economics. Years ago he hitched his star to Joe Louis' bandwagon and through the years luxuriated in an unbroken string of successes. How could the guy miss. Even to this day he insists that the Brown Bomber was the greatest heavyweight of all time. His argument is formidable, you will concede.

That he picked Sugar Ray Robinson over Joey Maxim didn't impair his rating as a selector. Like millions of others, he didn't reckon with Mother Nature's caprices in that steam cauldron known as Yankee Stadium.

But Matthews over Marciano, the Brockton Blockbuster, you couldn't go along with the handsome barkeep.

"What will happen to Matthews, if Marciano hits him on the chin?" we asked.

"I'll tell you," Dixon said, "Maybe he'll be knocked out, but what I want to know is, what will happen to Marciano if Matthews hits him on the lug, or drives his left hook into Marciano's midsection with a punch under the heart?"

"You know," said Dixon, "Matthews takes a good punch, but who is nailing him. Not a wild swinging fighter like Marciano. Matthews knows how to fight. He is a brilliant boxer. That's a lot more than you can say for Rocky. Matthews sees a punch coming. A good boxer has always had an advantage over a puncher. The best examples of this was Gene Tunney's two victories over Jack Dempsey. . . ."

Dixon's logic seemed overwhelming and irrefutable but he hadn't finished.

"Marciano was in trouble with Carmine Vingo before he knocked him out. Roland Starza gave him plenty of headaches and can beat him right now," he continued.

"And furthermore," Dixon went on without breaking stride, "do you think Marciano could take the body licking that Matthews handed out to Irish Bob Murphy. Don't forget, Murphy was a winning fighter, a good puncher and above all a southpaw. Everyone will agree that Matthews gave him a good licking. The night Matthews licked Murphy, I'm sure Marciano would not have turned the trick. In fact, I don't think Marciano could lick Murphy right now."

"If you'll concede that Marciano is a heavier hitter than Matthews," we countered, "don't kid yourself about Rocky's boxing. He's fought good boxers like LaStarza, Louis and Savold and he actually outboxed them to the time of the decision. In the case of La Starza, which wound up in a split decision, the fact that they took the eighth away from Rocky on a low blow made it close. The eighth was Rocky's best round. Against Louis and Savold, Rocky was the master until the time the knockouts occurred."

"Rocky is shiftier than you think," we told Dixon. "He's hard to hit because he moves with punches. Nobody's hitting him solid and he gets under punches. He knows what he's doing and while he may be a little awkward doing it, he can afford to step in and slug out, even with Matthews, because he can take it. He can box as well as the other guy. Matthews better not forget that."

"Matthews has a tremendous string of victories," we conceded, "but there is nothing in the Matthews record book that equal Marciano's knockouts of Joe Louis, Rex Layne and Lee Savold."

Steltz Leads KAA Little League Batters With .638 Average; Armstrong Hits .527

Big Dan Steltz, the fire-balling Yankee right hander, is the KAA Little League batting leader with a rousing .638 average on 23 hits in 36 trips to the plate.

Hobart Armstrong, the pitcher-outfielder of the Dodgers, who has five homers to his credit, is runnerup with .527, with 19 hits in 36 times at bat.

Two others top the .500 mark, Dave O'Connor of the Giants, .500 even with 13 for 26 and Jim Dickson, .555, of the Dodgers who has seen only limited action.

The .400 circle features some of the outstanding players in the loop, among them George Uhl of the Dodgers with .424; Pete Esposito, Giants, .454; Gene Nagele, Yankees, .468 and Joe Clark, Yankees, .428 for seven trips.

Jim Cullum of the Red Sox is batting .421, while teammates, Tom Van Etten and Tom Hallinan are moving at an even .400 clip.

Steltz's 23 hits and Armstrong's 21 runs lead in those departments. Lee Kias, with six homers, is batting at .371.

Foreigners Absent From Helsinki In Large Numbers

By MURRAY ROSE

Helsinki, July 22 (AP)—Notes of an American in Helsinki:

A Finnish cab driver who had been missing pedestrians by inches, as usual, gave this reply when we asked him why he didn't blow his horn:

"We never do here. It might frighten somebody."

Some of the four American gold medal winners yesterday were somewhat abashed when the pretty maidens handed them victory bouquets of roses. They didn't know whether to hold them or hide them. But Olympic coach Brutus Hamilton straightened them out quick.

"Respect them," he said. "It is a token of greatness and bestowed by people with warm hearts."

Helsinki citizens have been disappointed by the slim turnout of foreigners for the games. About 40,000 rooms were tentatively ordered from the residents but about 5,000 had to be turned back without takers. Some last-minute cancellations came from the United States but there was no estimate of the number.

Parry O'Brien, the handsome, 220-pound Southern California athlete, won the Olmpic shot put title with a prodigious Olympic record heave of 57 feet, 1.43 inches, but he confessed he choked up in the clutch.

It came after the presentation ceremonies when the three shot men—O'Brien, Darrow Hooper of Texas and Jim Fuchs of New York—were receiving flowers and posing with the Finnish beauty who bestowed the bouquets.

"I just put my arm around her and gave her a little squeeze," said Parry. "But that Fuchs, he kissed her. I wanted to but I didn't have the nerve."

What might have developed into the first athletic East-West incident of the games was passed off with little fuss or fanfare.

In one of the opening heats of the 800-meter run Sunday, America's Reggie Pearman was sharply bumped by his Russian neighbor at the start. Reggie got a good elbow in the jaw.

"I'm sure it was just an accident," said Pearman. "The Russian, Tchevgoun, used a standing start and I used a crouching start. When the gun sounded I raised myself quickly and got his elbow in the jaw. But it was okay."

Legion Tossers Play In District Opener

Drew Rensselaer For Thursday Game

The Old Capital Motors, American Legion Junior baseball nine will meet the Rensselaer county champions in the opening game of the Third District tournament at Albany on Thursday.

Andrew Murphy III, Athletic Officer of Kingston Post No. 150, said the locals were notified yesterday that the playoffs will again be held at Hawkins Stadium in Albany.

This came as unhappy news to the Kingston players who have experienced difficulty with Albany umpires the past couple of seasons.

"It was hoped that the tournament might be held in Saratoga," Murphy said, "but the district officials encountered difficulty in trying to get a suitable playing field. Furthermore, everyone felt the tournament would have been more appropriate for Saratoga county since the state Legion convention is being held there."

The draw for the Third District pairings was made at the sporting goods store of Johnny Evers in Albany by Dale Miller, national junior baseball administrator.

Players Leave at 12:30

Dick Conners, state Legion baseball chairman, expressed hope that the competition could be completed without incident.

Thursday's opener is scheduled for 3:30 p. m. and all local players are requested to report to the American Legion building no later than 12:30 p. m.

Coaches Tommy Maines and Eddie Bahl will send the locals through a cauple of drills before Thursday's opener and are confident Kingston will make its best showing in several years.

According to reports from the capital district none of the teams is out of the ordinary and a wide open tournament is predicted. This is a happy predicament for the Old Capital Motors squad which rates as Kingston's strongest representative in the past several years.

All-Star Benefit for Sal Misasi Planned by City League Sunday

Yankees Defeat Dodgers, 5 to 3 In Series Preview

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 48,263 spectators who watched the New York Yankees defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3, in an exhibition at Yankee Stadium last night may have been seeing a preview of the 1952 World Series.

Certainly it will require some mighty big doings by any of the other contenders to knock either the Yankees or Dodgers off the top perch. The Yanks headed west today with a comfortable 4½-game margin over their nearest competitor. The Dodgers arrived home today with a commanding 7½-game bulge over the defending National League champion New York Giants.

Of the two, the Yankees appear to have the rougher task ahead. Starting with a twi-night doubleheader in Cleveland this evening, the world champions will pack 21 games into the next 17 days.

Brooklyn and the Giants open up 14-game home stands tonight. The Dodgers start with Cincinnati and the Giants take on the St. Louis Cardinals. The Brooks are riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak while the injury-riddled Giants are fumbling around following a dismal western trip during which they lost valuable ground to the Brooks.

Giants Need Streak

The impression is that if the Giants are going to pull another 1951 miracle finish, they'd better start right away instead of waiting until Aug. 11, as they did last year. The Dodgers appear unstoppable right now, playing at a sensational .728 clip.

The Dodgers, to a man, are confident of winning but all remember too well last year's slump and the story-book Giant finish that saw a 13½-game lead evaporate in six weeks.

Leo Durocher, the usually voluble Giant manager, is keeping a tight lip as he regards his long hospital list. Ace pitcher Sal Maglie had X-rays taken of his lame back and is expected to be out at least a week although results won't be known until tomorrow. Catcher Wes Westrum is nursing a sore right hand. George Spencer has a swollen ankle, Sal Yvars a scraped left thigh and Alvjn Dark a fungus infection on his left foot.

Brooklyn — Pat Manzi, 146, Syracuse, N. Y., outpointed Ted Murray, 148, New York, (8).

Crown Four Champs In Olympic Games

Helsinki, July 22 (AP)—Olympic champions crowned Monday:

Golf

Gary, Ind.—George Victor took the halfway lead in the 36-hole qualifying round for the Great Lakes Invitation with a 72.

Second Round Regular Play Starts Today

The City Baseball League launches its second round today, with Jones Dairy, first half champions, opposing Chez Emile, at the Athletic Field at 6:15 p. m.

Boulevard Gulf and Wiltwyck Motors are scheduled in Wednesday's game.

An all-star benefit game for Sal Misasi, of Jones Dairy, has been scheduled for Sunday, July 27, at 6 p. m.

Misasi recently threw out his pitching arm in a freak accident that has victimized him twice in the past three seasons. He was in the act of throwing a curve ball when something snapped in his right arm.

Daisy Schatzel, manager of the Jones Dairy squad, and Bill "Pucker" Davis of the Colonial Merchants will head the rival all-star squads.

The all-star rosters as announced today by Secretary Bob Steeger of the league follow:

Jones Dairy

Manager—John "Daisy" Schatzel.

Pitchers—Tommy Fisher, Jerry Bechtold, Ernie McCormick.

Catchers—Bob Shelightner, Joe Benjamin.

Infielders—Ronnie Mauro, Ed Passante, Nippy Jones, Tom Carlino, Sonny Barnes.

Outfielders — Tommy Maines, Tim Murphy, Bob Slover, Joe Norton.

Colonial Merchants

Manager—Bill "Pucker" Davis.

Pitchers — George Magley, George Telepas, Angie Fondino.

Catchers—Bill Kite, Bill Olen.

Infielders — Lefty Passante, George Glaser, Decker, Bill Tierney, Augie Passante.

Outfielders—Charlie Neff, Allan Vogt, John Minadeo, "Link" Crosby.

Further details regarding the all-star game will be announced later.

New Orleans — Bernard Docusen, 146, New Orleans, stopped Joe Hartdege, 142½, New Orleans (4).

Danny Steltz Pitches First KAA No-Hitter to Win for Yankees, 7-1

Four Walks Yield One Run to Giants; Fans 11 Batters

Yankees Tighten Lead With Third Straight

Big Danny Steltz, the rocket-throwing Yankee pitching and batting star, yesterday pitched the first no-hit game in the two-year history of the KAA Little League.

Just as everyone suspected he could and would some day, Steltz turned back the opposition without a safety. The one run he allowed the Giants was the result of four successive walks in the third inning.

At bat, Steltz dipped slightly below his torrid 600-plus pace with a single in three trips. His battery mate, Gene Nagele, slashed a homer as the Yankees tripped the Giants, 7 to 1, and reeled off their third straight victory to put themselves in a commanding position in the second half pennant chase.

Fans 11 Batters

Steltz struck out 11 batters and walked seven to gain the decision over little Tommy Fisher, who held the Yankee sluggers to just five hits but had some trouble locating the plate and walked eleven.

The Yankees led 5-0 after three turns and nobody was thinking about even a shutout, let alone a no-hitter when Steltz developed a wild streak. He walked Bob Strong, George Norton, Pete Esposito and Lee Kias, the last two in succession to force in the lone Giant marker.

Fisher scattered the five Yankee safeties among five different players, Nagele's homer was the only extra base blow of the contest.

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The Irvington's Bill Dixon, who rates as Woodstock's foremost boxing authority, wagered 10 bucks worth of hamburgers on Harry Matthews against Rocky Marciano so readily that we suspected he was either overstocked in the freezer or had unshakeable faith in "The Athlete."

"The Athlete" being Manager Jack Hurley's nickname for Matthews.

Dixon has enjoyed distinguished success as a boxing soothsayer. He achieved his lofty stature with simple economics. Years ago he hitched his star to Joe Louis' bandwagon and through the years luxuriated in an unbroken string of successes. How could the guy miss. Even to this day he insists that the Brown Bomber was the greatest heavyweight of all time. His argument is formidable, you will concede.

That he picked Sugar Ray Robinson over Joey Maxim didn't impair his rating as a selector. Like millions of others, he didn't reckon with Mother Nature's caprices in that steam cauldron known as Yankee Stadium.

But Matthews over Marciano, the Brockton Blockbuster, you couldn't go along with the handsome barkeep.

"What will happen to Matthews, if Marciano hits him on the chin?" we asked.

"I'll tell you," Dixon said, "Maybe he'll be knocked out, but what I want to know is, what will happen to Marciano if Matthews hits him on the lug, or drives his left hook into Marciano's midsection with a punch under the heart?"

"You know," said Dixon, "Matthews takes a good punch, but who is nailing him. Not a wild swinging fighter like Marciano. Matthews knows how to fight. He is a brilliant boxer. That's a lot more than you can say for Rocky. Matthews sees a punch coming. A good boxer has always had an advantage over a puncher. The best examples of this was Gene Tunney's two victories over Jack Dempsey. . . ."

Dixon's logic seemed overwhelming and irrefutable but he hadn't finished.

"Marciano was in trouble with Carmine Vingo before he knocked him out. Roland Starza gave him plenty of headaches and can beat him right now," he continued.

"And furthermore," Dixon went on without breaking stride, "do you think Marciano could take the body licking that Matthews handed out to Irish Bob Murphy. Don't forget, Murphy was a winning fighter, a good puncher and above all a southpaw. Everyone will agree that Matthews gave him a good licking. The night Matthews licked Murphy, I'm sure Marciano would not have turned the trick. In fact, I don't think Marciano could lick Murphy right now."

"If you'll concede that Marciano is a heavier hitter than Matthews," we countered, "don't kid yourself about Rocky's boxing. He's fought good boxers like LaStarza, Louis and Savold and he actually outboxed them to the time of the decision. In the case of La Starza, which wound up in a split decision, the fact that they took the eighth away from Rocky on a low blow made it close. The eighth was Rocky's best round. Against Louis and Savold, Rocky was the master until the time the knockouts occurred."

"Rocky is shiftier than you think," we told Dixon. "He's hard to hit because he moves with punches. Nobody's hitting him solid and he gets under punches. He knows what he's doing and while he may be a little awkward doing it, he can afford to step in and slug out, even with Matthews, because he can take it. He can box as well as the other guy. Matthews better not forget that."

"Matthews has a tremendous string of victories," we conceded, "but there is nothing in the Matthews record book that equal Marciano's knockouts of Joe Louis, Rex Layne and Lee Savold."

Steltz Leads KAA Little League Batters With .638 Average; Armstrong Hits .527

Big Dan Steltz, the fire-balling Yankee right hander, is the KAA Little League batting leader with a rousing .638 average on 23 hits in 36 trips to the plate.

Hobart Armstrong, the pitcher-outfielder of the Dodgers, who has five homers to his credit, is runnerup with .527, with 19 hits in 36 times at bat.

Two others top the .500 mark, Dave O'Connor of the Giants, .500 even with 13 for 26 and Jim Dickson, .555, of the Dodgers who has seen only limited action.

The .400 circle features some of the outstanding players in the loop, among them George Uhl of the Dodgers with .424; Pete Esposito, Giants, .454; Gene Nagele, Yankees, .468 and Joe Clark, Yankees, .428 for seven trips.

Jim Cullum of the Red Sox is batting .421, while teammates, Tom Van Etten and Tom Hallinan are moving at an even .400 clip.

Steltz's 23 hits and Armstrong's 21 runs lead in those departments. Lee Kias, with six homers, is batting at .371.

Foreigners Absent From Helsinki In Large Numbers

By MURRAY ROSE

Helsinki, July 22 (AP)—Notes of an American in Helsinki:

A Finnish cab driver who had been missing pedestrians by inches, as usual, gave this reply when we asked him why he didn't blow his horn:

"We never do here. It might frighten somebody."

Some of the four American gold medal winners yesterday were somewhat abashed when the pretty maidens handed them victory bouquets of roses. They didn't know whether to hold them or hide them. But Olympic coach Brutus Hamilton straightened them out quick.

"Respect them," he said. "It is a token of greatness and bestowed by people with warm hearts."

Helsinki citizens have been disappointed by the slim turnout of foreigners for the games. About 40,000 rooms were tentatively ordered from the residents but about 5,000 had to be turned back without takers. Some last-minute cancellations came from the United States but there was no estimate of the number.

Parry O'Brien, the handsome, 220-pound Southern California athlete, won the Olmpic shot put title with a prodigious Olympic record heave of 57 feet, 1.43 inches, but he confessed he choked up in the clutch.

It came after the presentation ceremonies when the three shot men—O'Brien, Darrow Hooper of Texas and Jim Fuchs of New York—were receiving flowers and posing with the Finnish beauty who bestowed the bouquets.

"I just put my arm around her and gave her a little squeeze," said Parry. "But that Fuchs, he kissed her. I wanted to but I didn't have the nerve."

What might have developed into the first athletic East-West incident of the games was passed off with little fuss or fanfare.

In one of the opening heats of the 800-meter run Sunday, America's Reggie Pearman was sharply bumped by his Russian neighbor at the start. Reggie got a good elbow in the jaw.

"I'm sure it was just an accident," said Pearman. "The Russian, Tchevgoun, used a standing start and I used a crouching start. When the gun sounded I raised myself quickly and got his elbow in the jaw. But it was okay."

Pitches No-Hitter

Nippy Jones pitched a no-hit, no-run game as Brigando's Market defeated the Saugerties Whiz Kids, 3 to 0, at the Saugerties diamond. The win kept the Brigando's undefeated for the season.

Legion Tossers Play In District Opener

Drew Rensselaer For Thursday Game

The Old Capital Motors, American Legion Junior baseball nine will meet the Rensselaer county champions in the opening game of the Third District tournament at Albany on Thursday.

Andrew Murphy III, Athletic Officer of Kingston Post No. 150, said the locals were notified yesterday that the playoffs will again be held at Hawkins Stadium in Albany.

This came as unhappy news to the Kingston players who have experienced difficulty with Albany umpires the past couple of seasons.

"It was hoped that the tournament might be held in Saratoga," Murphy said, "but the district officials encountered difficulty in trying to get a suitable playing field. Furthermore, everyone felt the tournament would have been more appropriate for Saratoga county since the state Legion convention is being held there."

The draw for the Third District pairings was made at the sporting goods store of Johnny Evers in Albany by Dale Miller, national junior baseball administrator.

Players Leave at 12:30

Dick Conners, state Legion baseball chairman, expressed hope that the competition could be completed without incident.

Thursday's opener is scheduled for 3:30 p. m. and all local players are requested to report to the American Legion building no later than 12:30 p. m.

Coaches Tommy Maines and Eddie Bahl will send the locals through a cauple of drills before Thursday's opener and are confident Kingston will make its best showing in several years.

According to reports from the capital district none of the teams is out of the ordinary and a wide open tournament is predicted. This is a happy predicament for the Old Capital Motors squad which rates as Kingston's strongest representative in the past several years.

All-Star Benefit for Sal Misasi Planned by City League Sunday

Yankees Defeat Dodgers, 5 to 3 In Series Preview

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 48,263 spectators who watched the New York Yankees defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3, in an exhibition at Yankee Stadium last night may have been seeing a preview of the 1952 World Series.

Certainly it will require some mighty big doings by any of the other contenders to knock either the Yankees or Dodgers off the top perch. The Yanks headed west today with a comfortable 4½-game margin over their nearest competitor. The Dodgers arrived home today with a commanding 7½-game bulge over the defending National League champion New York Giants.

Of the two, the Yankees appear to have the rougher task ahead. Starting with a twi-night doubleheader in Cleveland this evening, the world champions will pack 21 games into the next 17 days.

Brooklyn and the Giants open up 14-game home stands tonight. The Dodgers start with Cincinnati and the Giants take on the St. Louis Cardinals. The Brooks are riding the crest of an eight-game winning streak while the injury-riddled Giants are fumbling around following a dismal western trip during which they lost valuable ground to the Brooks.

Giants Need Streak

The impression is that if the Giants are going to pull another 1951 miracle finish, they'd better start right away instead of waiting until Aug. 11, as they did last year.The Dodgers appear unstoppable right now, playing at a sensational .728 clip.

The Dodgers, to a man, are confident of winning but all remember too well last year's slump and the story-book Giant finish that saw a 13½-game lead evaporate in six weeks.

Leo Durocher, the usually voluble Giant manager, is keeping a tight lip as he regards his long hospital list. Ace pitcher Sal Maglie had X-rays taken of his lame back and is expected to be out at least a week although results won't be known until tomorrow. Catcher Wes Westrum is nursing a sore right hand. George Spencer has a swollen ankle, Sal Yvars a scraped left thigh and Alvjn Dark a fungus infection on his left foot.

Brooklyn — Pat Manzi, 146, Syracuse, N. Y., outpointed Ted Murray, 148, New York, (8).

Crown Four Champs In Olympic Games

Helsinki, July 22 (AP)—Olympic champions crowned Monday:

Sports of the Day

(IN BRIEF)
(By The Associated Press)

Tennis

Baltimore — Straight Clark of Los Angeles and Grant Golden of Chicago advanced to the second round of the Middle Atlantic Grass Courts tournament.

Champaign, Ill.—Unseeded John Been of Shawnee, Okla., upset National Interscholastic champion Ed Rubinoff of Miami, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, in the first round of the Western Junior and boys championships.

Golf

Gary, Ind.—George Victor took the halfway lead in the 36-hole qualifying round for the Great Lakes Invitation with a 72.

Second Round Regular Play Starts Today

The City Baseball League launches its second round today, with Jones Dairy, first half champions, opposing Chez Emile, at the Athletic Field at 6:15 p. m.

Boulevard Gulf and Wiltwyck Motors are scheduled in Wednesday's game.

An all-star benefit game for Sal Misasi, of Jones Dairy, has been scheduled for Sunday, July 27, at 6 p. m.

Misasi recently threw out his pitching arm in a freak accident that has victimized him twice in the past three seasons. He was in the act of throwing a curve ball when something snapped in his right arm.

Daisy Schatzel, manager of the Jones Dairy squad, and Bill "Pucker" Davis of the Colonial Merchants will head the rival all-star squads.

The all-star rosters as announced today by Secretary Bob Steeger of the league follow:

Jones Dairy

Manager—John "Daisy" Schatzel.

Pitchers—Tommy Fisher, Jerry Bechtold, Ernie McCormick.

Catchers—Bob Shelightner, Joe Benjamin.

Infielders—Ronnie Mauro, Ed Passante, Nippy Jones, Tom Carlino, Sonny Barnes.

Outfielders — Tommy Maines, Tim Murphy, Bob Slover, Joe Norton.

Colonial Merchants

Manager—Bill "Pucker" Davis.

Pitchers — George Magley, George Telepas, Angie Fondino.

Catchers—Bill Kite, Bill Olen.

Infielders — Lefty Passante, George Glaser, Decker, Bill Tierney, Augie Passante.

Outfielders—Charlie Neff, Allan Vogt, John Minadeo, "Link" Crosby.

Further details regarding the all-star game will be announced later.

New Orleans — Bernard Docusen, 146, New Orleans, stopped Joe Hartdege, 142½, New Orleans (4).

World Record Holder Nosed Out by Pole

Helsinki, July 21 (AP) — Three American discus throwers pitched their way into the final of the Olympic championship test today, but America's finest oarsman failed in his second bid for a place in the single sculls final.

Fortune Gordien of Minneapolis, world-record holder in the discus, needed three throws to achieve the required distance in this morning's qualifying round, but he finally made it with a heave of 165 feet, 1.94 inches. That left him some five feet behind Adolfo Consolini, Italy's defending champion, but it topped the best efforts of the other two Americans, both of whom qualified with their first throws and didn't try any more.

Sim Iness of the University of Southern California did 160 feet, 5.23 inches and Jim Dillon of Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Upper Sandusky, Ohio, pitched 157 feet 2.65 inches. These marks were comfortably beyond the minimum distance of 150 feet 11.06 inches required to qualify for this afternoon's final.

Kelly Beaten

Jack Kelly fo Philadelphia and the U.S. Navy gave rowing fans one of their most thrilling spectacles in his "repechage" or second-trial heat in the single sculls, but the finish photos showed he was beaten by Theodor Kocera of Poland.

Thus Kelly, one of the favorites, was eliminated but Australia's defending champion, Mervyn Wood, advanced to the finals with a victory over Paul Meyer of Switzerland in a similar second trial. Wood was beaten yesterday by Britain's Tony Fox while Kelly suffered his first defeat at the hands of Turij Tjukalov of Russia.

The United States gained one spot in the rowing finals when Chuck Logg, Jr., son of the Rutgers University coach, and Tom Price, another Rutgers student from Eatontown, N. J., won their repechage heat in the event for pairs without coxswain. The American pair with coxwain, James Fifer and Duvall Hech, both members of the Stanford crew, was eliminated in a close race by Germany.

Russians Leading

The Russian track and field team, second to the United States in the unofficial point tabulations, qualified two men in the first half of the field for the discus final. They were Otto Grigalka, who placed in the shot put yesterday, and Boris Butenko.

In the over-all point scoring, including all Olympic events, Russia is ahead of the United States. The Soviet athletes scored heavily in gymnastics yesterday to offset the American margin in track and field.

The United States is expected to regain some of this loss in the point duel in this afternoon's track and field finals. In addition to the discus, America has three of the top performers in the pole vault and two stars, including defending champion Mal Whitfield of Columbus, O., in the 800 meters final.

Spectacular Start

Five first place gold medals out of the first eight events is the best United States forces have produced since they held the games in their own back yard at St. Louis in 1904.

By virtue of winning five firsts, four seconds and a flock of lesser places in gymnastics finals last night, Russia retained its overall lead in games with 133½ points against 72 for the United States, all scored in track and field—central sport of games.

In combined totals, Switzerland was third with 47, followed by Japan, 24½, and Czechoslovakia, 16½.

The most triple plays by one team in the majors in one year was three. The Tigers did it in 1911 and the Red Sox pulled the trick in 1924.

Shares Spot With Three Others on Scores of 78

Bostic Cards 81, Macarelli Has 83

Warren Nesbitt of the Shawangunk Country Club shared a four-way tie for second place in the New York State Junior Chamber of Commerce golf champions as the final round came up today at the Edison Country Club in Schenectady.

The long-hitting Ellenville youth who made an excellent showing in the recent county championships, carded 38-40 in Monday's 18-hole opener.

Tied with Nesbitt were Ed Dinga of Endicott; Ronnie Terpak of Endicott and Bill Veach of Poughkeepsie.

Harvey Bostic, the KHS star, was within striking distance of the leaders with an 81. The low five medalists will make the trap to Eugene, Oregon for the Jaycee nationals in August.

Bostic fired nines of 41-40, but Bill Macarelli, of Catskill, medalist in the sectional qualifying round at Wiltwyck, and Harold Van Aken of Wiltwyck faced tough going.

Macarelli was out in 42 and back in 41 for an 83, while Van Aken carded a pair of 42s for an 84.

Ace in Front

Ross Carino of New Rochelle was the boy to catch as the 40 golfers prepared to tee off today.

One of the Metropolitan district's finest young stars, Carino fired a two-over par 74 in the opening round. He was out in 38 and back in 36.

Today's round was also for 18 holes. The winner will be determined on the total for 36 holes of medal play.

The first-round scores included:

Harvey Bostic, Kingston, 41-40-81.

Bob Botsford, Poughkeepsie, 40-41-81.

Bill Macarelli, Catskill, 42-41-83.

Harold Van Aken, Kingston, 42-42-84.

Doug Talbot, Poughkeepsie, 45-40-85.

Two Face Charge

Webster, Mass., July 22 (AP)—A 24-year-old would-be bridegroom and his 19-year-old friend were in District Court today facing a rare charge of "abduction of an unmarried female under 16 for the purpose of marriage." Police said Charles J. Carrington and Franklin G. White, both of Charlton, drove a 15-year-old Charlton girl to East Greenbush, N. Y., where she and Carrington were married Saturday night. The trio was arrested by New York State Police Sunday and the two youths lodged in jail. The girl, identified by police as Gloria Tower, was returned to Charlton in her father's custody. State Detective Lt. Anthony S. Lacaire said no charges were placed against the girl. The charge against Carrington and White is a misdemeanor, he said.

William R. Engeln, new National League umpire, was born in St. Louis, Mo., but calls Palo Alto, Calif., his home now.

RICHARDS QUALIFIES IN POLE VAULT

The Rev. Robert Richards, of LaVerne, Cal., clears the bar as he qualifies in the second half of the pole vault in the 15th modern Olympic Games at Helsinki, Finland, July 21. Qualifiers were required to clear 13 feet, 1.5 inches. Other Americans who qualified were Don Laz, of Champaign, Ill., and George Mattos, of San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Helsinki).

Reports Fuel Stolen

Herman Lange, U. S. Coast Guard keeper of the Rondout light in the Hudson river off Kingston Point reported to the local police at 3:26 a. m., today that a person or persons in an outboard motorboat stopped at his dock and emptied a can of his ready mixed fuel for use in the craft. They left the empty can and headed north on the river. Lange said he attempted to obtain a description of the boat and those in it, but a bright light was flashed in his face. Police, however, obtained a description of a craft, which might be the one involved.

Anthony Turck Honored

Anthony F. Turck, of Kingston, a representative of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, has earned membership in his company's National Field Club, according to Robert H. Langford, manager of the Albany agency. In order to qualify for the club, he had to meet certain high standards of life insurance service and production.

Navy Task Force Holds Maneuvers

Pearl Harbor, July 22 (AP)—A major U. S. task force is exercising this week off the coast of Red China, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander of the Pacific fleet, said yesterday.

Radford called the operation a "training and familiarization program," but it was regarded here as a show of the flag and a show of force on the sea approaches to Communist China.

It is the first such operation since the start of the Korean war more than two years ago. Radford said it demonstrates the navy's "ability to go any place at any time as a self-sustained force."

A major task force includes at least two Essex-class carriers and escorting destroyers.

Judge Hubbs Dies

Pulaski, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Judge Irving G. Hubbs, 81, retired associate judge of the New York State Court of Appeals, died at 8 a. m. today at his residence here. Judge Hubbs suffered a stroke about three months ago.

Kerhonkson

Green Is Honored By U. S. Architects

Kerhonkson, July 22—M. Edwin Green, son of Mrs. Moses E. Green and brother of Mrs. Irving B. West, both of Kerhonkson, one of Ulster county's favorite sons, now a Harrisburg architect, was paid high honors by the American Institute of Architects at the Institute's annual banquet in the Waldorf Astoria, New York.

Green was one of the 30 architects from all over the nation to receive this distinguished honor, heretofore shared with two well-known Harrisburgers, the late M. I. Kast and the late Julian Millard of the State Art Commission.

Members of the Green family were present at the presentation of Fellows of the AIA "for design and public service." Heretofore, the majority of these awards were made either for "design" or "public service" whereas the Institute in making this award, states this one carries both recognitions which Harrisburg architects consider "outstanding."

Informally, Green has been honored in many other ways. His design of the 70-bed Evangelical Hospital in Lewisburg, has been chosen from among 1,000 new hospitals to be published in the August number of Hospitals, official journal of the American Hospital Association.

It also was Green's privilege to write a section on Public Buildings and Courthouses for the four volume work on Forms and Functions of Modern Architecture, edited by Talbot Hamlin of the School of Architecture. The Harrisburg architect was one of 20 in the nation who contributed to that work, appraised as the most comprehensive story of architecture of the present century.

Just recently, Green was appointed to a six-member committee named to revise Pennsylvania building regulations. Through the last five years, he has been chairman of the AIA committee on modern coordination for "standardization of component parts of buildings to reduce manufacturing and construction costs." In that capacity he "interested many governmental agencies in the potentialities of modular coordination" and "succeeded in obtaining substantial financial support for carrying on the work." He was one of the first to advocate establishment of a secretary for modular coordination in the department of research and education of AIA.

His firm has prepared plans for 154 schools in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, and for a substantial number of sizeable hospitals including Sunburg General, Lewiston General, Wayne County Memorial at Honesdale, Warren General, Evangelical at Lewisburg, Coatsville General, Williamsport General and Polyclinic in Harrisburg. The American Institute of Architects has 8,420 members, of whom 280 are Fellows.

Green's award was made five days before his 56th birthday. Born in Kerhonkson, he was graduated from Ellenville High and Carnegie Tech with BS in architecture. He attended Columbia University and Fontainbleau of Fine Arts, France.

After two years with the state's school building department, he formed a partnership with Richard Lawrie, registered professional engineer, in 1922. The firm designed the Pennsylvania Farm Show Building, Harrisburger Hotel YMCA, Dauphin County Courthouse and the new Camp Curtin Junior High. Green has been consultant for Gulf Refining Corp., since 1946.

Shokan Wildcats Open With Victory

West Shokan Wildcats launched the Olive Memorial Baseball League schedule Sunday by trouncing West Hurley, 7 to 2.

Bunky Harrison, the Shokan flinger, permitted only two hits and struck out 16 batters. He was in trouble only in the fourth when he walked three men and hit another to force in a run.

The winners collected nine hits off Garrison, including three singles by Lammond.

World Record Holder Nosed Out by Pole

Helsinki, July 21 (AP) — Three American discus throwers pitched their way into the final of the Olympic championship test today, but America's finest oarsman failed in his second bid for a place in the single sculls final.

Fortune Gordien of Minneapolis, world-record holder in the discus, needed three throws to achieve the required distance in this morning's qualifying round, but he finally made it with a heave of 165 feet, 1.94 inches. That left him some five feet behind Adolfo Consolini, Italy's defending champion, but it topped the best efforts of the other two Americans, both of whom qualified with their first throws and didn't try any more.

Sim Iness of the University of Southern California did 160 feet, 5.23 inches and Jim Dillon of Alabama Polytechnic Institute and Upper Sandusky, Ohio, pitched 157 feet 2.65 inches. These marks were comfortably beyond the minimum distance of 150 feet 11.06 inches required to qualify for this afternoon's final.

Kelly Beaten

Jack Kelly fo Philadelphia and the U.S. Navy gave rowing fans one of their most thrilling spectacles in his "repechage" or second-trial heat in the single sculls, but the finish photos showed he was beaten by Theodor Kocera of Poland.

Thus Kelly, one of the favorites, was eliminated but Australia's defending champion, Mervyn Wood, advanced to the finals with a victory over Paul Meyer of Switzerland in a similar second trial. Wood was beaten yesterday by Britain's Tony Fox while Kelly suffered his first defeat at the hands of Turij Tjukalov of Russia.

The United States gained one spot in the rowing finals when Chuck Logg, Jr., son of the Rutgers University coach, and Tom Price, another Rutgers student from Eatontown, N. J., won their repechage heat in the event for pairs without coxswain. The American pair with coxwain, James Fifer and Duvall Hech, both members of the Stanford crew, was eliminated in a close race by Germany.

Russians Leading

The Russian track and field team, second to the United States in the unofficial point tabulations, qualified two men in the first half of the field for the discus final. They were Otto Grigalka, who placed in the shot put yesterday, and Boris Butenko.

In the over-all point scoring, including all Olympic events, Russia is ahead of the United States. The Soviet athletes scored heavily in gymnastics yesterday to offset the American margin in track and field.

The United States is expected to regain some of this loss in the point duel in this afternoon's track and field finals. In addition to the discus, America has three of the top performers in the pole vault and two stars, including defending champion Mal Whitfield of Columbus, O., in the 800 meters final.

Five first place gold medals out of the first eight events is the best United States forces have produced since they held the games in their own back yard at St. Louis in 1904.

By virtue of winning five firsts, four seconds and a flock of lesser places in gymnastics finals last night, Russia retained its overall lead in games with 133½ points against 72 for the United States, all scored in track and field—central sport of games.

In combined totals, Switzerland was third with 47, followed by Japan, 24½, and Czechoslovakia, 16½.

The most triple plays by one team in the majors in one year was three. The Tigers did it in 1911 and the Red Sox pulled the trick in 1924.

Shares Spot With Three Others on Scores of 78

Bostic Cards 81, Macarelli Has 83

Warren Nesbitt of the Shawangunk Country Club shared a four-way tie for second place in the New York State Junior Chamber of Commerce golf champions as the final round came up today at the Edison Country Club in Schenectady.

The long-hitting Ellenville youth who made an excellent showing in the recent county championships, carded 38-40 in Monday's 18-hole opener.

Tied with Nesbitt were Ed Dinga of Endicott; Ronnie Terpak of Endicott and Bill Veach of Poughkeepsie.

Harvey Bostic, the KHS star, was within striking distance of the leaders with an 81. The low five medalists will make the trap to Eugene, Oregon for the Jaycee nationals in August.

Bostic fired nines of 41-40, but Bill Macarelli, of Catskill, medalist in the sectional qualifying round at Wiltwyck, and Harold Van Aken of Wiltwyck faced tough going.

Macarelli was out in 42 and back in 41 for an 83, while Van Aken carded a pair of 42s for an 84.

Ace in Front

Ross Carino of New Rochelle was the boy to catch as the 40 golfers prepared to tee off today.

One of the Metropolitan district's finest young stars, Carino fired a two-over par 74 in the opening round. He was out in 38 and back in 36.

Today's round was also for 18 holes. The winner will be determined on the total for 36 holes of medal play.

The first-round scores included:

Harvey Bostic, Kingston, 41-40-81.

Bob Botsford, Poughkeepsie, 40-41-81.

Bill Macarelli, Catskill, 42-41-83.

Harold Van Aken, Kingston, 42-42-84.

Doug Talbot, Poughkeepsie, 45-40-85.

Two Face Charge

Webster, Mass., July 22 (AP)—A 24-year-old would-be bridegroom and his 19-year-old friend were in District Court today facing a rare charge of "abduction of an unmarried female under 16 for the purpose of marriage." Police said Charles J. Carrington and Franklin G. White, both of Charlton, drove a 15-year-old Charlton girl to East Greenbush, N. Y., where she and Carrington were married Saturday night. The trio was arrested by New York State Police Sunday and the two youths lodged in jail. The girl, identified by police as Gloria Tower, was returned to Charlton in her father's custody. State Detective Lt. Anthony S. Lacaire said no charges were placed against the girl. The charge against Carrington and White is a misdemeanor, he said.

William R. Engeln, new National League umpire, was born in St. Louis, Mo., but calls Palo Alto, Calif., his home now.

RICHARDS QUALIFIES IN POLE VAULT

The Rev. Robert Richards, of LaVerne, Cal., clears the bar as he qualifies in the second half of the pole vault in the 15th modern Olympic Games at Helsinki, Finland, July 21. Qualifiers were required to clear 13 feet, 1.5 inches. Other Americans who qualified were Don Laz, of Champaign, Ill., and George Mattos, of San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Helsinki).

Reports Fuel Stolen

Herman Lange, U. S. Coast Guard keeper of the Rondout light in the Hudson river off Kingston Point reported to the local police at 3:26 a. m., today that a person or persons in an outboard motorboat stopped at his dock and emptied a can of his ready mixed fuel for use in the craft. They left the empty can and headed north on the river. Lange said he attempted to obtain a description of the boat and those in it, but a bright light was flashed in his face. Police, however, obtained a description of a craft, which might be the one involved.

Anthony Turck Honored

Anthony F. Turck, of Kingston, a representative of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, has earned membership in his company's National Field Club, according to Robert H. Langford, manager of the Albany agency. In order to qualify for the club, he had to meet certain high standards of life insurance service and production.

Navy Task Force Holds Maneuvers

Pearl Harbor, July 22 (AP)—A major U. S. task force is exercising this week off the coast of Red China, Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander of the Pacific fleet, said yesterday.

Radford called the operation a "training and familiarization program," but it was regarded here as a show of the flag and a show of force on the sea approaches to Communist China.

It is the first such operation since the start of the Korean war more than two years ago. Radford said it demonstrates the navy's "ability to go any place at any time as a self-sustained force."

A major task force includes at least two Essex-class carriers and escorting destroyers.

Judge Hubbs Dies

Kerhonkson

Green Is Honored By U. S. Architects

Kerhonkson, July 22—M. Edwin Green, son of Mrs. Moses E. Green and brother of Mrs. Irving B. West, both of Kerhonkson, one of Ulster county's favorite sons, now a Harrisburg architect, was paid high honors by the American Institute of Architects at the Institute's annual banquet in the Waldorf Astoria, New York.

Green was one of the 30 architects from all over the nation to receive this distinguished honor, heretofore shared with two well-known Harrisburgers, the late M. I. Kast and the late Julian Millard of the State Art Commission.

Members of the Green family were present at the presentation of Fellows of the AIA "for design and public service." Heretofore, the majority of these awards were made either for "design" or "public service" whereas the Institute in making this award, states this one carries both recognitions which Harrisburg architects consider "outstanding."

Informally, Green has been honored in many other ways. His design of the 70-bed Evangelical Hospital in Lewisburg, has been chosen from among 1,000 new hospitals to be published in the August number of Hospitals, official journal of the American Hospital Association.

It also was Green's privilege to write a section on Public Buildings and Courthouses for the four volume work on Forms and Functions of Modern Architecture, edited by Talbot Hamlin of the School of Architecture. The Harrisburg architect was one of 20 in the nation who contributed to that work, appraised as the most comprehensive story of architecture of the present century.

Just recently, Green was appointed to a six-member committee named to revise Pennsylvania building regulations. Through the last five years, he has been chairman of the AIA committee on modern coordination for "standardization of component parts of buildings to reduce manufacturing and construction costs." In that capacity he "interested many governmental agencies in the potentialities of modular coordination" and "succeeded in obtaining substantial financial support for carrying on the work." He was one of the first to advocate establishment of a secretary for modular coordination in the department of research and education of AIA.

His firm has prepared plans for 154 schools in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, and for a substantial number of sizeable hospitals including Sunburg General, Lewiston General, Wayne County Memorial at Honesdale, Warren General, Evangelical at Lewisburg, Coatsville General, Williamsport General and Polyclinic in Harrisburg. The American Institute of Architects has 8,420 members, of whom 280 are Fellows.

Green's award was made five days before his 56th birthday. Born in Kerhonkson, he was graduated from Ellenville High and Carnegie Tech with BS in architecture. He attended Columbia University and Fontainbleau of Fine Arts, France.

After two years with the state's school building department, he formed a partnership with Richard Lawrie, registered professional engineer, in 1922. The firm designed the Pennsylvania Farm Show Building, Harrisburger Hotel YMCA, Dauphin County Courthouse and the new Camp Curtin Junior High. Green has been consultant for Gulf Refining Corp., since 1946.

Holstein Show Is To Have Queen at Middletown Fair

The highlight of the U.S.O. Holstein Club Black and White show to be held Saturday at the Orange County Fair grounds in Middletown, will be the selection of a dairy queen to reign for the day's activities.

Competition for queen is open to any girl 14-21, associated with Holsteins. The judge will be the art director of a national woman's magazine. The prize will be a trip to one of New York's leading studios for a portrait. Further details of the contest may be obtained from S. Robert Kelder of Stone Ridge, a member of the show committee.

The Black and White show scheduled for Saturday is the second show held by the U.S.O. Club. Last year 112 animals were shown from the three-county area of Ulster, Sullivan and Orange. To date over 120 entries have been received by Hallock Gerow of Washingtonville who is in charge of entries. This promises to be one of the largest of the 29 Black and White shows held in New York state this year by various Holsteins clubs. The judge will be Fred Nichols, manager of Osborndale Farms at Derby, Conn.

Philip Rahl of Washingtonville, chairman of the show, today urged that all animals be on the grounds by 10 a. m. so that judging may start promptly at 10:30. It is expected that the judging will be completed prior to 4 p. m. so that all will have time to get home for chores.

At noon a picnic lunch will be enjoyed on the fairgrounds. Each family is to bring its own lunch. Light refreshments will be on sale.

A Black and White show is both an educational and a social event. For the dairy farmers it gives them an opportunity to see how their animals compare with their neighbors. Socially it is a chance to renew acquaintances, make new friends learn new ideas and a good time for all. All farmers and others interested in dairy cattle are invited to attend. In case of rain there will be ample facalities for housing and showing under cover.

Three Children, Hurt In Three-Car Mishap

Three children were taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment this morning following a three-car mishap at Broadway and Andrew street.

The three, Dorothy, Joseph and Herbert Bundy of 13 Franklin street, apparently suffered injuries of the head and face, police said, when they were thrown against a windshield. Their ages are five, six and 10 years old. Walter Bundy, 8, apparently was unhurt. The accident was reported at 10:35 a. m.

The children were riding in a car operated by Dorothy M. Bundy, of 13 Franklin street, which according to Sgt. Lemuel Howard at police headquarters, struck the rear of a sedan operated by Barney King, 106 West O'Reilly street. The latter struck another vehicle, the driver of which is unknown.

3-Way Split . . .

avoided if the platform is written in general terms, avoiding specific language that iritates the Dixie Democrats.

Magnuson said he believes there would be no great difficulty in getting agreement on broad statements favoring improved racial relations and opposing discrimination and lynching.

"I think we could even accept the 1948 plank again if we dropped some unnecessary terms from its preamble which mean nothing," Magnuson said.

He added the only way for Democrats to change Senate rules "is to elect enough senators to get them changed."

Convention Angles

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Sen. Robert S. Kerr said today the Democratic convention developments of the last 24 hours, including the withdrawal of Vice President Barkley from the presidential nomination race, "have dramatized the need for my nomination."

The Oklahoman added in a statement that he is "the man who can best unite the party," he continued:

"The circumstances of Vice President Barkley's withdrawal make it absolutely essential that this convention select a candidate for president who is representative of and responsive to all elements of the party rather than to any one group or faction.

"As to Vice President Barkley, the Democratic party and the nation must be forever grateful to him for his great service to the people and his major part in building and developing the progressive Democratic program of the past 20 years."

Ewing Would Accept

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Oscar R. Ewing, federal security administrator and a dark horse candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said today he would accept his party's vice presidential nomination if it were offered him.

Ewing told a news conference that "loyal friends injected me into this situation" as a contender for the presidential nomination. He said his personal choice is President Harry S. Truman, and added:

"I hope he will run, but that hope is not much more than a glimmer."

Asked if he would accept the vice presidential nomination if it were offered, Ewing replied, "I'll do anything the party wants me to do. If they felt I would be helpful, I would do it."

Florida Goes Along

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — The Florida delegation voted today to go along with the "loyalty" resolution adopted by the Democratic National Convention.

Farris Bryant, chairman of the delegation, said the resolution raised "no problem as far as we are concerned as a state," and followed pretty much the state laws.

Bryant explained to the delegation caucus that the resolution "merely says we will take action that the nominees of this convention will appear on the ballot."

Spokesmen for the Florida delegation opposed the resolution in debate on the floor early this morning when it was adopted.

New Slant Given

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—You're getting a new slant on politics at the Democratic convention—if you watch it on television.

Cameras at the Republican convention earlier this month were placed so that speakers were in profile and the necessary confusion of the press seats showed movement in the background.

In an effort to remedy this, the Democrats have placed the television cameras where they can pick up the speaker full on. This has eliminated the backdrop of busy newsmen, but it hasn't completely gotten rid of background distractions.

The cameras pick up activities on the tongue of the platform, and the difference this time is that the hustling and bustling in the background is done by Democratic dignitaries.

As They See It

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Off the convention cuff:

Jim Farley says: "It'll be all over on the third ballot.

It was all over for him late last night when Vice-President Barkley withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Farley had come out for Barkley.

You can look for Farley to cast his half-vote to Adlai Stevenson, assuming, as most everyone does now, that the Illinois governor will finally say yes.

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, watching last night's session of the convention, said he had been in politics for 42 years but never before had seen the confusion prevailing at the current Democratic conclave.

Mayor Erastus Corning of Albany, who stayed away from the caucus session of the New York delegation yesterday, thinks General Eisenhower's military background will hurt the Republican nominee at the polls.

Corning served under General Patton as an enlisted man in World War 2. As the mayor views it, there is considerable sentiment against electing a military man as president—and, he adds, lost of ex-GI's would never vote for an officer, especially a general, no matter how popular he may be or may have been.

About a dozen teen-agers, carrying placards supporting Averell Harriman, marched around the Hilton Hotel to band music yesterday. The group created no stir.

One more item about Lehman: He said he never had attended a convention where he heard so many reports (his nice word for "rumors").

One New York stater out for the convention as an observer (whose name won't be mentioned here), said that if they didn't have television at the proceedings there would be few speakers and shorter speeches.

"They all want to get into the act," he said. "They promised their wives and kids that they'd be on, and boy are they trying to keep their word."

Couldn't Turn It Down

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — Gov. Henry F. Schricker of Indiana said today Gov. Adlai Stevenson has informed him that if the Democratic Presidential nomination is offered "he couldn't turn it down."

Schricker said he would nominate Stevenson. He has been a staunch backer of the Illinois governor for months.

Asked by newsmen if Stevenson had told him he would accept, the governor replied:

"He put it this way—he said if it came to him he couldn't turn it down."

By all the signs, the Democratic Convention was moving toward offering its big prize to Stevenson.

May Not Name Russell

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) said today it is possible that the name of Sen. Richard Russell for president "may not be put in nomination."

Cox made the statement to a reporter shortly after the Georgia delegation had voted unanimously against the "loyalty oath" rule adopted by the convention last night and agreed to sit it out in Convention Hall until they are kicked out.

Russell's name was to have been put in nomination by Sen. George (D-Ga.), with Alabama yielding to Georgia for that purpose.

South Angers . . .

The Moody rule's adoption forecast the later approval by the convention of a civil rights plank so strong in its terms that the southerners would have another reason to stride angrily out of this almost-leaderless convention.

But the growing possibility that the reluctant Stevenson would wind up with a presidential nomination he has said repeatedly he doesn't want laid something of a restraining hand on the bolt threats.

There was indisputable evidence that the Dixie members regard Stevenson rather fondly as a "kissin' cousin" who may not always agree with them on such principles as are involved in the civil rights proposals, but as a candidate who would be reasonable about his differences with them.

Vice President Alben Barkley's abrupt exit from the presidential scramble last night strengthened the draft-Stevenson movement, which has been nurtured on the convention floor by such able strategists as Jacob M. Arvey, Illinois national committeeman.

Barkley quit with a bitter blast at "self-annointed political labor leaders" who had told him face to face a few hours earlier they considered him too old at 74 and had made other commitments.

The vice president said that leaders of certain big-state delegations who had been egging him on to run had "found it expedient" to withdraw their support.

No Doubt Seen

There wasn't too much doubt in anyone's mind that these delegations were moving toward Stevenson. Even New York's 94-vote group, the bulk of which has been committed to Averell Harriman, showed signs of wavering.

This put Stevenson under more and more compulsion so far as the nomination is concerned. He has said he wants only to run for reelection as governor of Illinois and has urged delegates not to put him in nomination.

But when he signed off for a few hours sleep early today, he referred newsmen to Matthew 26:39 which says:

"O, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me. Nevertheless, not as I will but as Thou wilt."

The Stevenson boom had a spontaneous air but it gave some politicians the impression there was more behind it than met the eye.

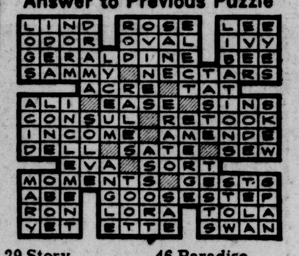
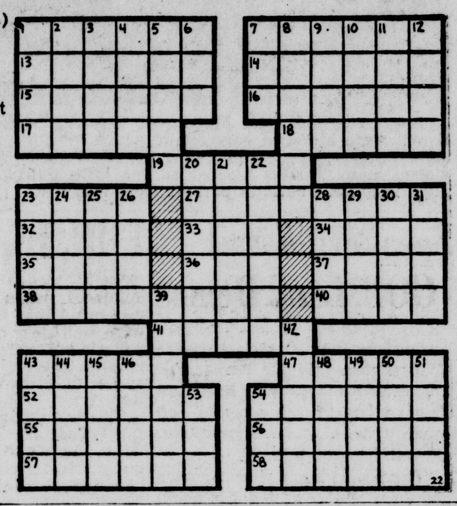
Answer to Previous Puzzle





As Pegler Sees It

Chambers, this lawyer's treatment of this inoffensive farm woman was such that Chambers determined to release his documents. The next time Chambers himself was on the stand for examination a Hiss lawyer asked whether he had any documentary proof. To the attorney's consternation, Chambers whipped out of his pocket copies of 65 State Department documents which Hiss had given him. The Department of Justice pounced on those papers which would have exposed the fraudulence of Truman's reiterated "red herring" sneer, and suppressed them.

Soon afterward, in a conversation with Chambers, Nixon and Stripling learned that he had still other documentary material. Nixon was shoving off for a holiday cruise and left orders for Stripling to serve a subpoena on Chambers for any further material that he had. If Chambers had not been cooperative, the subpoena would have been futile because hostile witnesses can easily destroy or hide their papers. He led Appel and Wheeler straight to the pumpkin patch in the dark of a winter evening, picked out a hollowed pumpkin with a flashlight and gave them the little tubes of microfilm which exploded the case.

The irony of the whole expose was that Walter Winchell had the story in his hand ten years earlier.

Isaac Don Levine, a real reporter with a background of experience in Russia in the first war, took Chambers by the hand on a round of Washington trying to get someone to do something. A. A. Berle, a pompous Harvard New Dealer with a job in the State Department, was one who heard the story, but all the department did was lock up some highly secret material called "Magic" and transfer Berle to Brazil as ambassador. Berle revealed long afterward that they began to exercise care with the "Magic" to keep it away from a "leg-man" employed by Drew Pearson who was leaking secrets into the newspapers. Levine then took Chambers to Winchell in Miami Beach.

Long afterward Winchell explained that he reported the information to "my commander-in-chief" Roosevelt. Roosevelt was responsible for the mess and his trusted adviser, Felix Frankfurter, actually had put Hiss into the government in the first place. Roosevelt's wife had done her utmost for years to punish all who exposed Communists, and even after Hiss was convicted of betraying his country, she still defended him as an innocent man.

Masks Are Banned

Salamanca, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Frog-man swimming masks were banned today in two western New York state parks. Leigh J. Batterson, general manager of the Allegany State Park Commission said the ban was "temporary." He did not elaborate.

Late Bulletin

Convention Hall, Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Angered southerners rebelled today against a "loyalty pledge" adopted by the Democratic convention and challenged the Truman "Fair Deal" Democrats to throw them out of the party's conclave.

The great north-south battle, pivoting about disputed "civil rights" proposals, roared to new heights of bitterness.

But simultaneously there came word that the man around whom this convention might unite—Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—had said he would accept the presidential nomination if it is offered. Up to now, Stevenson's personal noes to talk of his candidacy have had little effect on the draft movement running his way.

Check Is Planned

New York, July 22 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, state Civil Defense director, plans to check on "Operation Skywatch" upstate this week. Spokesmen said yesterday Huebner would drop in on ground observation posts from the Adirondacks to the Mohawk valley. Traveling by automobile, he plans both day and night inspections, they said. The air force ordered all the nation's spotting posts manned 24 hours a day, beginning last week.

Scientists Meet in Paris

Thumbs Down

Asking "How do you stop this?" but smiling in high good humor as delegations of several states gave him a six-minute ovation, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois makes a gesture from the rostrum of the Democratic national convention in Chicago. Many adherents are trying to get him to allow his name to be placed in the running for president, but so far the Illinois chief executive has turned thumbs down—just as he does here before '52 convention. (AP Wirephoto)

Wet-Nursing Declines

Rome (AP)—Powered-milk formluas are slowly putting Italy's wet nurses out of business. The decline in the use of the big, strong, apple-cheeked women as "balia" or wet nurses, began after World War 2. Italians have found that the American system of feeding milk formulas to infants is more economical and equally satisfactory. Some, like film star Ingrid Bergman, still rely on the "balia," however. Her twin daughters, Isabel and Ingrid, born last month, each will have a balia to feed and care for them for at least a year.

Increases Soldier Weight

Taipeh, Formosa (AP)—The addition of 100 grams of soybeans per day to the diet of Chinese Nationalist soldiers has increased their weight, says the Mutual Security Agency here, which had a hand in the nutritional experiment. More than 15,000 soldiers participated in the three-months experiment, and the average gain was 10 pounds per man, the MSA said.

Holstein Show Is To Have Queen at Middletown Fair

The highlight of the U.S.O. Holstein Club Black and White show to be held Saturday at the Orange County Fair grounds in Middletown, will be the selection of a dairy queen to reign for the day's activities.

Competition for queen is open to any girl 14-21, associated with Holsteins. The judge will be the art director of a national woman's magazine. The prize will be a trip to one of New York's leading studios for a portrait. Further details of the contest may be obtained from S. Robert Kelder of Stone Ridge, a member of the show committee.

The Black and White show scheduled for Saturday is the second show held by the U.S.O. Club. Last year 112 animals were shown from the three-county area of Ulster, Sullivan and Orange. To date over 120 entries have been received by Hallock Gerow of Washingtonville who is in charge of entries. This promises to be one of the largest of the 29 Black and White shows held in New York state this year by various Holsteins clubs. The judge will be Fred Nichols, manager of Osborndale Farms at Derby, Conn.

Philip Rahl of Washingtonville, chairman of the show, today urged that all animals be on the grounds by 10 a. m. so that judging may start promptly at 10:30. It is expected that the judging will be completed prior to 4 p. m. so that all will have time to get home for chores.

At noon a picnic lunch will be enjoyed on the fairgrounds. Each family is to bring its own lunch. Light refreshments will be on sale.

A Black and White show is both an educational and a social event. For the dairy farmers it gives them an opportunity to see how their animals compare with their neighbors. Socially it is a chance to renew acquaintances, make new friends learn new ideas and a good time for all. All farmers and others interested in dairy cattle are invited to attend. In case of rain there will be ample facalities for housing and showing under cover.

Three Children, Hurt In Three-Car Mishap

Three children were taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment this morning following a three-car mishap at Broadway and Andrew street.

The three, Dorothy, Joseph and Herbert Bundy of 13 Franklin street, apparently suffered injuries of the head and face, police said, when they were thrown against a windshield. Their ages are five, six and 10 years old. Walter Bundy, 8, apparently was unhurt. The accident was reported at 10:35 a. m.

The children were riding in a car operated by Dorothy M. Bundy, of 13 Franklin street, which according to Sgt. Lemuel Howard at police headquarters, struck the rear of a sedan operated by Barney King, 106 West O'Reilly street. The latter struck another vehicle, the driver of which is unknown.

3-Way Split . . .

avoided if the platform is written in general terms, avoiding specific language that iritates the Dixie Democrats.

Magnuson said he believes there would be no great difficulty in getting agreement on broad statements favoring improved racial relations and opposing discrimination and lynching.

"I think we could even accept the 1948 plank again if we dropped some unnecessary terms from its preamble which mean nothing," Magnuson said.

He added the only way for Democrats to change Senate rules "is to elect enough senators to get them changed."

Convention Angles

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Sen. Robert S. Kerr said today the Democratic convention developments of the last 24 hours, including the withdrawal of Vice President Barkley from the presidential nomination race, "have dramatized the need for my nomination."

The Oklahoman added in a statement that he is "the man who can best unite the party," he continued:

"The circumstances of Vice President Barkley's withdrawal make it absolutely essential that this convention select a candidate for president who is representative of and responsive to all elements of the party rather than to any one group or faction.

"As to Vice President Barkley, the Democratic party and the nation must be forever grateful to him for his great service to the people and his major part in building and developing the progressive Democratic program of the past 20 years."

Ewing Would Accept

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Oscar R. Ewing, federal security administrator and a dark horse candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said today he would accept his party's vice presidential nomination if it were offered him.

Ewing told a news conference that "loyal friends injected me into this situation" as a contender for the presidential nomination. He said his personal choice is President Harry S. Truman, and added:

"I hope he will run, but that hope is not much more than a glimmer."

Asked if he would accept the vice presidential nomination if it were offered, Ewing replied, "I'll do anything the party wants me to do. If they felt I would be helpful, I would do it."

Florida Goes Along

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — The Florida delegation voted today to go along with the "loyalty" resolution adopted by the Democratic National Convention.

Farris Bryant, chairman of the delegation, said the resolution raised "no problem as far as we are concerned as a state," and followed pretty much the state laws.

Bryant explained to the delegation caucus that the resolution "merely says we will take action that the nominees of this convention will appear on the ballot."

Spokesmen for the Florida delegation opposed the resolution in debate on the floor early this morning when it was adopted.

New Slant Given

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—You're getting a new slant on politics at the Democratic convention—if you watch it on television.

Cameras at the Republican convention earlier this month were placed so that speakers were in profile and the necessary confusion of the press seats showed movement in the background.

In an effort to remedy this, the Democrats have placed the television cameras where they can pick up the speaker full on. This has eliminated the backdrop of busy newsmen, but it hasn't completely gotten rid of background distractions.

The cameras pick up activities on the tongue of the platform, and the difference this time is that the hustling and bustling in the background is done by Democratic dignitaries.

As They See It

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Off the convention cuff:

Jim Farley says: "It'll be all over on the third ballot.

It was all over for him late last night when Vice-President Barkley withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Farley had come out for Barkley.

You can look for Farley to cast his half-vote to Adlai Stevenson, assuming, as most everyone does now, that the Illinois governor will finally say yes.

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, watching last night's session of the convention, said he had been in politics for 42 years but never before had seen the confusion prevailing at the current Democratic conclave.

Mayor Erastus Corning of Albany, who stayed away from the caucus session of the New York delegation yesterday, thinks General Eisenhower's military background will hurt the Republican nominee at the polls.

Corning served under General Patton as an enlisted man in World War 2. As the mayor views it, there is considerable sentiment against electing a military man as president—and, he adds, lost of ex-GI's would never vote for an officer, especially a general, no matter how popular he may be or may have been.

About a dozen teen-agers, carrying placards supporting Averell Harriman, marched around the Hilton Hotel to band music yesterday. The group created no stir.

One more item about Lehman: He said he never had attended a convention where he heard so many reports (his nice word for "rumors").

One New York stater out for the convention as an observer (whose name won't be mentioned here), said that if they didn't have television at the proceedings there would be few speakers and shorter speeches.

"They all want to get into the act," he said. "They promised their wives and kids that they'd be on, and boy are they trying to keep their word."

Couldn't Turn It Down

Chicago, July 22 (AP) — Gov. Henry F. Schricker of Indiana said today Gov. Adlai Stevenson has informed him that if the Democratic Presidential nomination is offered "he couldn't turn it down."

Schricker said he would nominate Stevenson. He has been a staunch backer of the Illinois governor for months.

Asked by newsmen if Stevenson had told him he would accept, the governor replied:

"He put it this way—he said if it came to him he couldn't turn it down."

By all the signs, the Democratic Convention was moving toward offering its big prize to Stevenson.

May Not Name Russell

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) said today it is possible that the name of Sen. Richard Russell for president "may not be put in nomination."

Cox made the statement to a reporter shortly after the Georgia delegation had voted unanimously against the "loyalty oath" rule adopted by the convention last night and agreed to sit it out in Convention Hall until they are kicked out.

Russell's name was to have been put in nomination by Sen. George (D-Ga.), with Alabama yielding to Georgia for that purpose.

Late Bulletin

Convention Hall, Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Angered southerners rebelled today against a "loyalty pledge" adopted by the Democratic convention and challenged the Truman "Fair Deal" Democrats to throw them out of the party's conclave.

The great north-south battle, pivoting about disputed "civil rights" proposals, roared to new heights of bitterness.

But simultaneously there came word that the man around whom this convention might unite—Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois—had said he would accept the presidential nomination if it is offered. Up to now, Stevenson's personal noes to talk of his candidacy have had little effect on the draft movement running his way.

South Angers . . .

the next move might be if that occurred.

The Moody rule's adoption forecast the later approval by the convention of a civil rights plank so strong in its terms that the southerners would have another reason to stride angrily out of this almost-leaderless convention.

But the growing possibility that the reluctant Stevenson would wind up with a presidential nomination he has said repeatedly he doesn't want laid something of a restraining hand on the bolt threats.

There was indisputable evidence that the Dixie members regard Stevenson rather fondly as a "kissin' cousin" who may not always agree with them on such principles as are involved in the civil rights proposals, but as a candidate who would be reasonable about his differences with them.

Vice President Alben Barkley's abrupt exit from the presidential scramble last night strengthened the draft-Stevenson movement, which has been nurtured on the convention floor by such able strategists as Jacob M. Arvey, Illinois national committeeman.

Barkley quit with a bitter blast at "self-annointed political labor leaders" who had told him face to face a few hours earlier they considered him too old at 74 and had made other commitments.

The vice president said that leaders of certain big-state delegations who had been egging him on to run had "found it expedient" to withdraw their support.

No Doubt Seen

There wasn't too much doubt in anyone's mind that these delegations were moving toward Stevenson. Even New York's 94-vote group, the bulk of which has been committed to Averell Harriman, showed signs of wavering.

This put Stevenson under more and more compulsion so far as the nomination is concerned. He has said he wants only to run for reelection as governor of Illinois and has urged delegates not to put him in nomination.

But when he signed off for a few hours sleep early today, he referred newsmen to Matthew 26:39 which says:

"O, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me. Nevertheless, not as I will but as Thou wilt."

The Stevenson boom had a spontaneous air but it gave some politicians the impression there was more behind it than met the eye.

Check Is Planned

New York, July 22 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, state Civil Defense director, plans to check on "Operation Skywatch" upstate this week. Spokesmen said yesterday Huebner would drop in on ground observation posts from the Adirondacks to the Mohawk valley. Traveling by automobile, he plans both day and night inspections, they said. The air force ordered all the nation's spotting posts manned 24 hours a day, beginning last week.

Wet-Nursing Declines

Rome (AP)—Powered-milk formluas are slowly putting Italy's wet nurses out of business. The decline in the use of the big, strong, apple-cheeked women as "balia" or wet nurses, began after World War 2. Italians have found that the American system of feeding milk formulas to infants is more economical and equally satisfactory. Some, like film star Ingrid Bergman, still rely on the "balia," however. Her twin daughters, Isabel and Ingrid, born last month, each will have a balia to feed and care for them for at least a year.

Scientists Meet in Paris

Increases Soldier Weight

Taipeh, Formosa (AP)—The addition of 100 grams of soybeans per day to the diet of Chinese Nationalist soldiers has increased their weight, says the Mutual Security Agency here, which had a hand in the nutritional experiment. More than 15,000 soldiers participated in the three-months experiment, and the average gain was 10 pounds per man, the MSA said.

Thumbs Down

Asking "How do you stop this?" but smiling in high good humor as delegations of several states gave him a six-minute ovation, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois makes a gesture from the rostrum of the Democratic national convention in Chicago. Many adherents are trying to get him to allow his name to be placed in the running for president, but so far the Illinois chief executive has turned thumbs down—just as he does here before '52 convention. (AP Wirephoto)

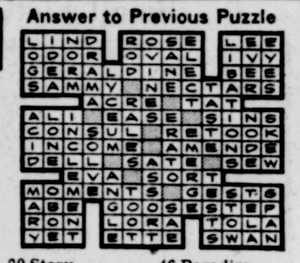
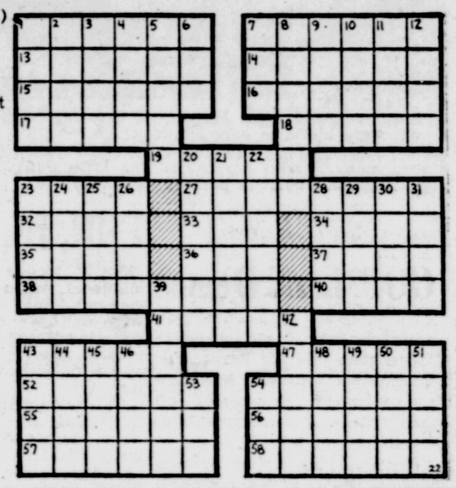
Answer to Previous Puzzle





As Pegler Sees It

Chambers, this lawyer's treatment of this inoffensive farm woman was such that Chambers determined to release his documents. The next time Chambers himself was on the stand for examination a Hiss lawyer asked whether he had any documentary proof. To the attorney's consternation, Chambers whipped out of his pocket copies of 65 State Department documents which Hiss had given him. The Department of Justice pounced on those papers which would have exposed the fraudulence of Truman's reiterated "red herring" sneer, and suppressed them.

Soon afterward, in a conversation with Chambers, Nixon and Stripling learned that he had still other documentary material. Nixon was shoving off for a holiday cruise and left orders for Stripling to serve a subpoena on Chambers for any further material that he had. If Chambers had not been cooperative, the subpoena would have been futile because hostile witnesses can easily destroy or hide their papers. He led Appel and Wheeler straight to the pumpkin patch in the dark of a winter evening, picked out a hollowed pumpkin with a flashlight and gave them the little tubes of microfilm which exploded the case.

The irony of the whole expose was that Walter Winchell had the story in his hand ten years earlier.

Isaac Don Levine, a real reporter with a background of experience in Russia in the first war, took Chambers by the hand on a round of Washington trying to get someone to do something. A. A. Berle, a pompous Harvard New Dealer with a job in the State Department, was one who heard the story, but all the department did was lock up some highly secret material called "Magic" and transfer Berle to Brazil as ambassador. Berle revealed long afterward that they began to exercise care with the "Magic" to keep it away from a "leg-man" employed by Drew Pearson who was leaking secrets into the newspapers. Levine then took Chambers to Winchell in Miami Beach.

Long afterward Winchell explained that he reported the information to "my commander-in-chief" Roosevelt. Roosevelt was responsible for the mess and his trusted adviser, Felix Frankfurter, actually had put Hiss into the government in the first place. Roosevelt's wife had done her utmost for years to punish all who exposed Communists, and even after Hiss was convicted of betraying his country, she still defended him as an innocent man.

Regular Veterans To Meet Thursday

All members are urged to attend the important meeting Thursday of Ulster County Memorial Post, Regular Veterans Association and Auxiliary, at the home of Commander George W. Nichols in Bloomington.

It is requested that the veterans bring to the meeting scheduled to start at 8:15 p. m., all comic books, crayons and drawing books collected for children and hospitalized veterans.

During the session, plans will be completed for the August picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Vance, Stone Ridge, arranged for veterans and their families.

There will be a report on the annual Department of New York RVA convention held July 11 to 14 in Albany during which two area men were honored with offices.

Fred Mertine of Tillson was elected a trustee for three years and Commander Nichols of Ulster Post was chosen junior vice commander for the state district south of Albany.

Nichols was reappointed, on the basis of his record, as department service officer by Commander Erwin P. Bacon of Niagara Falls, who was reelected for the 1952-53 term.

Another honor for Nichols was his reappointment as department public relations officer in charge of publicity and publications.

Speakers Assail GOP, Laud Demos

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—A Negro Congressman told the Democratic Convention today that President Truman "swept the cobwebs" off equality laws while Republicans did nothing but talk.

"The people know what Truman has done and is still doing about civil rights," said Rep. William L. Dawson of Illinois, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"They knew that President Truman swept the cobwebs off of constitutional equality under the law and made it a revitalizing principle in the heart of every black American.

"High sounding phases by Republican spell-binders have not undone, nor can ever undo * * * what (Franklin D.) Roosevelt, Truman and the Democratic party have done * * * "

One Of Five Prepared

Dawson's speech was one of five prepared for today's early session. It came as delegates were threshing out in committee the Civil Rights plank of their platform—the issue which split the party in 1948.

Sharing the speakers' program with Dawson were Georgia Neese Clark, treasurer of the United States; Perle Mesta, U. S. Minister to Luxembourg; Eugenie Anderson, U. S. Ambassador to Denmark, and Richard J. Nelson, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

Of the five speeches, only Mrs. Mesta's did not touch on the Republican-Democrat tussle in the November presidential election.

Mrs. Mesta said she would like to see more women in politics, as well as in industry, the professions, the government and the military. She said women are working for peace, freedom and justice "shoulder-to-shoulder with our men."

Mrs. Anderson said American foreign policy, under Democratic administrations, is forging unity throughout the world to stem Communist aggression.

"Our purpose is peace—human welfare—and human freedom," she said. "This is what all free men want and will work for. This is what we Americans * * * will choose again in November."

Mrs. Clark said Republicans "can't take a hint." Every four years since 1932, she said, they "point with alarm, but when pinned down they say 'me too.'"

What a Tragedy

"What a tragedy it would be * * * if they should actually break through in an unguarded moment," she said, "and seize the power to reverse the march of progress in this country."

Nelson said the Republican platform is full of "confused contradictions." He said it actually states the principles of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

But Taft was rejected and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was elected GOP presidential nominee, Nelson said, because:

"The Republican party * * * is afraid to boldly and honestly present their true conservative and quasi-isolationist program and have it compete with the Democratic liberal and positive domestic and foreign policies * * *."

'Ladies Day'

The appearance of Mrs. Mesta, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Clark on the program led to its being tagged "Ladies Day."

"The Democratic Digest," official publication of the national committee's women's division, was the opener. It was billed as "animated" and a "talking, walking magazine."

Here's why: Instead of writing articles, the women are speaking their piece today and tomorrow at convention headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the late President, is flying in for a speech tonight. Mrs. India Edwards, vice chairman of the national committee, is on tonight's program.

The final affair is a party given by Mrs. Mesta, whose fame as a hostess and diplomat inspired the Broadway play "Call Me Madame."

Hines Held on Assault

James L. Hines, 39, of Port Ewen, was arrested Monday by state police on a charge of assault, third degree, and taken before Justice of the Peace Frank E. Palen. He was remanded to jail for a hearing this evening. Bail was fixed at $50. It is alleged, state police report, that the assault was committed on the father of the defendant.

FDR, Jr., Wows

"loyalty pledge" to the party's nominees, when finally they are chosen. Some southern delegates were bucking and kicking, and hollering "foul" because the resolution had been brought in so late, and with little time for deliberation.

This convention, you recall, was purported to contrast sharply with the show the Republicans put on last week. . . . No undignified shenanigans. . . . No family fights. . . . Sweet reason and the Marquis of Queensbury rules to prevail at all time.

It didn't work out quite that way last night. In fact, it began to resemble 1948, when the southern delegation stormed off the convention floor, with blood in their eyes.

Thus the moment—a poor and unpropitious moment — when Roosevelt stepped up to speak this morning.

He bounced into view, flashed a Grade-A Roosevelt smile, and waved a big paw like a happy young bear.

Atmosphere Changes

The atmosphere changed in a wink. It was as though a breath of fresh air swept through the blue haze of tobacco smoke and the hot, silvery light. Delegates by the thousands came to their feet, clapping and cheering.

The magic of the name, alone, probably accounted for part of the reception the rest belonged to him in his own right.

Roosevelt spoke fluently, and off the cuff, without ever reaching for a word. All over the hall, the women had that rapt, far-away expression that comes when they listen to a crooner.

Nearby, some seasoned politicians watched Roosevelt with expert, appraising eyes. They looked like handicappers, sizing up a promising colt in the early morning.

The roar for Roosevelt, when he finished, was far greater than when he began. It was genuinely spontaneous. And it was the second of its kind during the day.

Adlai Stevenson, the man so many of them want as a presidential candidate, stirred the other one.

These two have set many a Democrat a-wondering.

traveling to Columbus, Ohio, to address the Ohio Republican convention July 31.

To Speak on Coast

In Los Angeles, the adjutant general of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Julian Dickenson, announcing Eisenhower will make his first major campaign address there before the VFW national convention opening August 3.

Eisenhower also will receive the VFW's Bernard Baruch Award given the American citizen a panel of judges says has contributed the most toward fostering unity and good will among peoples of the world.

Eisenhower aides said the general and Nixon will talk over various aspect of the fall campaign, including the role the 39-year-old California senator will play.

To Hold Conference

Eisenhower will confer at the ranch tomorrow with three key supporters. They are Sen. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, Ralph Cake, GOP national committeeman from Oregon, and Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado.

Duff arrived in Denver late yesterday and told a news conference "Ike will lick anyone" the Democrats nominate for president. He specifically predicted Eisenhower will carry Pennsylvania.

Just before Duff's news conference, Eisenhower headquarters labeled as propaganda a suggestion at the opening session of the Democratic convention yesterday that the general must accept part of any blame for U. S. Korean policy—a policy sharply criticized by the Republicans.

Can Rent Jackets

Naples, Italy, July 22 (AP)—Enterprising sidewalk merchants—with supplies of coats—are cashing in on the current heat wave in this port city. State and municipal officials, upset by the number of employes arriving at work in their shirtsleeves, have decreed men without coats will be barred from their offices. But the sidewalk merchants came to the rescue, establishing themselves outside principal buildings with a stock of jackets of various sizes. Now employes still can travel to work in shirt-sleeved comfort, rent jackets outside the office and step in, properly attired.

and blocked by landslides but by nightfall all but one main highway, state 178 through Walker Pass, had been cleared. Caveins blocked four Southern Pacific Railroad tunnels which officials said couldn't be cleared for days.

In scores of other communities, from the coast to the Nevada border, windows cracked, chandeliers fell, cornices toppled and high tension lines parted in showers of sparks.

In Los Angeles, where many areas were without power during morning, water sloshed out of swimming pools. Water and oil storage tanks sprang leaks.

Shocks To Continue

Dr. Beno Gutenberg, director of the seismological laboratory at the California institute of technology in Pasadena, said aftershocks of the great quake, probably of lesser intensity, will continue for two or three years.

He said only the disastrous San Francisco earthquake of 1906 exceeded yesterday's in power. The smaller Long Beach tremor of 1933 caused more damage, however, as it struck in a heavily populated area.

The Southern California area continued to rock yesterday from aftershocks. The main shock struck at 4:52 a. m. (Pacific Daylight Time).

Reds Recapture

planes plastered the area with flaming gasoline.

UN tanks and artillery shelled the area with a tremendous barrage.

Chinese artillery knocked out three tanks in the morning fighting.

UN fighter-bombers again hit a railroad repair center and cement factory between Samdung and Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. The Fifth Air Force said about 50 thunderjets destroyed three buildings, damaged a tunnel and made six direct hits on a locomotive repair shed.

Other planes flew close support missions along the 155 mile front which was relatively quiet except around Old Baldy.

The weather was hot and humid. Rain falls almost daily and the temperature soars to 100 degrees.

'My Goodness, No,'

winning forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Says He Told Truth

"Regrets?" Dirksen said to a reporter who asked him about the speech. "My goodness, no. How can you have regrets about stating a fact? I simply told the truth about Dewey, that's all."

He said the speech had drawn fire from a lot of fellow Republicans, but added firmly. "For every complaint there were 199 pats on the back."

Dirksen said he had Taft's permission to "say what you want to" before he spoke. He said his remarks about Dewey "implied no reflection on Gen. Eisenhower—Eisenhower and I have been friends for years."

He said he intends to "speak all over the country" for the general and the rest of the Republican ticket.

going probably 100 to 130 miles an hour. And they were flying in the vicinity of nearby Andrews Air Force Base.

The control center, operated by the Civil Aeronautics Administration, notified the air force and also asked planes in the air if they could see anything.

That was around midnight.

Capt. S. C. "Casey" Pierman of Detroit, piloting Capital Airlines Flight 807, sounthbound from National Airport, soon reported seeing seven objects between Washington and Martinsburg, W. Va. He said they changed pace, sometimes moving at tremendous speed, at other times hanging almost motionless.

He was careful in his report, and later in an interview, not to identify the objects as flying saucers. He described them as "like falling stars without tails" but added:

"In my years of flying I'v seen a lot of falling or shooting stars * * * but these were much faster. * * * They couldn't have been aircraft. They were moving too fast for that. They were about the same size as the brighter stars, and were much higher than our 6,000 foot altitude."

Another airliner, Capital-National Airlines Flight 610, also reported seeing a light following it from Herndon, Va., to within four miles of Washington.

Saul Pett, an Associated Press newsman, said he saw a "flying saucer" that same night near his home at River Edge, N. J., outside of New York. He said the weather was clear and calm, and what he saw wasn't an optical illusion—it was orange colored, round, moved swiftly and soundlessly, and he did not think it could have been a plane, balloon, or meteor.

The Air Focre did not send up interceptor planes when notified of the Washington objects. Officers explained yesterday that this was because its own radar had not picked up the images, and because the round-the-clock observer operation had not sent out any warnings.

An official said the whole thing is undergoing thorough investigation, and that probably Pierman will be questioned here later this week by Air Force intelligence agents to get a clearer picture from him.

met briefly, agreed to cast their votes as a unit and then adjourned until called together again to decide on what presidential aspirant they will support.

Barkley's angry withdrawal statement came a little more than 24 hours after high CIO and AFL officials withheld their support on the ground that the 74-year-old Kentuckian was too old to make a successful race.

Seems Deeply Hurt

Barkley, evidently deeply hurt, said in a statement he had never believed a single group should dominate a great political party.

"But now," he said, "certain self-annointed political labor leaders have taken it upon themselves to announce their opposition to me as the Democratic nominee for President."

These labor leaders, he said, had committed themselves "to a program and to candidates other than myself, which would give them greater control of the machinery and policies of the Democratic Party."

Speaks of Expediency

At the same time, Barkley added, leaders of certain large delegations who had been encouraging him "have found it expedient" to withdraw their support.

Sen. Earle Clements, Barkley's campaign manager, scheduled a news conference at the vice president's suite in the Blackstone Hotel (10 a. m. EST) today.

No one wished to be quoted, but friends of Barkley said they do not believe he will be a vice-presidential candidate again.

His press representative, Ludwig Caminita, told newsmen last night the vice president would answer no questions about his decision.

Regular Veterans To Meet Thursday

All members are urged to attend the important meeting Thursday of Ulster County Memorial Post, Regular Veterans Association and Auxiliary, at the home of Commander George W. Nichols in Bloomington.

It is requested that the veterans bring to the meeting scheduled to start at 8:15 p. m., all comic books, crayons and drawing books collected for children and hospitalized veterans.

During the session, plans will be completed for the August picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Vance, Stone Ridge, arranged for veterans and their families.

There will be a report on the annual Department of New York RVA convention held July 11 to 14 in Albany during which two area men were honored with offices.

Fred Mertine of Tillson was elected a trustee for three years and Commander Nichols of Ulster Post was chosen junior vice commander for the state district south of Albany.

Nichols was reappointed, on the basis of his record, as department service officer by Commander Erwin P. Bacon of Niagara Falls, who was reelected for the 1952-53 term.

Another honor for Nichols was his reappointment as department public relations officer in charge of publicity and publications.

Speakers Assail GOP, Laud Demos

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—A Negro Congressman told the Democratic Convention today that President Truman "swept the cobwebs" off equality laws while Republicans did nothing but talk.

"The people know what Truman has done and is still doing about civil rights," said Rep. William L. Dawson of Illinois, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"They knew that President Truman swept the cobwebs off of constitutional equality under the law and made it a revitalizing principle in the heart of every black American.

"High sounding phases by Republican spell-binders have not undone, nor can ever undo * * * what (Franklin D.) Roosevelt, Truman and the Democratic party have done * * * "

One Of Five Prepared

Dawson's speech was one of five prepared for today's early session. It came as delegates were threshing out in committee the Civil Rights plank of their platform—the issue which split the party in 1948.

Sharing the speakers' program with Dawson were Georgia Neese Clark, treasurer of the United States; Perle Mesta, U. S. Minister to Luxembourg; Eugenie Anderson, U. S. Ambassador to Denmark, and Richard J. Nelson, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

Of the five speeches, only Mrs. Mesta's did not touch on the Republican-Democrat tussle in the November presidential election.

Mrs. Mesta said she would like to see more women in politics, as well as in industry, the professions, the government and the military. She said women are working for peace, freedom and justice "shoulder-to-shoulder with our men."

Mrs. Anderson said American foreign policy, under Democratic administrations, is forging unity throughout the world to stem Communist aggression.

"Our purpose is peace—human welfare—and human freedom," she said. "This is what all free men want and will work for. This is what we Americans * * * will choose again in November."

Mrs. Clark said Republicans "can't take a hint." Every four years since 1932, she said, they "point with alarm, but when pinned down they say 'me too.'"

What a Tragedy

"What a tragedy it would be * * * if they should actually break through in an unguarded moment," she said, "and seize the power to reverse the march of progress in this country."

Nelson said the Republican platform is full of "confused contradictions." He said it actually states the principles of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

But Taft was rejected and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was elected GOP presidential nominee, Nelson said, because:

"The Republican party * * * is afraid to boldly and honestly present their true conservative and quasi-isolationist program and have it compete with the Democratic liberal and positive domestic and foreign policies * * *."

'Ladies Day'

The appearance of Mrs. Mesta, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Clark on the program led to its being tagged 'Ladies Day."

"The Democratic Digest," official publication of the national committee's women's division, was the opener. It was billed as "animated" and a "talking, walking magazine."

Here's why: Instead of writing articles, the women are speaking their piece today and tomorrow at convention headquarters in the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the late President, is flying in for a speech tonight. Mrs. India Edwards, vice chairman of the national committee, is on tonight's program.

The final affair is a party given by Mrs. Mesta, whose fame as a hostess and diplomat inspired the Broadway play "Call Me Madame."

Hines Held on Assault

James L. Hines, 39, of Port Ewen, was arrested Monday by state police on a charge of assault, third degree, and taken before Justice of the Peace Frank E. Palen. He was remanded to jail for a hearing this evening. Bail was fixed at $50. It is alleged, state police report, that the assault was committed on the father of the defendant.
